BOND DRIVE NEEDS $19,790,000 MORE TO REACH QUOTA

Campaign Closes Next Tuesday — Pledges Reach $139,639,000, or 87.5 Pct. of Goal.

'SUCCESS DEPENDS ON EACH ONE OF YOU'

Chairman Makes Plea, Citing That Series E Sales Are Only 58 Pct. of Share Set.

Subscriptions to the Fourth War Loan drive in Metropolitan St. Louis reached a total of $139,639,000 today, which represents 87.5 per cent of the community's $159,429,000. The campaign will close next Tuesday.

Overnight sales amounted to $5,258,325, leaving $19,790,000 yet to be subscribed. This means daily purchases must average approximately $2,827,000 during the remaining seven days of the campaign.

Success of the drive now is the responsibility of every member of the community, Chairman Walter J. Hein of the Metropolitan St. Louis Committee said, adding, "The Fourth War Loan campaign now depends on you . . . every one of you." He called attention to the fact that the sale of Series E bonds, particularly designed for individual purchases, still is seriously lagging, only 58 per cent of the community's 28-million-dollar quota having been subscribed so far.

Urged to 'Back the Attack.'

Another appeal for St. Louisans to do their part in "backing the attack" was voiced by Rufus R. Clabaugh, campaign chairman.

"We expect big things of our armed forces," he said. "We watch each advance they make in Italy and the South Pacific and we talk glibly of the end of the war. Remember those men in uniform are pushing ahead by inches. Every heavy step they take calls for courage and determination.

"If you think their advance is slow, stop to consider how those fighting men would feel if they could see the slow progress of our bond buying here at home. Would you be willing to trade the privilege of buying another bond for the responsibility of storming an atoll in the Pacific or a beachhead in Italy?"

East St. Louis Exceeds Quota.

East St. Louis exceeded its $4,767,060 Fourth War Loan drive quota today. A. C. Martin, cochairman of the St. Clair County War Finance Committee, said overnight subscriptions brought the city's total to $5,100,000. However, he pointed out that series E bond subscriptions amount to only $735,935, or less than half the goal of $1,906,000.

Missouri campaign headquarters reported the State has reached almost 90 per cent of its 282-million-dollar goal, subscriptions now to-

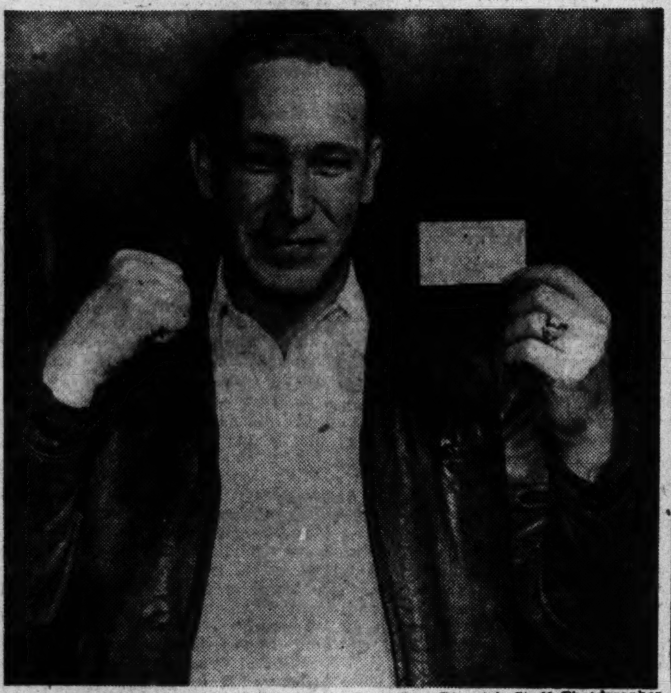
Man Rejected by Army Fells 3 Soldiers Calling Him Slacker



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

EDWIN TAYLOR displaying his draft classification card.

Fourth Service Man Runs Away as Edwin Taylor, Belleville, Wades in on Scott Field Hecklers.

Edwin Taylor of Belleville, a robust young man whose poor vision disqualified him for military service, was taking his ease today after slugging it out with four Scott Field soldiers early yesterday who made the mistake of calling him a "draft dodger" a "slacker" and a "blank blank 4-F."

"I've been taking that kind of guff from soldiers too long," explained the 180-pound roofer who is just under six feet, "When those guys began to shove me around I decided it was time for a showdown."

Taylor said his only regret was that the fourth soldier ran away before "I could lay him alongside of his playmates." The fight didn't last very long. People living in the neighborhood of Second and Main streets called police. The police arrived to find Taylor standing over two men who, when they regained consciousness later at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, said they were Cpl. Isaac R. MacEwan and Pvt. Willard Harrell of Scott Field.

Pvt. Harrell, the first to awaken, explained dreamily that he had been much impressed by Taylor's talents. "I'm an amateur boxer myself," he said, "I've won 28 fights, 25 of them by knockouts. Taylor took me with one smash. He's the hardest hitter I ever met."

Pvt. Harrell and Cpl. MacEwan said their companions were Cpl. Alfred Durand and Pvt. James Bradford. The latter, they said, was felled early in the melee, but managed to crawl away to safety before the police arrived.

Taylor who lives at 14 East D street, said he had no desire to prefer charges against his hecklers. He said he was still dedicated to peace—"as long as they won't give me a uniform."

CHARGES BRUTALITY AT SPRINGFIELD PRISON

Norman Thomas Plans to Ask Missouri Senators for Investigation.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Norman Thomas, the Socialist, said today he had submitted to Attorney General Biddle what he described as documentary evidence of "horrible brutalities" inflicted on prisoners by guards at the medical center of the Federal Bureau of Prisons at Springfield, Mo. Thomas said he also planned to demand a congressional investigation of the institution.

The matter was brought to his attention, Thomas said, through affidavits from prisoners which were smuggled out of the institution and given to Thomas's brother, Dr. Evan W. Thomas.

These documents charged, Thomas said, that prisoners were beaten, pounded with firehose, deprived of food, tortured with burning cigarettes, confined for considerable periods in stripped stone cells without heat or furnishings, and forced to sleep nude on bare concrete floors.

Thomas said that the affidavits were prepared by a prisoner who hoped to win his release through habeas corpus proceedings, but that before the documents could be filed in court, the prisoner was transferred to another institution. The affidavits cited cases covering a three-year period, beginning in 1941.

"I don't plan to make any one-man campaign," Thomas said. "It's nothing in my life, except I don't like atrocities. It's no political issue. The people who are being mistreated are just poor devils—black and white.

"I've read what happened in Russian camps and in Japanese camps and this is a familiar pattern."

He said he would make his demand for a congressional inquiry to Senators Bennett Champ Clark and Harry S. Truman of Missouri because "the institution is in their bailiwick."

He said he also would present the matter to the American Civil Liberties Union at its annual meeting in New York Saturday.

Warden Says Same Story Was Investigated Last Summer.

Dr. M. J. Pescor, warden of the Springfield Medical Center, in a statement there today, said Thomas' evidence "is apparently the same story which was put out last summer."

Complaints were made then that two conscientious objectors, Stanley Murphy and Lewis Taylor, both of New York, had been subjected to cruel and unusual treatment. An investigation was made by a committee appointed by

RATION COMPLAINTS SHIFT FROM FOOD TO CLOTHING

"Official Housewife" of OPA Finds Women Particularly Critical of Children's Garments.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Philip L. Crowlie, OPA's "official housewife," says American housewives' complaints have shifted from food rationing to clothing the last few months.

On a tour of seven Midwestern states, Mrs. Crowlie said last night most women's complaints concerned poor quality of children's clothing and high prices.

3 Tax Aids Give 3 Figures on Same Income; Taxpayer Picks Lowest

The complexity of Federal income tax calculations seems to be challenging the infallibility of even the deputy collectors here who assist citizens in the preparation of returns.

This has encouraged some canny taxpayers to submit their earnings statements and other material to first one deputy and then another. When the deputies' calculations result in different answers, the taxpayer discards the larger, and pays the smaller.

"I went over to the Federal Building the other day," Clarence Smith, 6118 Southwest avenue, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today, "and submitted my papers to a deputy. My earnings amounted to $3074 and there were deductions for my wife and child. The deputy figured I owed the Government $119. That seemed high, so I went to another deputy. He figured out I owed $68. Well, I thought I'd try a third. He said I owed $54."

Smith said he thought he'd pay the $54. He said he was afraid to try another deputy, for fear the debt might start rising again.

The experience of Alfred Troeger, 5447 Bates street, who is married and has one child and whose earnings from all sources totaled about $4600, was similar, he said. The first deputy fixed his indebtedness at $114. The second said it was $97.

"I'm going back and try a third time," Troeger said.

NIMITZ SAYS HIS AIM IS TO SET UP BASES IN CHINA

Object of Pacific Operations 'to Get Ground, Air Forces There Early as Possible.'

VISITED KWAJALEIN DURING FIGHTING

'You'll See Us Moving On,' He Asserts — Expects Japs to Continue to Conserve Fleet.

By WILLIAM HIPPLE

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Feb. 9 (AP).—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, radiating confidence and satisfaction after returning from an inspection of Kwajalein atoll, said yesterday his aim is to get the forces under his command moving across the Pacific and setting up bases in China.

In an unusual statement at his press conference, the commander in the chief of the Pacific Fleet said his object is "to get our ground and air forces into China as early as possible.

"In the last analysis," he continued, "I do not believe we can defeat Japan from the sea alone."

The startled correspondents asked him if that remark was "on the record."

"Certainly," he answered, "that's the simple strategy of the Pacific war. I believe the Japs can only be defeated from bases in China because they draw food, iron and other supplies from Manchuria and China, and as long as they have access to these they will be difficult to beat.

"Furthermore, we want air bases in China from which we can deliver air raids—not sporadic ones—but like those the Germans are receiving."

"You'll See Us Moving On."

When reminded that most of the discussion of gaining Allied bases in China centered on the campaign from Burma, Nimitz said:

"It stands to reason we would land on all parts of China if we could."

Thus he further indicated that his fleet, the Army and Marine Corps forces under his command plan on taking a leading part in the China offensive.

Nimitz gave no indication of the China offensive timetable, but said, "I think that if you'll watch the communiques, you'll see us moving on."

Nimitz's face was sunburned a bright red from the tropical sun at Kwajalein, which he visited on Feb. 5.

He said we can expect more and more resistance from the Japanese fleet and air units as we move further west, but that this "will be welcome."

"I feel we will be prepared to meet this resistance," he added.

In answer to a question on why the Japanese fleet hadn't come out, Nimitz said he believed the Japanese want to keep their fleet

SENATOR URGES JOINT ACTION TO SIMPLIFY INCOME TAXES

George Says He Believes 30 Million Individual Returns Can Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Chairman George (Dem.), Georgia, of the Senate Finance Committee proposed today that Senate and House committees work together on early simplification and streamlining of the income tax structure.

George said he believed approximately 30 million of the 50 million taxpayers could be spared the need of filing any returns at all beginning in 1945 "by making their final tax obligation the withholding levy against their wages and salaries."

15,000 GERMANS KILLED AND 2000 TAKEN PRISONER IN NIKOPOL AREA

South Ukraine Armies Push Toward Black Sea Ports of Kherson and Nikolaev—10-Mile Gain in Luga Area.

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 (AP).—Russian troops closed in on the iron ore center of Krivoi Rog today from three sides and also advanced in the direction of the Black Sea ports of Kherson and Nikolaev after breaking the long and tenacious German defense in the Dnieper bend at Nikopol.

Hitler at Krivoi Rog may have repeated his characteristic mistake in Russia—waiting too long before retreating. He lost 15,000 dead and 2000 captured as well as enormous stores of booty at Nikopol, major source of manganese essential for hardening German steel.

The Germans have large numbers of infantrymen, tanks and artillery at Krivoi Rog. There was no sign of withdrawal despite the threat of encirclement. The only railroad still open leads to Dolonivka, a junction 40 miles west on the Nikolaev line.

The army newspaper Red Star said the 10 Nazi divisions encircled near Cherkasy were being exterminated and that the officers and men in the death pocket were losing hope. The dispatch said officers no longer could encourage the men with hopes of rescue, because the best landing fields have been taken by the Russians and the others are deep in mud. The Germans were receiving food only by parachute and much of this was falling into Russian hands.

4-Day Battle at Nikopol.

Nikopol was captured by Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Third Ukrainian Army.

After Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Fourth Ukrainian Army had liquidated the German-held bridgehead on the left bank of the Dnieper River opposite Nikopol, Malinovsky's veterans stormed the city itself, climaxing a great four-day battle which sent seven Nazi infantry divisions fleeing in headlong retreat.

Nikopol was taken only after the bitterest house-to-house fight-

NAZI BOMB FALLS WITHIN 100 YARDS OF LT. GEN. CLARK

THE FIFTH ARMY BEACHHEAD BELOW ROME, Feb. 7 (Delayed) (AP).—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark was within 100 yards of a German bomb explosion on the main beachhead road today and he rescued a British driver from the wreckage of a burning truck.

Here on a brief inspection trip, the Fifth Army commander cooly extricated the wounded British soldier and helped put him into an ambulance.

On a previous trip to this zone Clark narrowly escaped death when shells killed several officers in his American P-T boat.

U. S. CASUALTIES TOTAL 34,179 KILLED, 51,292 INJURED, 34,746 MISSING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).

ANNOUNCED casualties of the United States armed forces now total 150,478, the Office of War Information reported today.

The total, combining the latest War and Navy Department reports, shows 34,179 dead, 51,292 wounded, 34,746 missing and 30,261 prisoners of war. Of the latter, the report said, 1936 have died in prison camps, mostly in Japanese occupied territory.

Army casualties totaled 112,030 and Navy casualties, including Marines and Coast Guardsmen, 38,448.

The figures were an increase of 7189 in total casualties and 1517 in dead since the last report, Jan. 25.

'Jittery' Nurse Calm, Efficient After Nazi Bombs Hit Hospital

Quickly Organizes First Aid Party and Restores Order — Wins Companions' Praises.

LT. HELEN TALBOY

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Anzio Beachhead, Feb. 9 (AP).—If ever the courage of American nurses is questioned, just let the story of Lt. Helen Talboy of Des Moines, Ia., and the gang of spunky girls on the Anzio beachhead be the answer.

One night a week ago a small group of them left the nearby hospital tents to come into the correspondents' building when falling flak was shredding the canvas roofs during air raids, when shells were screaming overhead all night long and landing close.

The tension was beginning to tell on their nerves. Lt. Talboy, small and dark, was one of the most jittery. But they all went back to their hospital tents and continued their work.

The reporters sat around talking after they had left, saying this beachhead was no place for women.

When the German antipersonnel bombs hit the hospital Monday, killing 27 persons and wounding more than 68 others, Lt. Talboy was busy in charge of the surgical section, which was punctured with hundreds of fragments.

Without a moment's hesitation, she took charge, collected the surviving nurses, gave them bandages and first aid equipment and started them caring for the wounded.

She helped to supervise the first aid work, seeing that the dead were covered as quickly as possible, and putting a more merciful semblance of order over the whole night-marish scene.

The same nurses who seemed near the breaking point a week ago were busy everywhere there were dead or wounded. Even late Monday night they were still working but they took time out to tell how Lt. Talboy organized them after the tragedy.

Some of the nurses were crying, but soundlessly—tears on their cheeks in the cold moonlight the only sign. For these dead and dying were not strangers to them, but their own daily comrades of many months of war.

AMERICANS HIT NEW BLOWS IN THE MARSHALLS

Warships and Planes Participating — Jaluit Bombed, Navy Silent on Other Targets.

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Feb. 9 (AP).—All organized Japanese resistance has been snuffed out on Kwajalein and American warships and planes already are diverting fire power from that nerve center of the Marshalls to other fortified atolls.

Significantly, the Navy imposed a policy of semi-secrecy last night in announcing that the fleet and air arm attacked elsewhere in the Marshalls Sunday and Monday. The Navy did not disclose the targets, figuring that communication between those supply severed bases and Japan are precarious and lack of the information would seriously impede the enemy.

The press release said several small enemy boats were sunk at Jaluit atoll Monday by fleet air wing search planes and Seventh Army Air Force fighter planes, but in line with the new policy

ANZIO BEACHHEAD NOW HAS BECOME ANOTHER TOBRUK

Veteran Correspondent Says Allied Failure to Exploit Early Success Will Be Costly.

Wes Gallagher, Associated Press war correspondent, has spent four years in Europe during which he covered the Greek campaign, the initial American landing in North Africa and subsequent fighting in Tunisia, Sicily and Italy. He recently has returned to London to cover the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Allied expeditionary force.

By WES GALLAGHER.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Originally planned as a great offensive thrust to break the back of German resistance below Rome, the Anzio beachhead has become instead a Tobruk-like defensive position through failure to exploit the early success of the landings.

Because of Allied domination of the skies there seems little danger that the beachhead forces will be forced into the sea, but the job of maintaining them promises to be a costly one. Forced to supply the beachhead from the sea, the Allies face a steady drain on ship-

Miners Dig for Child Who Fell Into Cave-in Over Old Mines

PITTSTON, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP).—Tired miners built an ever-growing mound of earth today as they dug without rest for the body of a little girl swallowed yesterday by a cave-in over an abandoned anthracite mine.

The mound contained 350 tons at noon today but the miners, neighbors of the girl's father, a Navy enlisted man, said it might be increased by several days' further digging before the body of 2-year-old Jule Ann Fulmer is recovered.

Her aunt, Mrs. Marie Mitchell, told this story of the tragedy:

She and Jule Ann and the child's five-year-old brother, David, were walking along the sidewalk in a residential street after shopping. Mrs. Mitchell peeled a tangerine and handed it to Jule Ann, and the child fell back a few steps. Then the earth cracked.

"I leaped back, pulling Jule with one hand and knocking David back with the other," Mrs. Mitchell said. "But the rush of earth tore Jule from me. There was nothing I could do to save her. She just disappeared."

The hole into which the child disappeared was 40 feet deep and 10 feet across. Miners dug into it all night under floodlights while thousands watched.

Crews worked in relays, suspended in the deep hole by ropes, and passing up the dirt bucket by bucket.

Virtually all of this mining city of 18,000 is undermined by coal workings. During the last several years there have been many cave-ins, wrecking many homes and buildings. The cave-ins occur when rotting mine timbers give away.

AMERICANS OPEN FULL - STRENGTH DRIVE ON MAIN 5TH ARMY FRONT

Allies Fly 1500 Sorties in Italy Without Loss —Germans Claim Big Gain in Anzio Beachhead Area.

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Feb. 9 (AP). — American troops have occupied about one-fourth of Cassino, and approached the crest of Mount Cassino in a full-strength assault, front dispatches said today, while in the Anzio invasion beachhead Allied planes struck heavily at the German bastion town of Cisterna.

Before dawn Tuesday, United States troops opened a full-scale assault on Mount Cassino, driving at one time to within 75 yards of the famous Benedictine monastery on its summit.

The furious crag-to-crag assault on this hill was co-ordinated with the drive into Cassino itself, where Americans seized several more fortified buildings. Tanks and infantrymen edged forward in the town in bitter struggle.

Beachhead Front.

United States Mitchell bombers dropped tons of bombs yesterday on Cisterna—a main stronghold of the Nazi line around the beachhead below Rome—and American-British troops in that area struck out in heavy patrol fighting.

German patrols also were active and Nazi artillery continued a heavy shelling of the beachhead.

(Today's German communique said the Nazis had advanced several miles in the beachhead area, capturing 700 prisoners. "Strong enemy counterattacks with support of tanks and naval artillery were repulsed," the communique added.

(A dispatch to Stockholm by the German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said the waters off Anzio "looked like a ship graveyard" as a result of German air attacks on Allied shipping.)

The Allies further consolidated their positions, headquarters said.

Allied planes flew 1500 sorties throughout the day, striking hard at German troop concentrations, airfields and railyards over a wide area. Not a plane was lost, but five Nazi planes were downed.

Tanks Hidden in Cisterna.

American Mitchells in morning and afternoon raids pounded buildings in Cisterna where the enemy had concealed tanks and guns, and crewmen said the bombs leveled a large part of the town, 15 miles northeast of Anzio and 26 miles southeast of Rome.

Cisterna, a model town of the Pontine agricultural development, has been converted by the Germans into a fortress from which they have launched some of their fiercest attacks on the beachhead.

Front dispatches said the Germans were bearing down all along the Allied beachhead perimeter and had forced a slight retirement in the British sector north of Carroceto (Aprilia.)

Associated Press correspondent Daniel De Luce wrote that "no

TWO RED STATES EXPECTED TO ASK U. S. TO EXCHANGE DIPLOMATS SOON

Similar Requests to Britain and Canada From Ukrainian, White Russian Republics Forecast by London Source.

By NED RUSSELL
(Copyright, 1944.)

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The reconstituted Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic and the Byelo-Russian (White Russian) Soviet Socialist Republic will ask Great Britain, the United States and Canada to exchange diplomatic representatives with them soon, an authoritative source said last night.

A similar move is expected by the Latvian, Estonian and Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republics, as soon as the military situation permits their new governments to be established.

It was pointed out by the authoritative source that this expansion of Soviet contacts with the rest of the world is based primarily on economic problems because of the special postwar needs of those republics. They will need considerable help from America, Britain and Canada in the reconstruction of their ruined cities and villages and in developing as quickly as possible their agricultural and other natural resources.

RED PAPER DENIES TERRITORIAL AIMS

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Soviet trade union magazine, War and the Working Class, today characterized as Nazi-inspired any suggestions that the new powers recently granted the 16 Soviet republics in the field of foreign relations were designed to achieve territorial gains.

At the same time, the publication scoffed at suggestions that the Soviet Union would "return to isolationism." In another long article, a writer named Tolchenov blueprinted how the continent should be invaded, pointing out where the blow ought to be delivered and how.

The leading article said it was natural for the individual Soviet republics to become federalized, noting that Russia was the largest country in Europe and had the largest population. The population of the Ukraine, it added, exceeds that of France, while that of White Russia exceeded Belgium, Holland, Portugal and Sweden.

The publication declared that suggestions that the reorganization was made in preparation for taking other countries into the Soviet Union, to serve as an instrument of a "policy of expansion" or to serve as a means for a "policy of force in the framework of the United Nations" were all "versions" and "guessings" bearing the Berlin label.

Referring to isolationism, the magazine said, "the world remembers that several years before the war reactionary leaders of a number of countries carried on a policy of isolating the U. S. S. R. which cleared the way for the Fascists to gain power to wage war."

The invasion article said that "the landing operations of the Allies south of Rome confirms the existence of unprotected intermediate lines on the European coast."

SENATOR SEEKS INVESTIGATION OF U. S. OIL PLANS ABROAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Senator Moore (Rep.), Oklahoma, called on the Senate today to order an investigation of the Petroleum Reserves Corporation and bring a "halt to White House planners," who, he said, are looking toward control of foreign oil supplies as the first step in Government regulation of world transportation.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as head of the PRC, announced recently that the agency would build a 1250-mile pipeline to tap oil serves in Arabia for the Gulf Oil Corporation, Standard Oil Co. and Texas Co.

Moore suggested that appropriate legislation be offered to invalidate any contract or agreement made by the President, agency or department with a foreign Government "for affirmative or reciprocal rights" unless approved by the Senate.

PARAMUSHIRO SHELLING EXPECTED TO FORCE JAPS TO KEEP FLEET IN HOME AREA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).

THE American warship assault on Paramushiro Island has nailed Japan's fleet inescapably to the narrow confines of Japanese home waters.

Naval experts say this was one of the most important strategical results of the bold foray which carried United States surface units across the North Pacific to bombard a key enemy base only 1300 miles northeast of Tokyo.

It means that from now on the Admirals in Tokyo cannot afford to risk sending their battle fleet to the south or southeast, in hopes of catching United States forces off balance, because they can never know when an American task group might take advantage of the absence to strike at the central region of Japan with either surface vessels or carrier-borne aircraft.

U. S. S. RANGER'S PLANES SANK 6 NAZI VESSELS OFF NORWAY

Bold Raid Carried Out After Germans Had Reported Vessel Sunk—Role in African Invasion Described.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The United States aircraft carrier Ranger, far from being sunk as the Nazis have claimed, made a daring raid into enemy-dominated waters off Norway to account for destruction of more than 40,000 tons of German shipping, the Navy disclosed today.

The Navy told about the raid in the first report of war activities of this aircraft carrier which has cruised throughout the Atlantic protecting convoys, carrying planes and pilots to the fighting fronts and playing a leading role in the invasion of North Africa.

The strike into Norway's waters, the Navy said, was carried out last October, six months after Hitler had announced that the Ranger had been sunk by a U-boat and had decorated the submarine commander, Lt. Otto von Bulow, who was credited with the feat.

Destroyed Six Ships.

Planes from the carrier, the first ever built specifically for that purpose by the United States Navy, destroyed at least six enemy vessels, including four merchantmen, a tanker and an oil barge; damaged other shipping, and shot down two Axis planes in the raid.

The Ranger was with a British task force at the time and despite the fact that it operated well within range of German land-based bombers, the cost of the raid was only three planes.

The assault was carried out in two phases with eight tons of bombs hurled at enemy shipping in the first attack and seven and a half tons in the second.

"It was a very fine attack, and many German troops were killed," said Capt. Gordon Rowe of Seattle, commanding officer of the Ranger at that time. "My pilots drove home their attacks in the face of strong German antiaircraft fire. The only thing that saved us from serious losses was our element of surprise. We struck quickly and departed before the Germans knew what hit them."

Role In Invasion.

The Navy said the Ranger's "most crushing blow" against the Axis probably was during the North Africa occupation when as flagship of R. Adm. E. D. McWhorter of Norfolk, Va., commander of carriers, Atlantic Fleet, it was one of five flat-tops which gave invasion forces superiority in the air.

Commanded by R. Adm. Calvin T. Durgin, Cape May, N. J., the Ranger's flyers dropped more than 48 tons of bombs during 60 missions carried out in those operations.

The Ranger's bombers attacked the French battleship Jean Bart, which was shelling United Nations warships from its berth in Casablanca harbor. The planes dropped thousand-pound bombs on the Jean Bart and it ceased firing.

Other Ranger planes laid their thousand-pound bombs on coastal defense guns and antiaircraft batteries defending Casablanca harbor.

The Navy also disclosed that the Ranger transported many Army fighters and planes to the European theater, slipping through submarine-infested waters without damage. In one such trip, Army Warhawk fighter planes were transported to within 40 miles of Africa, where they flew from the carrier's deck to prepared airfields.

YANKS STORMING MOUNT CASSINO IN ALL-OUT ATTACK

one in the beachhead is under illusions as to the grimness of the struggle now unfolding.

"Anywhere in the area you are laible to be shelled, bombed or strafed," De Luce said. "It is a very small beachhead. German power still seems to be mounting."

De Luce said the Germans had been carrying out probing attacks in groups of 100 to 200 men with two or three tanks and had compelled the Allies to make minor "adjustments" in their lines. He said artillery fire "rolled like continuous thunder."

The attacks made Monday night in this area were the hottest since the landing 18 days ago.

In one sector west of Cisterna, American and German parallel formations attacked simultaneously yesterday in the general confusion. Bayonet fighting between rival patrols was reported from another sector.

At one strategic crossroad called "Femina Morta" (dead woman) the Germans occupy houses on one side of the road, and the Americans are in houses on the other side.

Cassino Battle.

The Americans attacking at Cassino brought up more guns to pound the German positions.

(The Vichy radio said the Allies had thrown 30,000 men and 400 tanks into an attack on the Cassino front to relieve pressure on the Anzio beachhead.)

American riflemen fought up the monastery heights under heavy German artillery and mortar fire from the north, west, and south. Allied artillery firing on Cassino laid a tremendous barrage from the east side of the Rapido River. Wave on wave of Allied bombers pounded German heavy gun positions in the mountains.

The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes said Italian prisoners told American officers that 2000 Italian civilians were sheltered in the abbey on Mount Cassino. This ancient home of the Benedictine monks has been spared by American artillery because of its religious and cultural importance.

(Max Hill, National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Naples, told of a "concentrated shelling" of the monastery and reported that at least two shells hit the buildings. He said Army observers had told him that the buildings were sheltering Germans who were directing troop movements in Cassino as well as artillery fire.)

British troops made some advances on the main Fifth Army front.

On the Eighth Army front, a German patrol of 60 men, with weapons including flame-throwers, thrust into Allied territory near Orsogna, but Allied forces killed 14 of them and captured six. The rest of the Nazis fled, abandoning their flame-throwers.

Warships Shell Formia.

Supporting the aerial attack on German communications, a British destroyer and a Dutch gunboat bombarded Formia, on the Gulf of Gaeta between the Anzio beachhead and the Cassino front. A German ammunition dump was blown up.

Heavy bombers blasted railyards at Verona and Prato and airfields at Tarquina and Viterbo. Night bombers attacked rail yards at Padua Monday night.

Medium bombers, besides hammering Cisterna, bombed the railyards at Siena, north of Rome.

Spitfires destroyed 46 enemy vehicles during sweeps ahead of the battle lines, and British Kittyhawks hit two merchantmen off Yugoslavia.

Other targets of the day were Orvieto and port facilities at Piombino northwest of Rome. Bostons, A-36 Invaders and Warhawks raided German supply and communication points.

ANZIO BEACHHEAD NOW HAS BECOME ANOTHER TOBRUK

ping from German rocket glider bombs.

The decision to follow a cautious role in the beachhead was taken despite the fact that the surprise landings enabled the Allies to achieve the goal desired by all generals—numerical superiority at a given point of attack.

Advantages Lost.

It is now apparent that the advantages of surprise and numerical superiority both have been lost, for the Germans have been able to build up their strength and have brought in new divisions from the north. There is no reason to suppose they will not be able to hold this advantage.

The Allies thus find themselves definitely on the defensive in a position of major importance in the Mediterranean for the first time since Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower landed in North Africa and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery began his march from El Alamein.

The original landings at Nettuno represented one of the greatest tactical surprises of the war. They were practically unopposed, the only German reserve divisions around Rome having been rushed south to the Cassino front.

Scattered German forces stood between the Allies and two key roads linking Rome and the main Fifth Army front.

Allies' Two Choices.

The Allied commanders had two choices:

1. To strike boldly for Rome and the highways with the idea of keeping the Germans so disorganized that they could not mount a counterthrust, gambling meanwhile on our ability to keep men and supplies flowing into the beachhead.

2. To move inland a few miles, then halt and make sure sufficient men and supplies were ashore to make the beachhead secure before moving forward.

The latter course was chosen.

The decision to follow this cautious role is not the responsibility of any one commander. It must be shared equally by Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, all of whom were on the scene and could have taken responsibility for a push forward.

BRITISH CHURCHMEN CRITICISE BOMBING OF GERMAN CITIES

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—A former Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Chichester criticised Allied bombings of German cities today in the House of Lords.

"Recent attacks on cities like Hamburg, Frankfurt and Berlin seem to me to go a long way beyond what hitherto has been the declared policy of the Government and the bomber command," said Lord Lang of Lambeth, who as Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang was Archbishop of Canterbury from 1928 to 1942.

The Bishop of Chichester said "the policy of obliteration is openly acknowledged. That is not a justifiable act of war."

Replying as leader of the upper House, Lord Cranborne said the Royal Air Force had never indulged in terror raids.

U. S. PLANES BOMB BANGKOK

CHUNGKING, Feb. 9 (AP).—United States Fourteenth Air Force Liberators poured three tons of bombs on an ordnance plant at Bangkok, capital of Thailand, Saturday night, starting many fires, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced yesterday.

BANKHEAD SAYS SUBSIDIES ADD TO INFLATION PERIL

Holding Down Food Costs Increases Excess Buying Power, He Asserts in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Keynoting Senate debate on the food subsidy repeal bill, Senator Bankhead of Alabama asserted today that government payments to regulate consumer food prices were swelling the national debt and increasing the dangers of wartime inflation, rather than diminishing them.

By holding down retail prices of some food commodities, subsidies have boosted excess purchasing power in the hands of consumers, thus widening the "inflationary gap" between buying power and available goods, Bankhead contended.

He took the floor in support of his own bill, similar to legislation previously passed by the House, to continue the Commodity Credit Corporation but cancel the Administration's billion-a-year subsidy policy after June 30.

Hits at Subsidy Argument.

Hitting at arguments of Administration officials that subsidy repeal might touch off a spiral of price and wage increases that would sweep away the entire stabilization program, he asserted that food prices would rise only two and three-fourth cents a day per person if subsidies were taken off.

"Ceiling prices can be used to stop inflationary increases in prices," he said. "If subsidies are repealed, it would not result in excessive or wild inflation. The principal result would be an increase in the price of the particular foods that are under the subsidy program in an amount to correspond with the reduction in the price that had been brought about by the use of the subsidy."

Deadline in Congress.

Resumption of the subsidy fight found Congress up against an urgent deadline. Because the statutory life of the credit agency expires Feb. 17, the issue will have to be settled within eight days unless the agency is either extended temporarily or allowed to lapse.

As the debate got under way Democratic Leader Barkley rejected an indirect offer by subsidy opponents to continue the agency on a temporary basis to allow more time for Senate consideration of subsidy repeal.

Expectations were that the administration would try for a quick decision in the belief that President Roosevelt will veto the repealer if it is passed and that the veto would be sustained.

UNION HOLDS UP STRIKE TO AWAIT WLB'S ACTION

CLEVELAND, Feb. 9 (AP).—The National Administrative Committee of the Mechanics Educational Society of America decided today, on a policy committee's recommendation, to continue indefinitely a truce in the independent union's strike in 44 Ohio and Michigan war plants "until we ascertain what satisfaction the War Labor Board shall give us."

The policy committee complained to the WLB yesterday that unions not affiliated either with the CIO or AFL have no representation on the board nationally or regionally.

After a two-hour hearing, the WLB declared it would not consider the union's complaints if the strike were resumed. It called President Roosevelt's attention to the situation so that criminal penalties and civil sanctions might be invoked promptly under the War Labor Disputes Act if further work stoppage occurs.

SPRING ARRIVES IN UKRAINE

Fruit Trees Budding, Roads Are Turned to Quagmires.

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 (AP).—A dispatch today to the Russian Army newspaper Red Star reported the arrival of spring in the Dnieper Bend after one of the most phenomenally short and mild winters in generations. The newspaper said fruit trees were budding and grass was green in the meadows and that "roads exist only on maps," since actually they are quagmires of sticky mud.

The dispatch said German captives looked ridiculous in their snow coats with sweat rolling down their faces as they trudged to the rear.

NAZIS STRAFED FIELD HOSPITAL AFTER BOMBING

Allied Headquarters Says Planes Machine-Gunned Unit — Mass Funeral Services for Victims.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Feb. 9 (AP).—Allied headquarters announced today that enemy planes machine gunned the American field hospital on the Anzio beachhead after bombing it Monday.

"One of our hospitals has been bombed and machine gunned by enemy planes," the communique said, giving no further official details of the attack, which resulted in 27 deaths and 68 other casualties. Three American nurses were among the dead.

The hospital was in the open and clearly marked.

Mass funeral services for the victims were held in a tent chapel.

Although the headquarters announcement and first reports from correspondents with the Fifth Army troops in the beachhead indicated the attack was deliberate, the hospital's acting commander, Lt. Col. Hubert L. Binkley of Denver, Colo., said a summary of eyewitness accounts indicated the German dive bomber may have jettisoned his bombs while trying to escape from a pursuing Spitfire.

Three Nurses Killed.

The dead included two officers, three nurses, one Red Cross worker, 15 enlisted men of the hospital personnel and six patients who had been waiting to be admitted. The wounded included 45 hospital workers, among them nine officers and three nurses.

The American nurses were the first to die through direct enemy action in this war. Yesterday, in a canvas tent, memorial services were held for the victims. But the chapel was far too small to accommodate the several hundred who wanted to attend and many stood outside.

Some of the witnesses said the plane came in as low as 500 feet and dropped its load of antipersonnel bombs, which tore through the big green hospital tents, located a mile from the nearest military objective.

The X-ray laboratory was wrecked and considerable equipment, vitally needed to care for the wounded, was destroyed.

The bombs landed at the very edge of the Red Cross insigne surmounting the hospital, a cross 45 feet square with bars six feet wide. In the same hospital zone are three other hospitals, and in one of them, directly next door to the target of the bombing, a German pilot is being cared for today. He bailed out over the beachhead Monday and is suffering from a neck wound.

"He's being treated with all the attention we give our own wounded," said Capt. C. V. McMillan, chaplain, of Jacksonville, Ind.

One of the witnesses, Cpl. Jeff Young, told of walking out of his tent just as the plane came in.

"Knew What He Was Doing."

"That pilot knew what he was doing all right," the 24-year-old truck driver from Dayton, O., related. "He seemed to aim right at the Red Cross. I dived for a foxhole—and just made it."

Lt. Col. Howard S. Patterson of Bronxville, N. Y., the hospital's chief surgeon, was performing a brain operation when the attack occurred.

"There was a lot of steel flying around," he explained. "I don't know how I happened to be missed."

His eyes suddenly filled with tears.

"I lost my sergeant," he concluded. "It was just like a kick in the teeth to all of us."

Lt. Col. Binkley, who became acting commander when the hospital's chief officer was wounded, had just finished a head operation and had gone to his tent to read newly-arrived mail when the bombing occurred. The condition of the hospital's commanding officer was reported not serious.

A number of the dead and wounded were from Lt. Col. John G. Baxter's unit, which evacuates hospital patients by sea. The Phoenixville (Pa.) officer issued a call for volunteers for extra duty and the unit went right on with its work.

Nazis Say Allies Bombed Hospital Train, Red Cross Ship.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Berlin radio charged yesterday that British and American planes bombed a German hospital train in Italy Sunday, killing several persons.

The broadcast said the train was clearly marked as a hospital train. There was no Allied confirmation of the report, which followed a German broadcast charging that British planes bombed and machine gunned a Swedish Red Cross ship in an Aegean island harbor, killing a Swedish Red Cross representative.

Wounded Get Speedy Treatment On Hospital Ship Off Marshalls

Nurses Given Close-Up Look at Americans in Action—One Who Was at Pearl Harbor Glad to See Japs Taking It.

By LEIF ERICKSON

ABOARD UNITED STATES NAVY HOSPITAL SHIP, KWAJALEIN, MARSHALL ISLANDS, Feb. 8 (Delayed) (AP).—Navy nurses aboard this hospital ship were the first American women to have a close-up look at United States forces in offensive action against the Japanese in the Pacific.

They didn't have much time to watch planes, field artillery and warships slugging the Japanese defenders of Kwajalein and Ebeye Islands. They had to buckle down to steady hours of caring for the wounded brought out from shore.

They were tremendously impressed with what they saw of the fighting.

"My feelings were mixed," said Lt. (jg) Evelyn Erickson of Grand Forks, N. D., who witnessed the Dec. 7 attack on Pearl Harbor. "I was glad to see it in reverse—we giving it and the Japs taking it. But I really didn't like seeing bombs and shells exploding. I've seen what happens to our men in battle. I don't like it—I don't like it at all."

Capt. A. L. Bryan, New London, Conn., the ship's senior medical officer, was operating on a wounded man in the air-conditioned operating room when Lt. (jg) Sophia G. Monteville of Chicago guided us in.

Three Tables in Use.

Bryan and his surgical staff had been working at three operating tables for nearly 24 hours. Cheerfully, he explained through his mask that "we're pretty busy here right now. But go right ahead and look at whatever you want to see."

Nurse Monteville, who directs the ship's staff of 12 woman nurses and scores of medical corpsmen, led the way into a ward supervised by Ensign Romaine Mentzer, Ephrata, Pa.

Nurse Mentzer was very tired. But her pretty face was expertly made up with just the right touches of lipstick and rouge. She was looking her best under trying circumstances.

One boy, with several shrapnel wounds, groaned with pain and called for the nurse.

In her ward there were several men just arrived in landing boats from the Army's medical aid station at the beach. Dried blood from their wounds caked on some of them.

"This is rough," admitted Nurse Mentzer. "We've never worked with men brought straight from battle like this. They always had been cleaned up pretty well before we saw them."

Most of Wounded Aboard.

While Nurse Monteville guided us through the wards, landing boats circled the gangway with litter loads of wounded. Crew corpsmen worked steadily, lifting litters from the boats and carrying the men up the gangway. By late afternoon the ship was loaded to its capacity, including cots set up on top of the decks with canvas stretched from overhead to the rail. When the vessel pulled out it carried most of the men wounded in the Kwajalein action. (Official Navy casualty figures announced Monday placed the number of United States Army and Marine wounded on Kwajalein at 1148 persons.)

En route to established military hospitals, all of our casualties will have the benefit of treatment by skilled doctors and the best and latest in hospital equipment.

Several wounded Japanese and Koreans aboard were getting the same treatment as our men.

RAILWAY CENTER IN NORTH FRANCE HIT IN DAY RAID

200 Marauders Blast Tergnier — 12 Heavy Allied Bombers Lost in Attacks Yesterday.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—United States Marauder medium bombers today attacked the railway yards and engine repair shops at Tergnier, midway between St. Quentin and Soissons and more than 100 miles inside France.

More than 200 Marauders made the raid, which was their third mission in 36 hours and their deepest penetration of the continent since they flew their first missions from Britain last July.

A smaller force of Marauders joined Royal Air Force Mosquitoes, Mitchells and Bostons in a persistent assault on military targets in Northern France which was attacked twice by Marauders yesterday.

"We could see huge spirals of smoke rising 4000 feet into the air when we were well on the way to the French coast headed home," said Staff Sgt. Clyde Duke, El Dorado, Ark., a turret gunner.

The daylight formations swung out after R. A. F. night bombers struck objectives in Germany and France, including the Rhone aircraft engine factory at Limoges, without loss.

The renewed pounding followed daylong attacks on the continent yesterday, highlighted by a heavy Flying Fortress blow on Frankfurt.

A communique said 19 German planes were downed during the Frankfurt operation, American fighters accounting for 16 while the others fell to the bombers. Two other Nazi planes were destroyed by R. A. F. Typhoons over Brittany.

Allied losses for the day were 12 heavy bombers, one medium bomber, one light bomber, two fighter-bombers and nine fighters, the communique said.

R. A. F. Mosquitoes, patrolling the Bay of Biscay area more than 400 miles from the English coast, shot down a six-engined German transport over its base near Bordeaux last night.

Some Flying Fortress crewmen who participated in the Frankfurt raid reported their escort included silver-colored Lightnings with red wing-tips—a type of decoration never seen on P-38's before. No official explanation was forthcoming.

SCHOOL BOARD DENIES DEPUTY TO COMPTROLLER LEE

Member Hugo Wurdack Says Action Was Inspired by 'Some Sinister Purpose.'

FUNDS ALREADY WERE ALLOTTED

Committee Recommends Group Be Named to Draft Unit Control Bill or Revise Statutes.

In a three-hour session marked by bickering and invective the Board of Education voted last night to deny Comptroller James J. Lee a deputy, an action which Hugo Wurdack, a board member, charged was inspired by "some sinister purpose."

"This rejection of Mr. Lee's request, when funds already have been allotted for the position, seems not to be in the interest of the public schools," Wurdack said. "Since the beginning there has been a movement to discredit and destroy the usefulness of the comptroller. It is an indication that certain board members do not want light thrown on the operation of the school system."

The arguments were touched off by the majority report of the Finance Committee recommending that Lee's request be denied and that a committee be appointed to prepare a unit control bill or to revise statutes governing financial officers of the board. The report was signed by Dr. Francis C. Sullivan, chairman, and James J. Fitzgerald. Charles J. Dyer, third member of the Finance Committee, brought in a minority report favoring a deputy comptroller.

Continuing, Wurdack said: "I've never seen constructive work meet with such opposition as did Lee's job reclassification plan. That's no accident. The hearings drew out numerous accusations against Lee and others. I had no idea the forces opposed to the plan were so well organized."

Sullivan was questioned at length by John A. Fleischli as to the actual amount of work the Finance Committee performed in formulating its report and was asked if he thought a merit system was possible under the present type of organization.

"After 11 years on this board I don't think anything is feasible," Sullivan replied. He added he did not think a merit system would be possible without unit control, a form of organization recommended by the Strayer report under which the Superintendent of Instruction would exercise the principal authority.

Dr. Herbert O. Winterer, asked by Wurdack if he did not remember meeting with other board members to try to perfect a plan for getting rid of Lee, replied with a bitter attack on Lee in which he said he had had "great respect" for Lee until an occurrence at a meeting of the Building Committee last week.

"At that time I asked Mr. Lee an honest question as to why he did not detect the fact we paid 14 union painters above the scale," Dr. Winterer said. "That man hopped on me like I was an elevator boy. Then he lied to me."

Lee produced documents to support the answer he had given Dr. Winterer at the committee meeting, and Dr. Winterer produced papers to support his position. Wurdack attempted to intervene and became involved in a discussion with J. Harry Pohlman, president of the board, who was presiding, in which he accused Pohlman of trying to "shut me off", and in which Pohlman said Wurdack was trying to intimidate him.

Dr. Rudolph Hofmeister, injecting a note of calm, said there had been too much heat and not enough light on the entire subject. He added his experience on the board had convinced him there may be something wrong with the present "hydra-deaded" system. The board then voted to deny Lee's request and to refer the unit control proposal to the present Rules Revision Committee.

The board also adopted a resolution proposed by Dr. Sullivan, permitting Mervyn E. Wiethaupt, secretary-treasurer of the board, also to become secretary of the Board of Trustees of the new pension system if the trustees offered him the post. Wiethaupt has been acting secretary for the trustees.

Toward the close of the meeting, Acting Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey said he was in favor of unit control and that his stand was not occasioned by a desire to "grab power." He said he would like to see an "honest-to-God merit system set up by legislative act, one which cannot be violated by anyone in this city."

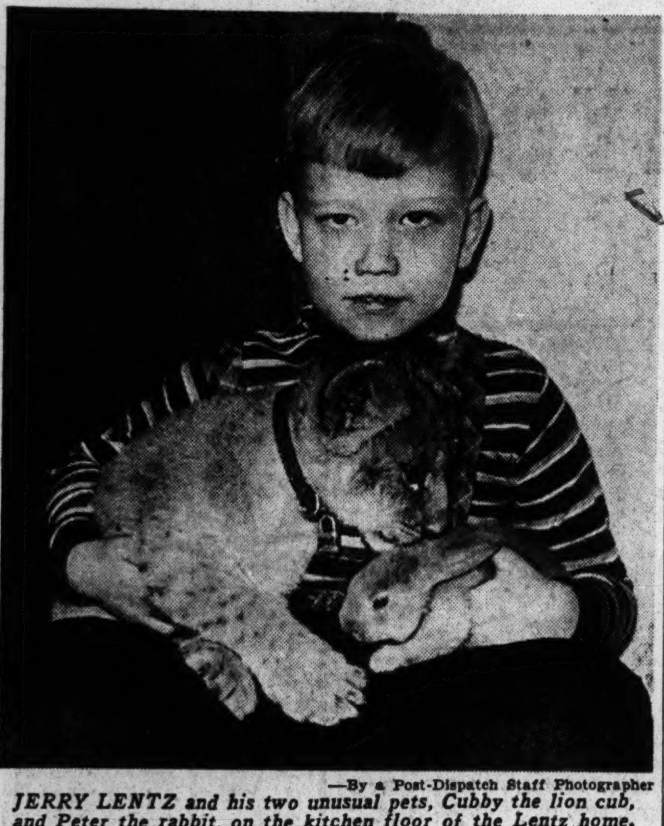
Boy's Cub Lion Taken Back to Zoo To Save the Family Curtains



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer

JERRY LENTZ and his two unusual pets, Cubby the lion cub, and Peter the rabbit, on the kitchen floor of the Lentz home.

Lad's Father Acts Also to Forestall Neighbors' Fears—Youngster Still Has Peter Rabbit as Playmate.

For the past 10 weeks, 5-year-old Jerry Lentz has had an unusual pet, a female lion cub. But yesterday, his father, Moody Lentz, curator of reptiles and superintendent of the mammal division at the Forest Park Zoo, took "Cubby" back to the Zoo to forestall neighbors' fears and save the family furniture and curtains.

Cubby was taken to the Lentz home, 3632 Fillmore street, when it was three days old because of neglect by its mother at the Zoo. Lentz told reporters he thought it would be fun to give his son the cub as a pet until it became too obstreperous.

Before the cub was returned to the Zoo, the boy played with it on the floor of the kitchen while his father said the two "get along like a kid and his dog." On warm days, he said, they chased each other around the back yard.

Jerry, whose other pets, past and present, have included turtles, tortoises, snakes and dogs, admitted he wanted to take Cubby to school, but his father indicated he thought otherwise.

Back at the Zoo, Cubby will have the "run of the reptile house" for the time being, Lentz explained. The cub will sleep in the basement and spend its days in the office with the men until it becomes beyond control, he said. Then it will be moved to the lion cage. Jerry will be taken to play with the cub frequently, his father said.

George P. Vierheller, director of the Zoo, permitted Lentz to "rent out" the cub temporarily when it was discovered that the mother lion, who gave birth to quintuplets some years ago, would not care for the cub. Lentz attributed the mother's unconcern to having passed the normal breeding age.

The cub was nursed on a bottle while at the Lentz home. It's formula contained milk, eggs, phytin, nicotinic acid, yeast and syrup, Lentz said. It weighed three pounds when taken there and 12 pounds when taken away yesterday.

Adults had as much fun playing with the pet as Jerry. But the cub's most recent and closest companion at the Lentz home was Peter, the 4-week-old rabbit, for whom it developed a quick affection.

THOMAS CHARGES PRISON BRUTALITY AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

James V. Bennett, director of the United States Bureau of Prisons.

The committee, consisting of Austin H. MacCormick, executive director of the Osborne Association, a prison reform group; Charles W. Palmer, representing the American Friends (Quaker) Service Committee, and Dr. M. R. King, medical director of the United States Public Health Service, reported the complaints of physical abuse had not been substantiated, but MacCormick and Palmer did find fault with the treatment accorded prisoners who were confined in "strip cells."

Dr. Pescor credited the affidavits obtained by Dr. Thomas to Murphy and Taylor. They were transferred to Springfield from a correctional institution in Danbury, Conn., he said, and for a time were placed in solitary confinement after refusing to work. They were molested in no other way, he added.

Taylor is now working in the prison's medical ward, Dr. Pescor said, and has gained 30 pounds. Murphy, he said, is still not working, but has gained 10 pounds.

LAUNDRY CITES THE TERMINAL IN SMOKE VIOLATION DEFENSE

Recent unofficial relaxing of the city's smoke ordinance for the benefit of the Terminal Railroad Association was cited today in defense of the Colonial Laundry Co., 4016 Olive street, charged with seven smoke law violations last fall.

Defense Attorney Floyd Aker argued in Police Court that, since the ordinance had been relaxed for the railroad, the laundry should not be prosecuted for having used low-grade bituminous stoker coal in a hand-fired furnace. To this, Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro retorted, "Do you feel every case in this court should be dismissed because of that?"

Elkan W. Glauber, head of the laundry, introduced a letter from a stoker manufacturing firm as evidence the laundry had ordered new equipment to replace its worn-out stoker, but had been unable to get delivery. Judge Catanzaro gave the defense until Feb. 23 to present additional evidence that a new stoker was not obtainable.

3 GIRLS RIDING IN JEEP HURT

Three Southwest High School girls who were taking a ride on a jeep as a reward for war bond purchases were injured today when the jeep collided with a delivery truck parked in the 4900 block of Arsenal street.

Marie Ruth Middleton, 16 years old , 2626 Clifton avenue, and Martha Tarantola, 17, 2521 Sublette avenue, suffered back injuries, and Joy Jacquelyn Lewis, 15, 2114 Fordyce place, received a slight head injury. They were treated at City Hospital.

taling $251,700,000. The State has reached 52 per cent of its $38,600,000 goal for series E bond purchases.

Bonds amounting to $83,000 were sold last night at a rally sponsored by the South Broadway Retailers' Association at Soulard Market Auditorium, Eighth street and Lafayette avenue, bringing to $640,000 the total sold by the organization so far in the drive.

TESTIFIES THREAT LED HIM TO SELL RADIO STATION

Ex-Owner Tells House Committee of Deal on WMCA With Former Aid to Harry Hopkins.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Donald Flamm, former owner of New York Radio Station WMCA, told a congressional committee today that a former assistant secretary of commerce had told him, "I will get your station whether you want to sell it or not."

Flamm, testifying before the House committee investigating the Federal Communications Commission, attributed the words to Edward Noble. He said the threat prompted him to reinstate a deal for sale of the station to Noble.

A subpena for Noble, assistant to Harry Hopkins when Hopkins was Secretary of Commerce, will be issued within the next few days, Eugene L. Garey, counsel for the investigating committee, announced.

Noble, who recently acquired the Blue network, bought WMCA in November, 1940, in a transaction which the former owner, Donald Flamm, said he was told was "greased from the White House down."

Garey said subpenas has been issued for Thomas Corcoran, former presidential adviser; William J. Dempsey, former general counsel for the FCC and later counsel for Noble, and Leslie Roberts, former radio executive for the Works Progress Administration. These three, along with David K. Niles, now a presidential aid, were listed by Flamm as having been connected with the transaction in which he sold WMCA despite his unwillingness to do so.

Says He Feared Losing License.

Flamm, who began his testimony yesterday, was recalled to elaborate on his reasons for believing he would have lost his license if he had not made the deal. He would not have sold, he testified, if he had not been convinced that the FCC was ready to transfer his wave length to Noble.

Flamm said he felt the commission was antagonistic to him after a hearing in 1939 involving his broadcasting of intercepted code messages sent out by Germany and Great Britain.

At Niles' suggestion, he said, he engaged Roberts as a "contact man" in Washington. In November, 1940, Flamm told the committee, Dempsey, who had conducted the FCC proceedings against him, offered to purchase WMCA for $750,000 on Noble's behalf and warned Flamm that unless he agreed to the sale, an application would be made to the FCC for transfer to Flamm's frequency to Noble.

Sold for $850,000.

After the price had been increased to $850,000, which Flamm said was $250,000 less than he had been offered by other interests, he agreed to the transaction on the representation of Roberts that "this thing has been greased from the White House down." Roberts' information, Flamm said, came from Niles, who had referred Roberts to Corcoran. Flamm accused Roberts of having been "in on this deal all the way through," and said Dempsey admitted that it was Corcoran who helped him make the connection with Noble.

Garey told reporters he would produce testimony later to indicate that the White House "at first cautioned the FCC to be careful in this transaction but later informed the commission the President didn't care either way."

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation made the arrest on information volunteered by the soldier.

SOLDIER VOTE BILL SENT BY HOUSE TO CONFERENCE

Speaker Rayburn Names Conferees — Senate Passes Measure After Weeks of Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The disputed service vote question was sent to a Senate-House conference committee today for threshing out the Federal-State ballot controversy.

As soon as this action was taken by the House, Speaker Rayburn named the following conferees: Chairman Worley (Dem.), Texas, of the Elections Committee and these committee members: Rankin (Dem.), Mississippi; Bonner (Dem.), North Carolina; LeCompte (Rep.), Iowa, and Ellsworth (Rep.), Oregon.

The Senate, after weeks of debate, passed a bill late yesterday providing for a uniform Federal ballot for service men and women, and sent it to the House, which last Friday had voted emphatically to leave the balloting machinery in the hands of the states.

The bill passed by the Senate also authorizes the use of state ballots.

Representative Rankin (Dem.), Mississippi, leader of the House fight against a Federal ballot, said the Senate action was "unusual and ridiculous" and that the House would never accept "a bobtailed Federal ballot."

One Republican suggested a solution might be based on a proposal by Senator Taft (Rep.), Ohio, that Federal war ballots be used only by service men and women from states that fail to provide for absentee balloting by soldiers and sailors.

The Senate bill would require the military services to make equal effort in delivering state and Federal ballots overseas.

Under the measure, a state, if its absentee balloting procedure is to be considered "adequate," must supply ballots weighing no more than 1.2 ounces, must have them ready for mailing at least 45 days before the election and must waive local registration requirements for residents in the armed services.

Permit Revoked, Then Renewed.

The Board of Public Service granted a new solid fuel dealer's permit yesterday to Joseph Klearman, doing business as the Klearman Coal Co. at 4042 Evans avenue. Klearman's original permit was revoked by the board last Jan. 11 after his conviction in Police Court of violating the city weight certificate ordinance in the delivery of coal to customers.

ANOTHER CURB COLLECTION OF WASTE PAPER MARCH 5

Another curbstone collection of waste paper in St. Louis and in St. Louis County will take place Sunday, March 5, it was announced today by Irwin A. Olian, chairman of the local waste paper salvage committee.

A goal of 1750 tons, or 250 tons more than the amount collected Jan. 23 has been set by the committee. About 375 trucks and 2000 high school students will assist in the collection which will include, in addition to the residential districts, stores and large buildings downtown and in other business areas. They are asked to put out paper Saturday night for the Sunday morning collection.

2 WOMEN ACCUSED IN THEFTS

Petty larceny warrants were issued yesterday against two young women charged with the theft of money and valuables from purses left in the powder room at the U. S. O. center at 3524 Washington boulevard.

The accused said they were Dolores Carrol Street, 19 years old, stenographer, of 6026 North Broadway, and Mary Victoria Robinson, 17, an inspector, 201 South Third street. They were charged also with grand larceny in the theft and forged indorsement of a $35 payroll check.

WARDEN QUITS RATHER THAN TAKE PART IN HANGING

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 9 (AP).—Warden M. F. Amrine of the Kansas State Prison resigned last night rather than supervise an execution which he described as an "evasive action, unworthy of a civilized, progressive state." He handed the resignation to Gov. Andrew Schoeppel shortly after the State's chief executive denied clemency for Fred L. Brady and set April 15 as the date of his death by hanging.

"I do not wish to be a participant when the State turns to the barbarous rite of killing," Amrine said in explaining his opposition to capital punishment.

The execution of Brady, convicted of a holdup murder, will be the first under Kansas law in more than 70 years. From 1872 to 1935 capital punishment was abolished.

NAZI EMBASSY CLERK GOES OVER TO BRITISH

Fugitive From Istanbul Said to Have Valuable Detailed Information.

ISTANBUL, Feb. 9 (AP). — A German who gave himself up to the British several days ago was identified by Allied spokesmen today as Erich Vermehren, clerk to the military attache in the German embassy here and a son of the German author, Petra Vermehren. Vermehren's wife, the former Countess Elisabeth Plettunberg, accompanied. him

The 24-year-old attache and his wife declared they deserted the Germans because they were disgusted with Nazi brutality. He is said to possess detailed information of greatest value. At the German embassy he served directly under Dr. Paul Leverkuehn, assistant military attache in Turkey.

Under investigation by the Gestapo, Vermehren disappeared several days ago. German Ambassador Franz von Papen interrupted a vacation to hurry back to Istanbul in order to direct an investigation of his disappearance.

MECHANICS OF 15 TRUCKING FIRMS VOTE TO GO ON STRIKE

Mechanics in the employ of 15 local trucking firms have voted 91 to 2 to strike because of a wage dispute, the National Labor Relations Board in St. Louis announced today. The strike vote was taken under provisions of the Smith-Connally labor disputes act, which requires a 30-day interval between the strike vote and any strike action.

The men, all members of the A. F. L. International Association of Machinists, District 9, are seeking a 10 cent hourly increase to bring their present rate from 95 cents to $1.05 which, they maintain, is the prevailing rate for mechanics in this area. The strike would affect 116 mechanics.

The vote was taken after the National War Labor Board Trucking Commission failed to grant the men the same wage classifications permitted other mechanics in this area under the revised "sound and tested going wage brackets" set by the regional board in Kansas City.

$100,000 FOR TRUMAN INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Senate voted the Truman War Investigating Committee $100,000 yesterday to continue its work for another year. Previous allowances have totaled $300,000.

Chairman Truman (Dem.), Missouri, said in response to questions that he hoped the committee might be able to conclude its work with the new amount, but did not propose to end its inquiries until war expenditures ceased.

CHURCH PROMISES ITS SANCTUARY TO ALL, VATICAN SAYS

Will Continue to Offer Charity Despite Fascist Arrests in Basilica, Broadcast Says.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The church will continue to offer charity to everyone, the Vatican radio said last night in commenting on a Fascist police raid on St. Paul's Basilica in Rome in which an Italian general and others were seized after seeking sanctuary there.

The Vatican radio declared Monday that by forcing entry into the basilica, the Fascists had violated the Vatican's extraterritorial rights, under which the basilica is not subject to local or state authority, and asserted that a formal protest was made.

The broadcast last night, quoting the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano, mentioned "the hospitality granted to the arrested persons" and emphasized that "charity is for all and rejection and banishment are for none."

The Nazi-controlled Rome radio said Monday that 64 persons were arrested in the raid, including Italian officers, Jews, and youths attempting to evade German labor conscription.

Text of Statement.

The text of the Osservatore Romano statement as broadcast by the Vatican radio follows:

"Stefani (Italian news agency) issued a communique on the arrest of Gen. Monti and other persons in St. Paul's College. The note that was published yesterday (Monday) in the Osservatore Romano made it clear that armed guards calling themselves units of the Republican police did not penetrate into St. Paul's College, which does not exist in Rome, but penetrated by force into buildings of the patriarchal St. Paul's Basilica, violating the rights of extraterritoriality guaranteed by solemn treaty.

"It is necessary to make it clear that if mention is made of trucks found there, it is not correct to refer to them as 'recovered,' for the vehicles were not part of any batch of stolen goods and remained where they were. The same applies to a store of 41, not 300, tires, and of 400, not 6000, liters of gasoline.

"To these factual clarifications, which leave it to public opinion to judge the seriousness and exactitude of all the rest, including flourishes provided by headlines and subtitles that accompanied the exceedingly offhanded reports from the Rome radio and by newspapers, we must add another of a moral character—previously published by us in similar circumstance, though perhaps not so grave as at present—aimed at eliminating any impressions that might arise from the communique and that might be neither objective nor just regarding the hospitality granted to the arrested persons.

'Charity Is for All.'

"It is not paradoxical nor absurd, as we wrote on Dec. 30, that the church and the men of the church should be for all and for no one; charity is for all, and rejection, and banishment are for none. This is what men bound in one way or another to opinions and passions, to contrasting parties, do not understand.

"The law permitting charity—which, it is worth repeating, is above any human constitution, for it comes from God—surpasses the evil wrought by centuries of persecutory legislation. This is a point on which the faithful and the priests will never be able to give in without failing the Scriptures and their consecration to Christ. This is not a secondary point; it is the demarcation line between good and evil.

"Will those who hold honest views allow us to maintain it? Will those who hold practical views on the vicissitudes of life, on the changing fate of all and, as a contrast, on the serene and unchanging charity of every minister of God and can therefore think in relation to themselves and their dear ones, 'today it is my turn, tomorrow it will be yours,' allow us to maintain it?"

JAPS COMPLAIN OF STRAFING OF 'MISSIONARIES' ON BARGES

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP). — The Tokyo radio asserted today that American airmen had killed 58 and seriously wounded 80 missionaries or members of their families in a machine-gun attack against Japanese barges near Wewak, New Guinea, last Sunday.

The "authorities concerned" will soon submit a detailed report to the Vatican about the "inhuman machine-gunning," said the broadcast, which apparently was part of a propaganda campaign touched off by recent Allied disclosures of Japanese war atrocities.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY HOME-RULE PLAN TO BE CONSIDERED

Convention Group to Get Proposal for Self-Government Except for Courts, Elections.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9. — Detailed provisions of a proposal for complete home rule for St. Louis County except in the judiciary and the setting up of election machinery will be submitted to the Constitutional Convention Committee on Local Government today by a subcommittee which has been engaged for more than a month in working out the draft.

As the proposal also applies to Jackson County (Kansas City), Buchanan County (St. Joseph) and Greene County (Springfield), considerable difficulty was had in reaching an agreement satisfactory to representatives of all the counties.

Abandoning original plans to include home-rule provisions applicable to cities, the committee decided merely to amend the present constitutional provision permitting cities of more than 100,000 population to frame their own charters to make it apply to all cities of more than 10,000.

As it is now prepared, the recommendation of the committee would permit St. Louis County and the three others affected to adopt their own charters, which would set up the form of government, fix the number of officers and their salaries, and provide legislative power in a local body which would make all regulations pertaining to public health, police and traffic, building construction and planning and zoning.

The Legislature, which under the present Constitution has complete power to legislate for the counties, would be denied that power in the future. The only county control left to the Legislature would be the enactment of laws governing elections and providing for judicial officers.

Under the proposal the county could have a county manager form of government, a government of municipal type, or any other form it desired.

Jury Proposal Amended.

A controversial proposal destroying the present system for selection of qualified and intelligent jurors for service in St. Louis Circuit Courts, previously approved by the Bill of Rights Committee, was amended by the committee today to restore in part the rights of the jury commissioner to make a pretrial determination of the fitness of prospective jurors.

The proposal, as originally adopted, would have placed in the bill of rights an assertion that all persons over 21 years of age, not otherwise legally exempt from jury duty, would be presumed to be eligible for jury service unless the opposite was shown by examination at the trial.

The amendment approved by the committee would permit deputy jury commissioners to continue to investigate the qualification of prospective jurors at the time they make their annual canvass, preparatory to establishment of the jury list. This will permit elimination of persons who do not have sufficient knowledge of the English language to read or write, who do not understand ordinary court proceedings, who are vagrants or persons of disorderly habits.

The proposal, however, would still prevent the jury commissioner from giving written examinations to members of jury panels as a secondary check on their qualifications.

Wording on Welfare Assailed.

A question as to the extent to which the Constitutional Convention should go in setting out the public welfare policy of the State in the proposed new constitution is presented in a minority report from the Committee on Public Welfare, filed by Dr. Franc L. McCluer, president of Westminster College at Fulton.

Dr. McCluer took sharp issue with the committee report presented by Israel A. Smith of Independence, the chairman.

The main recommendations to which he objected were the enumeration of the public health and public welfare purposes for which the Legislature was authorized to provide, a broad grant of authority to all political subdivisions to provide pensions and other benefits for employes, and a denial to any agency of the State of the right to surrender in any degree the sovereign powers of the State. He also objected to a failure to reject outright a proposal prohibiting the State or any subdivision from accepting any grant of Federal funds accompanied by any restrictions.

The committee recommended a provision authorizing the Legislature "to provide for public health and sanitation, social security, public parks and recreation, pensions and retirements" and "to establish and adequately maintain such educational, charitable and reformatory institutions as the public welfare may require."

It was Dr. McCluer's position that there was no need for the detailed enumeration, and that it would be better constitutional form merely to set out the powers in general terms.

DANGER TO U. S. IN FOURTH TERM, WILLKIE ARGUES

Change Less Disturbing in Wartime Than in Reconstruction Period, He Says on Tour.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Feb. 9 (AP). — The United States' relations with other countries "would be strengthened and clarified through new leadership" in executive positions, Wendell L. Willkie told a public meeting last night. He said this should be "leadership not grown too tired and cynical to lead, leadership less enamored of the panoply and show of power, leadership fresh from the people."

He contended "a change of administration would be less disturbing in wartime than during the period of reconstruction" and asserted that America's welfare "is involved in the Republican party winning the presidency in 1944."

Talks With Boise Leaders.

Willkie carried his tour of the Pacific northwest to Idaho's capital city today, conferring with Republican leaders at Boise. He planned to go on by train tonight to Tacoma, Wash., where he will make a public address Friday.

In his address last night he said he desired to speak not only to those who "recognize the dangers involved in giving the President a fourth term" but also to those who believe "these dangers are outweighed by the advantages that would be ours in this critical period if we continue the unbroken tenure of the present administration."

"Does this mean, then," he asked, "that administrations should never change, because change should not be attempted at any but a placid hour? Such a decision would mean an end of democracy. For you and I will never see in our time a placid hour."

Analyzes Party Makeup.

"I know that there have long been in the Republican party forces which really believe that a political party exists solely for the advancement of private, selfish, material interests," Willkie added, "and who would, if they could, turn back the clock of social progress; that negative and subversive elements flock to the party out of power.

"But I believe that it is demonstrable that every one of these elements is equally prevalent in the Democratic party. But there is a difference—in the Democratic party they are entrenched. . . .

"The Republican party has been out of power for 12 years—chastened by defeat—new leadership has arisen; 90 million Americans now live with satisfaction under the gubernatorial leadership of Republican Governors, and our congressional representation has recently been refreshed with men unhampered by past records, who know that real social progress, once established, cannot be destroyed; that the Republican party must represent the future, not the past."

Willkie Against Proposal to Suspend Election in Wartime.

BOSTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Wendell Willkie has rejected a suggestion of a Boston advertising man that a move be started to suspend the national election this year and that incumbents be "frozen" in office for another year, the Boston Globe said today.

The Globe said that in reply to the proposal of Richard M. Mason, Willkie declared:

"I cannot agree with you that we should forego national elections in wartime. The right of the people to elect their leaders is democracy's greatest test and glory. That is true in critical as well as normal times."

The suggestion was offered to Willkie last July and Willkie's reply was dated Aug. 25.

MRS. PATRICIA GOODBODY

NEW THEORY IN DEATH OF ATTACHE'S WIFE

Policeman Believes Mrs. Williams was Shot Accidentally in Fight With Daughter.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28 years old, daughter of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, describes as "completely absurd and untrue" a police lieutenant's theory that her mother was accidentally killed in her Drake Hotel room Jan. 19 after they had struggled for a revolver.

The latest theory advanced in the killing was given yesterday by Lieut. John Quinn, one of the first officers to arrive at the scene of the crime. It was offered at a five-hour inquest and contradicted previous theories that the shooting was the crime of a mysterious gunwoman.

Quinn's views on the killing were termed "too fantastic," and "ridiculous," by Williams, a State Department attache, and as "fantastic beyond belief" by Mrs. Williams' sister, Mrs. Robert A. Roos. Later, Mrs. Goodbody, who was not present when Quinn testified, asserted:

"Lieut. Quinn's story is completely absurd and untrue. I'm withholding nothing. I've told everything I know that happened. I've told it over and over again."

The officer followed a dozen other witnesses who testified at the inquest. Asked by Coroner A. L. Brodie if he had formed any conclusions about the killing, he said:

"I have. It is my belief that there was a fight between Patricia (Mrs. Goodbody) and her mother, and I do not believe that there was a third party in the room."

Continuing his testimony, Quinn related that Mrs. Williams had taken a gun from a trunk and shot at her daughter, "and Patricia ducked. I think that there was a struggle, and that another shot went wild. I think Mrs. Williams then was shot accidentally."

Police have followed every angle in their investigation and the main theories were those of mistaken identity, robbery or revenge. Quinn's conclusions have not been publicly advanced by any other officer.

Earlier Mrs. Goodbody related incidents about the shooting of her mother. Her testimony varied little from her previous statements to police. She had been given the so-called lie-detector test and had been given a "clean bill" by police. She testified that an unidentified, middle-aged woman, hiding in the bathroom when she entered, fired at her but without effect. The assailant then ran out of the bathroom and fired several more shots at her mother.

The inquest was continued to March 3.

HOTEL GIVEN SIX MONTHS TO CORRECT FIRE HAZARDS

A temporary permit for the operation of the La Salle Hotel, 508 Chestnut street, was granted by the Board of Public Service yesterday on condition that fire hazards and structural defects in the building be corrected within six months. The board last week denied the hotel a permit on recommendation of the Fire Department, which termed the five-story building unsafe. With the temporary permit the board set up 19 specifications which the company must follow in making the property conform to fire prevention and building regulations.

The board denied a permit to the Manhattan Hotel, 1803 Chestnut street, on the ground that the hotel failed to conform to health regulations.

For Repealing Street Opening Act.

The Board of Public Service yesterday recommended repeal of an ordinance providing for the opening of Bancroft avenue from Sulphur avenue to Prague avenue, contingent on passage of an ordinance for opening of Bancroft avenue from Hampton boulevard to Prague avenue. The Boulevard Frontage Co. and the Federer Realty Co. agreed to dedicate to the city the property for the opening of Bancroft between Hampton and Prague on condition that the city keep closed the street between Sulphur and Prague.

Nimitz Says His Object Is to Set Up Bases in China

away and intact as long as possible as a threat to the Allies.

The Japanese bases at Wotje, Mili, Maloelap and Jaluit atolls in the Marshall Islands are strongly held, but they have been made useless by the American occupation of Kwajalein, he said, adding that the enemy will have great difficulty supplying these bases by ship, and to supply them by any other means would be only a drop in the bucket.

He estimated that these four atolls still hold about 10,000 Japanese, some of which are laborers.

"We'll also examine the other atolls," he added.

Wake Island, 594 miles north of Kwajalein, is now useful to the Japanese only as a base from which to conduct searches and make strikes at our Marshall bases, Nimitz said, but it is now also possible for us to hit Wake from Kwajalein by bomber.

He said he believed that the Japanese' capacity to strike by air in the Central Pacific has been greatly reduced by the tremendous toll of air power taken by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's and Adm. William F. Halsey's forces in the Southwest and South Pacific.

"We do not expect much air opposition over the Marshalls," he said. "Also, the softening from our Gilbert Islands bases is continuing against the Japanese positions in the Marshalls which are not yet in our hands."

Nimitz's Visit to Kwajalein.

Details of Adm. Nimitz's visit to Kwajalein on Feb. 5 were reported in a delayed dispatch from War Correspondent Lief Erickson.

Writing from the flagship of the expeditionary force, Erickson quoted Nimitz as saying that the capture of Kwajalein atoll was of great strategic value and will "serve to speed up the tempo" of the Pacific War.

The statement was made at a press conference held by Nimitz, and Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Army commander in the Central Pacific, after inspecting action scenes in the quick capture of Kwajalein.

Nimitz observed that Kwajalein's seizure, with neutralization of the enemy's other bases in the Marshalls, "definitely shortens communications to the South Pacific and the Southwest Pacific."

Distance Major Obstacle.

"The major obstacle in the Pacific," the Admiral continued, "is not so much the Japanese as the distance."

Asked how the tremendously powerful force which carried out the Marshalls operation compared with European amphibious invasions, Nimitz said the European expeditions probably included more ships and troops.

"But the distance we met was much greater," Nimitz commented.

R. Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner, who directed the amphibious operations, laughingly interjected:

"It got shorter this time."

Asked whether invasion of the Marshalls, following up on the conquest of the Gilberts last November, meant that the Pacific war was going to be pushed without waiting for the finish of the European conflict, Nimitz replied:

"I believe the actions speak for themselves. That's another war over there. We are going ahead as fast as we can."

Quick Victory No Surprise.

Answering the question whether he was surprised that the Kwajalein operation would be completed with such dispatch, Nimitz said: "I can't say that I was."

Nimitz exchanged smiling glances with Turner and V. Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, the Navy's Central Pacific commander who bossed the Kwajalein operation.

"I told Spruance it would go like this," continued Nimitz. "I was optimistic enough to hope that it would go like this."

"It is a great pleasure that we did it with such small losses."

Nimitz observed that taking the enemy by surprise was but one element in the success of the operations.

"Primarily it was due to complete planning on the part of every officer and man.

"They were not amateurs when they started. They were chosen for this assignment because they were experienced in combat.

"They have added to their experience, their laurels, and their stature.

"I know we can look forward to their future successes against the enemy.

"That goes for Spruance, Smith (Maj. Gen. Holland M. Smith who commanded the assault troops), Turner, Schmidt (Maj. Gen. Harry Schmidt, commander of the Fourth Marine Division), Corlett (Maj. Gen. Charles H. Corlett, commander of the Army Seventh Infantry division) and on down to the lowliest private in the ranks.

"These forces have been welded into a most capable amphibious team."

On Jap Weaknesses.

Assessing the Japanese strength in the Pacific, Nimitz said he had believed for some time that the enemy's air power, particularly naval air power, now was considerably under its peak.

He pointed out that Adm. Spruance's forces had sunk, at Midway, four carriers used in the Pearl Harbor attack. He continued:

"The Japanese also now are greatly embarrassed for lack of destroyers to escort their supply convoys or to make up an adequate battle fleet," and said it would be difficult for the Japanese to use their other bases in the Marshalls, "even for submarines."

JAPAN REPORTED TURNING OUT 1200 PLANES A MONTH

Enemy Apparently Able to Build Up Reserve Despite Heavy Losses in Pacific Areas.

By WILLIAM FRYE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—An estimate that Japanese factories are turning out aircraft at a rate of 1200 or more a month came from high quarters here today, coupled with a report that the Japanese—like the Germans—are concentrating significantly on defensive types.

This report on Japanese production, about 100 per cent higher than most of the guesses made since Pearl Harbor, would go far to explain the enemy's apparent ability to replace his heavy losses and indicate that his reserve of planes has not been reduced appreciably.

700 Lost in 5 Weeks.

In a little more than a month, from Jan. 1 to Feb. 6, the Japanese lost more than 700 planes in the Pacific—more than 200 of them destroyed on the ground. The greatest destruction was wrought in the South and Southwest Pacific, where Allied airmen in 28 missions during this period demolished 519 enemy planes, 111 of them on the ground at Rabaul and Wewak. In the Marshalls, land- and carrier-based attacks in 29 missions in January destroyed 151 enemy planes, of which 90 were caught on the ground. Thirty-three were shot down in Burma-India and five in China.

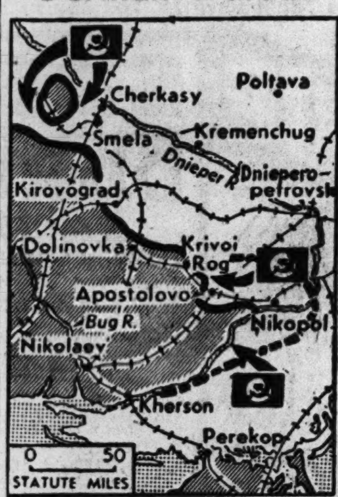
This rate of loss becomes significant in the light of the enemy's dependence on aircraft to hold his outer defense lines. The ability of the United States Navy to move almost at will in the Pacific, strikingly underlined by the seizure of the Marshalls and the shelling of Paramushiro, coupled with growing pressure in the New Guinea-New Britain area, means that the Japanese fleet is virtually confined to "home waters."

Using Nazi Tactics.

And although the Japanese have adopted the German technique of shifting their fighter groups for concentration at points of actual or imminent attack, the system is not working too well for them.

Among the reasons cited for this is the enormous distances involved, which not only multiply supply problems but also require too much time for a shift of forces. Whereas a concentration can be built up rapidly in the smaller area of Western Europe, hours and even days are needed in the Pacific.

German Defeat



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Nikopol recaptured, along with the German bridgehead east of the Dnieper River, the Red Army is driving against Krivoi Rog and continuing the battle to wipe out enemy forces surrounded to the north. Black line indicates the approximate front, the broken line the front five days ago.

REDS ADVANCING ON KRIVOI ROG FROM NIKOPOL

ing, front dispatches said. Tremendous stores of booty were abandoned by the enemy and a Russian communique asserted "the victory has returned to the country one of the largest industrial centers of the Ukraine."

German prisoners were quoted by the communique as saying that Adolf Hitler had ordered the Nikopol bridgehead across the Dnieper, 75 miles long and 21 miles deep, to be held at all costs. Formidable defenses in depth, dominated by heights manned by powerful siege guns, were reduced by the Russian onslaught, which wiped the Germans from their last hold on the east bank of the Dnieper except for positions far to the north above Gomel.

Reporting the bridgehead victory, the communique said the Russians "dismembered enemy troops into sections and . . . routed seven divisions. A large group of Germans was driven to the Dnieper and completely wiped out."

(Neither Gilmore's dispatch nor the Russian communique make any specific mention of the five German divisions previously reported "trapped" in the Nikopol area. The Russians have never said that this force was encircled, only that its rail and road communications were disrupted and the implication of today's omission of mention of the five divisions is that a large part of the force succeeded in escaping down the Dnieper in the direction of Kherson and Odessa by abandoning its equipment).

Other Fronts.

On the Baltic front, troops under Gen. Leonid A. Govorov were driving on the German defense stronghold of Luga, on the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw railway. The Soviet communique said these forces had advanced 10 miles in the last 24 hours against strong enemy resistance. Farther south several towns fell to Gen. M. M. Popov's forces in the Novosokolniki area.

The Russian communique made no mention of developments in the Red Army's drive into Estonia along the coast of the Gulf of Finland or the progress of Russian forces in the Rovno and Luck areas in old Poland.

(The German communique admitted evacuation of the Nikopol bridgehead "after destruction of all military and war industrial installations" and acknowledged that German troops were engaged in "heavy defensive fighting" from the Gulf of Finland to the area of Nikopol. It said Soviet breakthrough attempts were repulsed and local penetrations ironed out.)

"So can your boy be proud of you!"
"You've earned some sort of medal yourself, I'd say, for giving lots of us drivers safe warning. Good thing you kept harping on rationing. You said limited driving couldn't keep clearing out the rank acids always left from combustion; they'd linger and corrode the engine. But you said that plating, of course, wouldn't soon let metals corrode. And you convinced me, all right, about keeping my engine OIL-PLATED with your patented Conoco Nth oil. Now my OIL-PLATED engine is seeing me through, and I say good for you!... helping the home front! They all should know how Conoco Nth gives engines protective OIL-PLATING!"
The how of it is that Conoco Nth motor oil—popular-priced—includes a costly modern synthetic. Its strong "power of attraction" fastens and maintains the OIL-PLATING on inner surfaces. Despite engine inactivity, the unavoidable acids aren't "working right through" the OIL-PLATING, and so the wartime risk of corrosion is cut! The more extras you're doing to hustle the boys home, the more you need your car and Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco Nth. OIL-PLATE today. Continental Oil Company

"There's a Fighting Fleet, too!"
RIGHT you are, Sailor! Fighting fleets are rolling on the Southern Railway these days!
Fleets of freight trains... loaded with guns, jeeps, tanks, planes, and munitions of every sort...with the raw materials to make more...with food, clothes, coal and oil...with everything needed by a nation at war.
Fleets of passenger trains...carrying troops in solid trainloads toward the war fronts...men and women in uniform, going back home on precious furlough trips...government officials and civilians traveling on essential war business.
Yes, these are fighting fleets... fighting the vital home-front battle of transportation. And winning it, too!
Thanks to the loyal cooperation of our shippers and the friendly understanding of our patrons, the Southern's trains are playing an important part in speeding the day of Victory.
When Peace comes, these same fleets of freight and passenger trains will "Serve the South" by hauling the rich commerce of a greater, stronger Southland... more efficiently than ever before, because of the priceless lessons we're learning today.

U. S. JUDGE DUNCAN FREES PRISONER ON A 'GAMBLE'

United States District Judge Richard M. Duncan today said he was willing to "gamble" in suspending sentence in the case of William H. James, a truck driver, who was charged with stealing two women's dresses from an interstate shipment in his truck.

James, who lives at 1541 North Eighth street, and is the father of four children, two of them girls, said he had had several bottles of beer, or he would not have taken the dresses.

In suspending the year and a day sentence, customary in such cases, and placing James on probation for a year, Judge Duncan said, "I'm going to gamble with you and, if I lose, you will pay. If you violate the terms of your probation and are returned to this Court, I will make the sentence two years in the penitentiary."

S. PAC. TO HOLD 46 PCT. OF COTTON BELT STOCK

Under Approved Reorganization Plan Capitalization Will Be Cut to 75 Million.

The Southern Pacific Railroad, owner of about 87 per cent of the voting stock of the Cotton Belt Railroad, would receive about 46 per cent of the stock under a reorganization plan drawn up by the Interstate Commerce Commission and approved yesterday by United States District Judge George H. Moore.

Under the reorganization plan, which has been under consideration for more than nine years, the equities of holders of common and preferred stock would be wiped out and $8,243,764 in creditors' claims would be left unsatisfied.

Capitalization of the road would be cut from $105,946,995 to $75,000,375 and annual fixed interest charges would be reduced from $3,159,045 to $1,513,731.

Under the plan for distribution of new stock and bonds, the Southern Pacific would receive $4,355,844 in consolidated mortgage bonds, $7,213,447 in 5 per cent preferred stock and $10,351,672 in common stock, a total amounting to $21,920,963, or 93.5 per cent of its total claims.

One-half of the total capitalization proposed would be funded debt, one-quarter preferred stock and one-quarter common stock. The plan contemplates leaving the first mortgage and other underlying mortgages undisturbed.

New securities to be issued are a single bond issue and the preferred and common stock. The bond issue would be a 4 per cent consolidated mortgage on the physical assets of the road, to be due in 1992, covering in general the combined liens of the several bond issues to be retired under the plan and subject to liens of the undisturbed securities.

Cotton Belt stock issues having a par value of more than 37 million dollars were suspended from dealings by the New York Stock Exchange today. Stocks dropped from the list involved the outstanding 171,861 shares of common and 198,936 shares of 5 per cent noncumulative preferred, each with a par value of $100. In last transactions on the Stock Exchange, a few days ago, Cotton Belt common sold at $3.62 a share and preferred at $6.75. High for the common this year was $4.50 and for preferred $7. In 1929 the common reached a high of $115 and preferred $94.

HULL TO TAKE REST IN FLORIDA; MORE HELP WILL BE GIVEN HIM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Secretary of State Hull said today he would leave tomorrow for a rest in Florida.

The appointment of two or three new assistant secretaries of state may be announced in his absence, he said, explaining that the pressure of work has become so heavy that the department requires additional assistance.

AMERICANS HIT NEW BLOWS IN THE MARSHALL ISLES

made mention as to location of the other attacks.

Meanwhile, airfields on Roi and Kwajalein Islands in Kwajalein atoll are being swiftly repaired and modernized to send planes daily against Marshall bases, already largely neutralized and virtually stripped of air cover.

Based at Kwajalein's spacious lagoon, a large and as yet unchallenged fleet—not even attacked by enemy submarines — was alert against enemy attempts to aid endangered Marshall garrisons.

The announcement by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz on the fighting on Kwajalein atoll said simply that "organized resistance has ceased and its capture and occupation have been completed."

There still was no mention of ground action on the extreme western portion of the atoll, in the Ebadon Island area. It was assumed this had been cleaned out by Fourth Division Marines who originally landed in the Roi-Namur sector to the north.

Nimitz's statement that "organized resistance" had ended indicated individual Japanese probably still were holding out in dugouts and sniping positions. Their presence, however, was only a minor mopping-up problem.

At Tarawa, in the Gilberts, Japanese were pulled from holes weeks after organized resistance had ceased.

13 JAPANESE PLANES DOWNED AT RABAUL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 9 (AP).—Allied airmen have shot down 13 more Japanese planes over Rabul, New Britain, making it 111 enemy aircraft reported destroyed there so far this month.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said Mitchell medium bombers and Liberator heavies, with fighter cover—more than 150 planes—struck Lakunai airdrome Sunday with 124 tons of bombs. The planes were from Adm. William F. Halsey's bases in the Solomon Islands.

It was the seventh raid on Rabaul since Feb. 1 and the fifth on Lakunai Field. One pilot commented, "that runway is in a hell of a mess."

Airdrome repair shops and revetments were blown up or set afire.

Sixty Japanese fighters were in the air, forewarned by the knowledge that the Allied air force has been coming over daily at about noon.

In addition to the 13 enemy planes positively accounted for, the attackers chalked up 10 probables. Damage to Allied craft was minor, the communique said.

Other air operations reported in today's communique were minor, adverse weather hampering activities.

Japanese planes attacked American invasion positions at Arawe and Cape Gloucester, New Britain, some soldiers and natives being wounded at Arawe. The communique said the attacks were ineffective.

Allied aircraft harassed Japanese barge points along the coast of Bougainville Island in the Solomons, while light naval forces sank a large barge off Green Island, north of Bougainville.

A total of 594 Nipponese aircraft were destroyed in the air in January against Allied losses of 119. The figures, covering the Central, South and Southwest Pacific, were disclosed today by a compilation of official reports of the aerial warfare in those areas.

Another 80 Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and probably 192 more in the air.

Of the total Japanese losses in January, more than 400 planes were destroyed at Rabaul alone. Allied losses there were 78 planes.

HERE'S A SLICE OF YOUR FUTURE

★ Paper is cheap,
But people put a lot of store
By five and ten dollar bills.
What makes them worth it?

Look: "The United States of America will pay
FIVE DOLLARS" or "TEN DOLLARS."

That's what makes them worth it.
Well a bond is something like
Just a bigger bill—
But better!

Lose a bill . . .
Can you prove it's yours?
It's different with a bond.
Burn a bond, lose it,
Have it stolen—and you'll
Still get your money.
For it's registered
In your name
And Uncle Sam will pay!

While you cling to a five spot
It doesn't do you any good.
You have to get rid of it
To get anything out of it.
But not a bond!
While you hold your bond
Interest fattens it for you,
And for your future.
A bill is just a bill,
But a bond is alive,
A growing, rosy, cozy,
Slice of future.
Your future!

It's part of a new automobile,
A trip to Africa,
A new fur coat,
A month's vacation,
A television set,
A family plane,
A modern bathroom,
A new screened porch,
An operation for mother,
New teeth for dad,
College for the kid,
Or whatever you want.
It's a slice of your future,
Planted to grow.

But a bond is still more.
It's vital, telling war—
War on your enemies.
And it's duty and privilege.
It's planes and hot lead,
Carriers, destroyers, and fire.
And it's Godspeed home for boys
Whose sacrifices shame us all.

So out with your slacker dollars!
Out from the dark corners
Ferret and whip your money.
Out from all neutral places
And enlist it in fighting bonds!

E. L. KUHS TO GET FEE ON COLUMBIA BOTTOMS

Ex-Alderman Acts for Some Holders of Land in 3000-Acre Airport Site.

Edward L. Kuhs, St. Louis real estate dealer, will represent a group of Columbia Bottoms property owners in the city's negotiations for acquisition of the 3000-acre tract recommended as the site for a second major airport.

Kuhs, a former Alderman, whose home is on the river bluffs overlooking the airport site, has a contract by which he will receive a 5 per cent fee on sale of his clients' properties. He said he had not solicited the business, his representation having been sought by the property owners, with most of whom he had done business before.

Property owners in the group include Henry Rosenkoetter, Clarence Kurt, Ed Vogelsang and William Kunz. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment has appointed William Bernard, real estate dealer, to act as the city's agent in negotiating with property owners.

Albert E. Schaefer, a North St. Louis real estate dealer, was appointed a city appraiser for the Columbia Bottoms property yesterday by the Board of Estimate. He replaced Joseph Koehr, who resigned after he had been expelled from the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange. Schaefer, who lives at 3963 Palm street, is a former president of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association.

KOL-TONE FIRM STILL OFFERS SPRAY FOR BITUMINOUS COAL

The Kol-Tone Manufacturing Co. is still offering for sale a chemical spray for treatment of bituminous coal, its attorney, Jerome F. Duggan, told the Post-Dispatch today. The Federal Trade Commission has ordered the firm to cease representing that the spray increases the efficiency of coal, causes coal to produce more heat or results in any saving in fuel costs.

The Post-Dispatch described the firm as defunct in an item Jan. 27, which said erroneously that the commission had ordered Gus H. Cohn, head of the concern, to cease selling the chemical spray.

AFL MEN ON WLB URGE LITTLE STEEL POLICY BE REVISED

4 Assert Workers 'Can't Rely on Price Control to Preserve Living Standards.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The four American Federation of Labor members of the War Labor Board today declared the nation's workers "cannot rely upon price control as it now functions to preserve their standards of living" and again petitioned the board to revise upward the Little Steel formula limiting wage increases to 15 per cent of the rates of Jan. 1, 1941.

The four petitioners — George Meany, Matthew Woll, Robert Watt and James Brownlow — asked the board to request President Roosevelt to "modify realistically" an executive order limiting increases to the Little Steel formula "as heretofore defined by the National War Labor Board for the rise in the cost of living between Jan. 1, 1941, and May 1, 1942."

They asked also that employers be allowed to apply the increases without obtaining approval from the WLB.

The AFL members called attention to recent investigations by the labor members of the President's cost-of-living committee whose report indicated living costs have risen 43.5 per cent since January, 1941, or almost twice the amount shown by the Department of Labor cost-of-living index.

"One inescapable conclusion" can be made, they said, from both the official and the unofficial estimates of the increase in the cost of living: "The workers of America cannot rely upon price control as it now functions to preserve standards of living. The only recourse left to workers is to obtain wage rate increases which will adequately compensate them for the ever widening disparity between wage rates and prices."

Lloyd K. Garrison, who has been executive director and general counsel of the WLB, was appointed by Roosevelt today to be a member of the board representing the public. He succeeds Wayne L. Morse, who resigned.

Roosevelt also named four alternate public members to the board, corresponding to alternate members representing labor and industry. They were Edwin Wittie of Detroit, Frank V. Morley of New York, Dexter Keezer of Portland, Ore., and Lewis M. Gill of Cleveland.

CONNETT APPOINTED TO HIGHWAY BOARD

Banker Succeeds Charleston Man as a Democratic Member.

William C. Connett, a vice-president of the First National Bank, and recently chairman of the St. Louis Housing Authority, will serve as a member of the State Highway Commission for a term ending Dec. 1, 1945. Gov. Forrest C. Donnell announced his appointment yesterday, to succeed H. G. Simpson of Charleston, resigned, as one of the two Democratic members of the highway body.

Connett, 65 years old, was widely known as an all-around athlete in his student days at the University of Virginia. He is a graduate of that institution and of St. Louis Law School of Washington University. In 1907 he was appointed secretary to Mayor Rolla Wells. Ten years later he was the Democratic nominee for Mayor against Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who was re-elected.

He headed the St. Louis Relief Committee in the depression years 1935-37. Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann appointed Connett to the chairmanship of the Mullanphy Board, administering travelers' relief, and in 1939 to the chairmanship of the Housing Authority, which planned and built the Carr Square and Clinton-Peabody housing projects. His term and membership expired last year.

Connett was president for 1942 of the United Charities, predecessor of the War Chest. He lives at 4422 Lindell boulevard. The other members of the Highway Commission are: George H. Davis of Kansas City, Republican, chairman; E. N. Meador of Cassville, Republican, and Baxter B. Bond of Hannibal, Democrat.

O. W. NOLEN TO RUN AGAINST L. N. SEARCY

Paris (Mo.) Man to Seek Democratic Nomination for Attorney General.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—Olliver W. Nolen of Paris, Monroe County, formerly an assistant Attorney General of Missouri, today entered the Democratic primary as a candidate against former State Senator Lemuel N. Searcy of governorship-steal fame for the nomination for Attorney General.

Nolen filed his formal declaration of candidacy in the office of Secretary of State today. Thus far, he and Searcy are the only Democratic candidates for the office.

Nolen served eight years as an assistant under Attorney General McKittrick, resigning last year to return to private practice. Previously he was Prosecuting Attorney of Monroe County two years. He is 48 years old and has practiced law for 20 years.

As assistant Attorney General he successfully defended the constitutionality of the Missouri sales tax and prepared the rules and regulations for its administration. He wrote 600 legal opinions, a record for one assistant in that length of time. He established a record as a successful prosecutor, having been assigned to conduct the prosecutions in many criminal cases when local officials asked for state assistance.

In announcing his candidacy he said it would be his purpose, if elected, to conduct the office of Attorney General "as a law office, and not as a political office."

"I will advise with and co-operate with the executive officers of the state," he said. "I will not play politics with the office. It will be my purpose to give the best legal advice of which I am capable to those officers who call upon me."

Nolen comes from a heavily Democratic section of the state, the Democratic proportion of the vote in Monroe County being the largest of any county. It is in the section frequently referred to as "Little Dixie."

RECONVERSION PLAN WITH CONGRESSIONAL ADVISERS OFFERED BY SENATE GROUP

Sets Up Demobilization Director Appointed by President for Two-Year Term, and Who Would Consult With Joint House and Senate Committee.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.

ASSERTING that demobilization problems are "so transcendent that the economic destiny of this country may well depend on their proper solution," the Senate special committee on Postwar Economic Policy and Planning today reported a detailed plan for cancelation of war contracts, reconversion of industry from war to peace and the disposal of military surpluses.

The committee recommended the establishment, by statute, of an Office of Demobilization, headed by a director, who would be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate for a two-year term. This director would be authorized to select deputy directors, each of whom would be in charge of contract cancellations, plant reconversions and surplus property disposal and such other unit as may be necessary.

These three or more deputy directors would also be members of a full-time advisory board "composed of the ablest men whose services can be secured, whom the director can constantly call upon for advice and assistance."

In addition to this board, there would be created a joint congressional committee of three Senate and three House members "to confer with the director on matters of broad general policy, and to whom he should report not less frequently than every 30 days on all general policy decisions made by him."

A Novel Plan.

This congressional committee, any of its members or any of its designees, would be authorized to attend all meetings of the Director's Board. This is a novel plan, and while the director would be selected by the President, he would have to consult with and report to Congress.

"The Office of Demobilization," the report said, "should be supreme in all matters relating to industrial reconversion to peace, except that, so long as hostilities continue, it should be subordinate to the Office of War Mobilization and should co-ordinate all of its activities with other agencies through that office, keeping the Director of War Mobilization constantly advised of those activities.

"It should not be an operating agency, as all of the evidence before this committee indicates that the actual carrying out of plans can best be handled by agencies already established, under the over-all policies laid down by the Office of Demobilization. It, however, should have the power to set up its own administrative machinery, or to supplement the administrative machinery of existing agencies in any case in which the existing agency fails to follow its direction or has inadequate manpower for the job assigned to it."

Byrnes, Baruch Silent.

Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the special committee, filed the committee report today. At a press conference yesterday, he disclosed that War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and his special adviser, Bernard M. Baruch, had declined to comment on a tentative report, although they had testified before the committee. Byrnes and Baruch, George said, had taken the position that they had no authority to participate in the making of legislative policy.

Baruch is writing his own program for the postwar transition period, which is expected to cover many of the same problems as the committee report. He expects it to be ready within about two weeks.

In addition to recommending an independent central agency which would report to Congress every three months, the committee report advocated "general policies" and outlined the detailed procedures for contract cancellation, plant reconversion and surplus disposal. As to the last-named proposals, a committee spokesman described the report as "recommending the handling of Government funds more loosely than ever before in the world." This had been recommended, he said, in order to get business back on a peacetime basis. The policies advocated were in accord with the present fear in Congress of Government ownership or control of industry. The first policy recommendation was:

"The paramount consideration in the handling of all demobilization problems should be the preservation and strengthening of the American system of free competitive enterprise. All war plants and war surpluses should be handled by the demobilization agency so as to promote such enterprise."

Re-employment.

Next in order was: "Every action taken should be controlled by the compelling necessity of getting American business on a full employment basis with the minimum possible delay. The dollar value to the Government of the things dealt with should not be lost sight of, but its consideration should not interfere with the accomplishment of this objective."

The committee also recommended that authority be expressly withheld from any agency to dispose of Government-owned plants in basic industries where the governmental holding of those plants were sufficient to exert a preponderant influence on the future course of that industry. In this category, the report said, were airplane factories, rubber, aluminum and magnesium plants, shipyards, pipelines and steel mills.

"The use or disposal of these plants in these industries," the report said, "may well have to be correlated with the nation's foreign policy, and Congress should expressly legislate further in regard to them."

It was explained that this passage meant that the committee was unwilling to delegate to one man whether, for instance, the United States would stay in the synthetic rubber business.

On Monopolies.

The committee also held that no Government plant should be disposed of in a manner to create a monopoly or encourage monopolies. As to surplus properties, the committee said that wherever practicable small purchasers should be favored.

There had been a discussion in the committee on the disposal of surpluses abroad and a bar against re-importation of military goods into this country. The compromise was in these words:

"Any surpluses that cannot be absorbed in this country within a reasonable time without disrupting the economy should be sold abroad, where this can be done without also unduly disrupting the domestic economy."

Defending its proposal for the immediate payment of Government funds on the cancellation of contracts and for reconversion programs, the policy statement said:

"The shutting down of factories, the stoppages of work and the unemployment of workers through delays in contract settlement will cause far greater loss of revenue to the Government — to say nothing of the general economy—than could possibly be saved through conventional preaudit of contractors' claims. The prime requisites in the settlement of such claims are speed and fairness, and these should not be sacrificed in an effort to detect latent fraud prior to settlement, but the most complete adequate machinery should be set up for post-audit to detect and punish fraud."

The report pointed out that during the last two years approximately 10,000 prime contracts had been canceled and that the average time for settlement was six to eight months.

Million Army Contracts.

It also noted that Under Secretary of War Patterson had testified that when hostilities ceased the Army alone would cancel 10,000 prime contracts, which in turn would result in the cancellation of a million important subcontracts.

"There will be no war contracts to substitute at that time," the report observed. "The factories holding those contracts provide employment for a majority of the workers in manufacturing industries and indirectly provide employment for many millions in the distributing industries. To avoid disastrous unemployment totals the period of cessation of work in those factories must be kept to an absolute minimum."

As the magnitude of the postwar task, the report said:

"Regardless of any governmental plans that may be made for publicly-financed construction programs and similar work programs, the question whether or not this country has an intolerable unemployment situation will depend upon the speed with which private industry can be reconverted to peace. The Brookings Institution, in its study of postwar re-employment, concludes: 'A state of reasonable full employment at the end of the transition period would be realized with an employment level of 54 millions. This would mean an increase of employment over 1940 of about eight millions, or, roughly, 17 per cent.'

"Based on War Manpower Commission estimates, the same report concludes that if the war continues there will be employed in December, 1944, outside the armed forces, approximately 50 million people. This leaves four million additional who must find employment outside the armed forces. It must be borne in mind that this is a greater number of people than have ever been employed in private industry before in America. The problem of getting these people to work will be difficult enough without complicating it by having factories remain idle because they cannot get their plants cleared of war inventories and Government machinery and their canceled war contracts settled."

Settlement Plans.

To reach the objective of full employment, the report recommended a complicated program which, in effect, would stop the arm's-length bargaining between Government agencies and private contractors. It also called for a review system under which the contractor could choose between

Uproar Likely In Canada Over McNaughton

Army Chief Challenges Explanation He Resigned Because of Health.

By VICTOR GORDON LENNOX
London Correspondent of the Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Foreign Service—Now on Vacation in the United States.

(Copyright, 1944.)

LT. GEN. ANDREW (ANDY) G. L. McNAUGHTON'S refusal to indorse the Canadian Government's announcement that he has given up command of Canada's forces in Britain because of "prolonged ill health" promises to provoke a Parliamentary debate in Ottawa with possible intracommonwealth repercussions unless Premier W. L. Mackenzie King acts with conspicuous courage and frankness.

Using a well-understood formula, the Canadian Government attributed McNaughton's retirement to ill health in order to avoid just the type of controversy which has now been provoked by his challenge. "Andy" insists he is perfectly fit and demands that those responsible for stating the contrary establish the basis for their announcement.

That McNaughton, organizer of Canada's World War II Army and its commander in Britain for over four years, had "resigned" was first disclosed in press dispatches from England Dec. 27. It was stated then that Lt. Gen. Stuart, Chief of Staff at Ottawa of the Canadian Army, would take over until a regular successor was chosen. McNaughton arrived in Canada Feb. 3 and immediately declared in an Ottawa interview that "I am very fit."

"Given a Bowler Hat."

It is difficult to see how the Canadian Government can justify its statement without declaring frankly what led it to its conclusion that Gen. McNaughton was not fit. Not fit, that is, to continue command of Canadian forces overseas.

In simple military parlance, McNaughton, after careful and anxious consideration in Ottawa, was "given a bowler hat." And the present trouble arises from the fact that "Andy" did not find that hat big enough.

Because he has been built up in Canada as a national leader of exceptional brilliance, who is mainly responsible for the existence today of a first-class Canadian Army, McNaughton's enforced retirement may be seized by the parliamentary opposition as a stick with which to beat the Mackenzie King administration. There are signs already that intracommonwealth feelings will be stirred up if the complete exposure sought by some oppositionists should materialize.

A dramatic aspect concerns McNaughton's relations with Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, British invasion force commander. Several months ago the British press carried rumors that McNaughton would be retired because he could not see eye to eye with Montgomery.

Change Toward McNaughton.

As a war correspondent stationed in Britain until recently, I can state that the British high command was highly impressed with McNaughton when he first went to Britain, in 1939, to take command of Canadian forces.

There came a change of heart a year ago when invasion exercises were held off the British coast last March. It became impossible to escape the conclusion that this former scientist McNaughton, for all his excellence, might not prove an inspired director of tactical operations in the field.

It is true that those exercises were designed to try out new methods of army-air support as evolved in North Africa by Montgomery and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder (now Gen. Eisenhower's deputy). Those methods were finally accepted as the basis for army-air co-operation in all future Anglo-American offensive operations.

But in view of the suggestion that McNaughton has been retired because he cannot get on with Montgomery, it is fair to recall that Montgomery has only recently been brought from Italy to command British troops for the invasion of Western Europe and that he was actually attacking the Mareth line when McNaughton signed his own retirement order.

One-Army Issue.

Now that public discussion seems inevitable, it is possible that Premier Mackenzie King will tear to shreads the rumor which long credited him with attaching a special condition to the sending of Canadian troops to Britain: That the troops should be employed only for defense of the British Isles or for French liberation via a western invasion. That report persisted in London in 1941 through 1943 and has been denied strenuously in Canadian political circles.

It now appears that the real obstacle to Canadian troops being sent to other theaters was none other than McNaughton. He is said to have had an overweening personal ambition to build up a single Canadian army in Britain under his own command and to have opposed every suggestion that these battle-hungry warriors be sent to other, more active theaters.

Obviously, it is not mere coincidence that McNaughton's retirement comes during a time when Canadian forces have been sent to Italy, where for two months they have been gaining distinction with the Eighth Army on the Anglo-American right flank.

It is also no secret that the Mackenzie King government, like others that have held office throughout the war, and longer, now is under heavy fire. The opposition may seize eagerly on what seems an excellent chance to claim that the Government is undermining Army morale by kowtowing to the United Kingdom.

While it is evident to any impartial observer that the facts do not justify an attack on Mackenzie King's government on this particular issue, it is also a fact that the McNaughton myth is widely believed in uninstructed circles. Canadian editorial writers find it difficult to speak plainly on such a delicate issue, but the bulk of the Canadian press, including responsible publications, insist that the matter calls for a frank statement on the part of the Government.

Meanwhile, the British Government maintains silence on a subject which many informed Canadians know is purely a Canadian domestic issue. Indeed, it is presumable that that is what the bulk of the Canadian people wish, since it is evident that Canada today feels strongly that after this war its own individual voice should be heard in international councils more loudly and clearly than ever in its history.

BAGS TWO NAZIS, LEADS U. S. PILOTS IN EUROPE WITH 18

Maj. Walter Beckham Now Is Foremost Ace; Another Flyer Claims Four in Day.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP).—Maj. Walter G. Beckham of De Funiak Springs, Fla., shot down two more Nazi planes yesterday to become the leading United States ace in the European theater of operations with a total of 18, eight short of the Capt. Edward Rickenbacker's World War I record of 26.

Until yesterday Maj. Beckham was tied with Capt. Walker M. Mahurin of Fort Wayne, Ind.

"It is just a case of being in the right place at the right time," he said.

Lt. James M. Morris, Detroit, yesterday became the first American fighter pilot in the European theater to claim destruction of four German planes in one day.

For good measure the 23-year-old flyer shot up a locomotive after his various aerial combats.

Piloting a Lighting, Morris first downed a Messerschmitt-109. Then he got two Focke-Wulf-109s during a dogfight alongside other members of his squadron. After turning home alone, he sent another ME-109 spinning to earth.

His claim to a record is subject to official confirmation.

NEW PLEA BY GEN. SEYDLITZ FOR NAZI SURRENDER REPORTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Walter von Seydlitz, German artillery officer captured by the Russians at Stalingrad last year, has appealed to all German officers and soldiers on the eastern front to surrender to the Red Army, according to a Moscow broadcast.

Echoing the appeal he made last Saturday night from Moscow to members of 10 German divisions trapped southwest of Cherkasy, Von Seydlitz last night broadcast a plea to his former comrades-in-arms to "come over to the side of the Free Germany National Committee," save their own lives and help create "a truly free and really independent Germany."

Von Seydlitz, president of the Soviet-sponsored Union of German Officers, is also vice-president of the "Free Germany National Committee" in Moscow.

RUBBER INVASION BOATS

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Invasion boats of synthetic rubber, capable of carrying 10 men with full equipment, are being produced in quantity by the United States Rubber Co., the company announced yesterday.

The boats, being constructed at the company's Woonsocket, R. I., plant, are designed to glide noiselessly in shallow water. They are equipped with quick release towing bridles so they may be towed by fast boats and then released as they near shore.

Argentine Paper Resumes.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 9 (AP).—The pro-Nazi newspaper El Pampero, which was closed by the Argentine Government Jan. 27 for criticising the rupture of relations with Germany and Japan, was re-established yesterday under the name of El Federal.

BADOGLIO DECREE REPEALING ALL RACIAL LAWS REPORTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—The Bari radio said last night that the Italian Government of Premier Pietro Badoglio published a decree abrogating "all racial laws promulgated by the Fascists," and restored "all civil and political rights to Italian citizens of Jewish race."

"Measures depriving Jews of citizenship and former state employes of their posts have been annulled," according to the domestic broadcast, reported by the U. S. foreign broadcast intelligence service.

Interpreting The War News

8th ARMY LIKELY TO STRIKE SOON

By MAJ. GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

(Copyright, 1944.)

WE have just had another lesson, from Italy, to teach us the difficulty, almost the impossibility, of stopping traffic on a railway line by bombing. Despite a truly terrific pounding of the railway junctions and yards south of Rome, and of key railway points throughout North Central Italy, the Germans have managed to move reinforcements down to the beachhead area south of Rome. Our air power did win us delay, however; it took two weeks for the Germans to bring the 715th Division from Southeastern France, and the S. S. troops from Germany, whereas without the bombings of the railways these might have arrived in four or five days. (Incidentally, it is possible that "715" is not the number of a division, but only that of a regiment. It is a much higher number than any I have previously seen attributed to a German division.)

At all events, the initial German counterattacks on our beachhead have failed, which suggests that our troops did not waste the time our air men won for them, but dug in very thoroughly indeed. One correspondent on the spot, whose early dispatches suggested that precious opportunities were being wasted because mobile columns were not being sent dashing ahead into Rome or at least to the railway junctions south of the city, now says more soberly that it is clear that any troops sent out for such a purpose would have been lost. In the successful accomplishment of the landing, it was inevitable that many of those taking part should have been impatient with a "dig in and consolidate" policy; but perhaps it will pay better in the end.

Good Port Needed.

The Germans will, very certainly, try again. They will probably do so as soon as a few more troops have filtered down from the north through the precarious routes at which our bombers are still striking whenever weather permits. But there seems to be reason for confidence that the beachhead will hold. If so, then shall we see it heavily reinforced, and see a decisive advance across

Welles Says Polish Border Issue Should Be Settled for Sake of Unity

Tides of War Creating Situations Which, if Permitted to Drift, Might Jeopardize Aim of Lasting Peace, He Asserts.

By SUMNER WELLES
Former Under Secretary of State

FROM the time of our entrance into the second World War, our Government has officially maintained the position that all decisions regarding territorial readjustments in Europe should be postponed until after the war is won.

For many reasons this had seemed the wiser and the safer course to take.

From a purely military point of view, to raise during the war questions which are in the highest degree controversial, which probably involve differences of policy between the major members of the United Nations, and which are calculated to arouse deeply emotional passions on the part of many of the occupied peoples, can only endanger military unity and increase the problems and risks of military strategy.

Moreover, here in the United States there are great numbers of citizens closely bound by ties of origin to the European peoples most directly involved, and the debating of such problems during the war must inevitably create internal controversy and bitterness to the detriment of national unity, which is all-important when every energy of the nation must be dedicated to the war effort.

These are considerations of the greatest weight. They cannot be lightly brushed aside.

War Forcing Issue.

But, notwithstanding our own legitimate reasons for desiring postponement, these questions have nevertheless been very forcefully raised in recent weeks.

The problem which confronts us today is whether the permanent interests of this country will not be better served by recognizing that the force of present circumstances is such as to make it imperative that at least certain of these decisions be made now, without further delay.

For the tides of war are moving, and moving fast, and with them they are bringing accomplished facts and creating established positions.

Short of some altogether unexpected development, upon the defeat of Germany, Soviet forces, which will so largely have contributed to that defeat, will be in occupation of what was prewar Poland. The Soviet government has announced with great clarity and vigor what it has determined the eastern frontiers of the future Poland must be.

What the United States seeks is to win the war, to obtain a peace founded upon the principles of wisdom and of justice set forth in the Atlantic Charter, and to participate in the creation of an international organization which will prevent the recurrence of war and insure world order and progress.

Danger of Drifting.

If the present situation is permitted to drift, if any real break is allowed to develop between the major powers of the United Nations, the achievement of the latter two objectives is inevitably jeopardized.

The highest qualities of statesmanship are required on the part of our own Government in order that the issues involved in such questions as the determination of the frontiers of the future Poland shall not be permitted either to impair that closer relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States, which the President has so greatly helped to construct, or endanger the existence of that unity among the United Nations without which no lasting and successful international organization can be born.

Fortunately, there are certain basic factors which are favorable

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Lawyer Dissents

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am not in sympathy with the recent editorial which criticised the dissenting opinion of Justices Roberts and Frankfurter in the seaman's compensation case. I know nothing about the merits of the case, not having read either the majority or the dissenting opinion. I accept the facts as they are briefly stated in the editorial.

Our jurisprudence consists of constitutions, the common law and statutory laws. By constitutional provisions, the several states adopted the common law then in existence as the law of the land. Of course, statutes were enacted only after constitutions were first adopted. The common law consists of certain English statutes and decisions of English and American courts as they existed prior to the adoption of our several constitutions.

The oath of a Judge binds him to uphold the constitutions and the laws. His function is to apply and interpret them —not to make a new constitution or to make new laws. Whether he approves or disapproves of a given law is immaterial. His is not the function to determine its wisdom. The disregard of a suitable common law precedent is tantamount to a refusal to apply a duly enacted statute. Both are the law, equally "sacrosanct," to borrow your term. Under our system (former?), the power to make and change laws is vested exclusively in the legislative branch.

The disregard of precedent would give every Judge the right to decide a case according to his personal concept of justice. We would have as many kinds of law as there are variations in human nature. We would no longer have a society governed by rules, wise or unwise.

Consider a specific example with which you are somewhat familiar. Some years ago, you published an editorial criticising Judge Rowe. In doing so, you relied on the law for immunity to contempt and libel. The law you relied on was not made by the Legislature. It consisted entirely of precedents. You were cited for contempt and fined by Judge Rowe. He applied the law according to his concept of justice. He thought (sincerely, I believe, but the point is more effective if we would assume he was insincere) that you were guilty and he acted accordingly. You felt aggrieved and appealed.

On appeal you sought to justify your conduct on the ground that you acted according to legal precedent. The Supreme Court agreed and exonerated you. Had that court ruled otherwise, do you think you would have dared to write the editorial concerning the seaman's case? In it, please remember, you go so far as to impugn the motives of the dissenting Judges by suggesting they were irked by the action of their colleagues in the flag-salute case.

If the law as it existed prior to the decision of the Supreme Court in the seaman's case was unfair according to your standards, why don't you criticise Congress for not having changed it?

The Great Guessing Game

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

After reading all the instructions for making out my 1943 income tax, I have discovered that it is really very simple. All you have to do is merely take your 1942 tax, add the number of days in the year and divide the total by your age on your last birthday. After you have done this, add to this total the number of people who won't move to the rear of the street car and multiply by the total number of letters contained in the word "forgiveness," then subtract the amount of the change in your purse after all your Christmas bills are paid, and presto, that is that.

Questions for Msgr. Sheen

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen recently stated: "No country in the world has contributed as much to Fascism as Russia. For it was only through the Soviets giving the Nazis the green light in the pact of 1939 that the Nazis were able to extend their form of Fascism all over Europe."

Did Msgr. Sheen ever explore what would have been the extent of the German influence if Russia had attempted a stand in 1939? Is there any doubt but that Fascism would have extended "all over Europe"?

With unprepared Russia out of the way, who would now be holding the back doors for us to get at the enemy? Did Msgr. Sheen ever consider that the non-aggression pact of 1939 was intended to fool Hitler into an African venture until such time as Britain and Russia could prepare for him in Europe?

If Msgr. Sheen wants to help all the people of the world, let him refrain from attacks on a Government which is giving its all against the common enemy.

A FRIEND OF RUSSIA.

No Time for Strikes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I don't believe in strikes during wartime. They do more harm than good. What good are wages when compared to the loss of life of some mother's son? In my opinion, there is no comparison.

Strikes only slow up production and victory. Before strikers leave their jobs, they should think about the boys on the battlefront.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT.

The OWI Flaw Remains

A truce has ended the battle of OWI. Resignations of the overseas branch officials who were not following Director Elmer Davis' Washington directives will be accepted. Robert Sherwood, head of the overseas branch, apparently did not press the advantage he holds of having easy access to the presidential ear, which is usually closed to his superior, Mr. Davis. The ex-playwright, who gave up scripts and successes for civilian soldiering, will probably go to London. The ex-broadcaster, who gave up fat contracts and a brilliant career as a radio commentator to serve as the Government's No. 1 reporter of the war, will continue as news chief in fact as well as name.

But the first flaw in the machinery of information remains: Its director does not have the inner sanctum status necessary to giving the people at home full, fair news of the war, military and political; necessary to preparing overseas news to the greatest psychological and political advantage.

Elmer Davis was noticeably absent at Quebec, at Cairo and Teheran. He has had to register public indignation—as at the time of the Reuters scoop of the Cairo meeting or when he finally got permission to release more realistic details of actual combat—to make his job count and to consolidate his own authority. His position was so much in question that there was even a rumor that the squabble with Sherwood would be settled by freezing both in their present roles and setting Byron Price, Censor, above them as a sort of super-chief.

Elmer Davis occupied a position among commentators like that held by the late Raymond Clapper among columnists. His personal and professional honor, his ironclad integrity, his sense of duty to the people were the admiration of everyone in his field. It is an unintended, but no less serious, breach of public faith when such men are hobbled and discouraged in public service.

Elmer Davis will never be able to do full justice to his work as director of OWI until he is fully trusted with the news, until his judgment as a news man is respected and until our war aims are expressed for domestic and foreign consumption in terms of a fight for people's governments and popular freedoms.

Not a Chance

The sit-down strike of six CIO young women against the Michigan State CIO Council was destined to succeed. The embattled CIO secretary was cocky, but lacked the spindliest spook of a chance. Forced to answer his own telephone, driven to writing his own letters and finding things for himself, he was struck down and sat down upon indeed.

There is ever pathos in the picture of the rugged individualist momentarily reduced to shifting for himself in the office. He cannot locate anything. He cannot get any work done.

The Michigan CIO executive should have known better than to let himself be maneuvered into any such weak strategic position. He should remember, henceforth, and be guided by the recollection, that the boss can go fishing any time and business will proceed as usual, but let the amanuensis take a day off and American enterprise comes to a creaking, grinding stop.

Great Silence From Bari

A wonderful thing is happening in Bari, Italy, a harbor town on the Adriatic Sea. Here men of all anti-Fascist political parties are meeting to consider the formation of an Italian republic. For the first time since the little King and Mussolini yoked their country with Fascism, leaders dare to unite and dedicate themselves to popular rule for a nation worn thin by Fascist chains. Here—as in Algiers, and as in the Partisan-freed portions of Yugoslavia—the future is being shaped, is taking form.

We know that this must be happening, although we are told nothing of it. Not since the All-Party Congress opened more than two weeks ago with a keynote address by Benedetto Croce has there been a news report from Bari. Only a muffled silence rewards the curious, the champions of a free Italy, the exiles refused permission to return. The inexorable machinery of democracy is at work, powered by such respected men as Count Sforza. Yet the world is not permitted to see the wheels go round.

Edward Murrow broadcasts from London that what thin reports have come through to England have a black-market flavor. Since it is impossible to believe that the congress was disbanded by Allied authorities, only one conclusion is possible: Censorship is air-tight. Why? Is it the plan to give us a complete report of the action of the congress, and whether or not it has framed an opposition government, when the meeting is ended and the delegates have dispersed? Or are the results of the meeting to be suppressed entirely, thus giving weight and color to Croce's charge that Allied policy in Italy shows a bias "against liberalism and democracy"?

The silence from Bari is disquieting.

Problem for Socrates

Guardians of the law in East St. Louis may not care to lend themselves to a dialectic discussion of the exploits of the five jackpot pirates, but no amateur philosopher could resist such grist for the Socratic mill. After all, an ancient and respected theory, that of honor among thieves, is at stake.

Is the code of the highwayman prejudiced by the attack of five two-armed bandits, armed with screw drivers and teaspoons, on an unknown number of virtually defenseless one-armed bandits, with only well-oiled machinery, fruit stand trimmings and public gullibility in their arsenals? Could the odds against the jackpot hijacker be considered unfairly uneven by counting one two-armed operator, with or without weapons, as an ally of each one-armed bandit, thereby giving the home team an advantage of at least one arm per unit? Does thievery from thieves involve the Robin Hood principle when machines, not men, are the thieves thieved from? So long as John Q. Public is out of pocket, does it matter whom he's out of pocket to?

East St. Louis police, having given the visiting mechanics what vagrants call the bum's rush, consider the matter at an end, showing little concern for the delicate ethical balance between burglar and burgled when both exist by burglarizing. Isn't there a single Pythagorean, a single solemn student of the Socratic method, in the vicinity of Main street and Missouri avenue?

Willkie Speaks Out Again

Wendell L. Willkie has given the rank and file of the Republican party some more straight talk. Out in the West where he is frankly testing out his strength as a presidential candidate, he expressed views this week which most professional politicians can't understand.

In an address at Salt Lake City, he called on Republican leaders to stand for convictions and principles in the coming campaign. He was aware of an easier way—the suggestion of some of the party's experts that "if we are clever enough and avoid the great controversial issues of our time, maybe we can win that way."

He showed impatience with this kind of party strategy. He didn't think that was the way to win; and if victory was bought at the price of so sorry a policy of negation, then the party would "fall to pieces after coming to power."

But the Old Guard party leaders are not listening to Mr. Willkie. He knows they are not. That is why he is touring the West, making speeches that simply do not conform to the practices of orthodox politicians.

Mr. Willkie has a way of getting into the thick of the fight. He is not content to take the easy way. He could have avoided the tax problem when he spoke in New York last week. He chose, however, not merely to denounce the miserably small tax increase voted by Congress, but to brand President Roosevelt's requested tax increase of some 10 billion dollars as inadequate.

Such talk is not good "politics." But it is Mr. Willkie's kind of talk, and no one has ever yet muzzled him.

Beer, Pretzels and Music

St. Louis has a traditional love for beer (with pretzels and hot dogs on the side), and St. Louis also has a long record of high esteem for music. So what better combination could there be than gay music played by our fine Symphony Orchestra, while beer, pretzels and hot dogs are served to the audience? There couldn't be a better one, and this happy idea has been adopted for the annual pension fund concert, to be held March 3 in Convention Hall at Kiel Auditorium.

It promises to be a pleasant and informal occasion that will recapture the spirit of an earlier, more leisurely day unknown to the present bustling generation. And if it's a success—as why shouldn't it be?—we'll revive our suggestion of last April for a series of spring concerts after the regular Symphony season, at which light music and light refreshments will gladden the lovers of both as they gather around the tables.

Anger on the Supreme Bench

Regardless of the merits in the dispute between Justices Frankfurter and Roberts on the one side, and Justices Black and Murphy on the other, the running dispute of factions in the United States Supreme Court is becoming less and less seemly, and is damaging its prestige.

The disputation, which did not begin on too impersonal a plane, is degenerating into squabbling.

It is inevitable that opinions within the court should differ, but the public discussion should always be dignified, and appropriate to the judicial chambers rather than to the soap-box.

Of bickering in Washington there has been a-plenty, and oftentimes of a fairly cheap variety. It has become so intolerable that President Roosevelt was impelled late last year to warn his removable appointees that anyone who engaged in public acrimony with a fellow-official would be expected to submit his resignation.

The discipline which the President proposed to invoke does not apply to Justices of the Supreme Court, who are presumed to be controlled by their own sense of the proprieties.

The disputant Judges would do well to invoke the rule of reason without anger in the cloisters that we look to as the inner citadel of equitable and equable judgment.

The Way to Handle Finland

Secretary of State Hull has warned Finland, as he has done several times before, to get out of the war or take the consequences. At the same time, the Soviet Union has explained to Finland that the consequences will be on the order of last Sunday night's bombing of Helsinki.

If we really mean business, why don't we break off diplomatic relations? Great Britain has long since given recognition to the realities of the situation by declaring war on Finland.

Finland is actually at war with us, a war which, though undeclared and indirect, is nevertheless real.

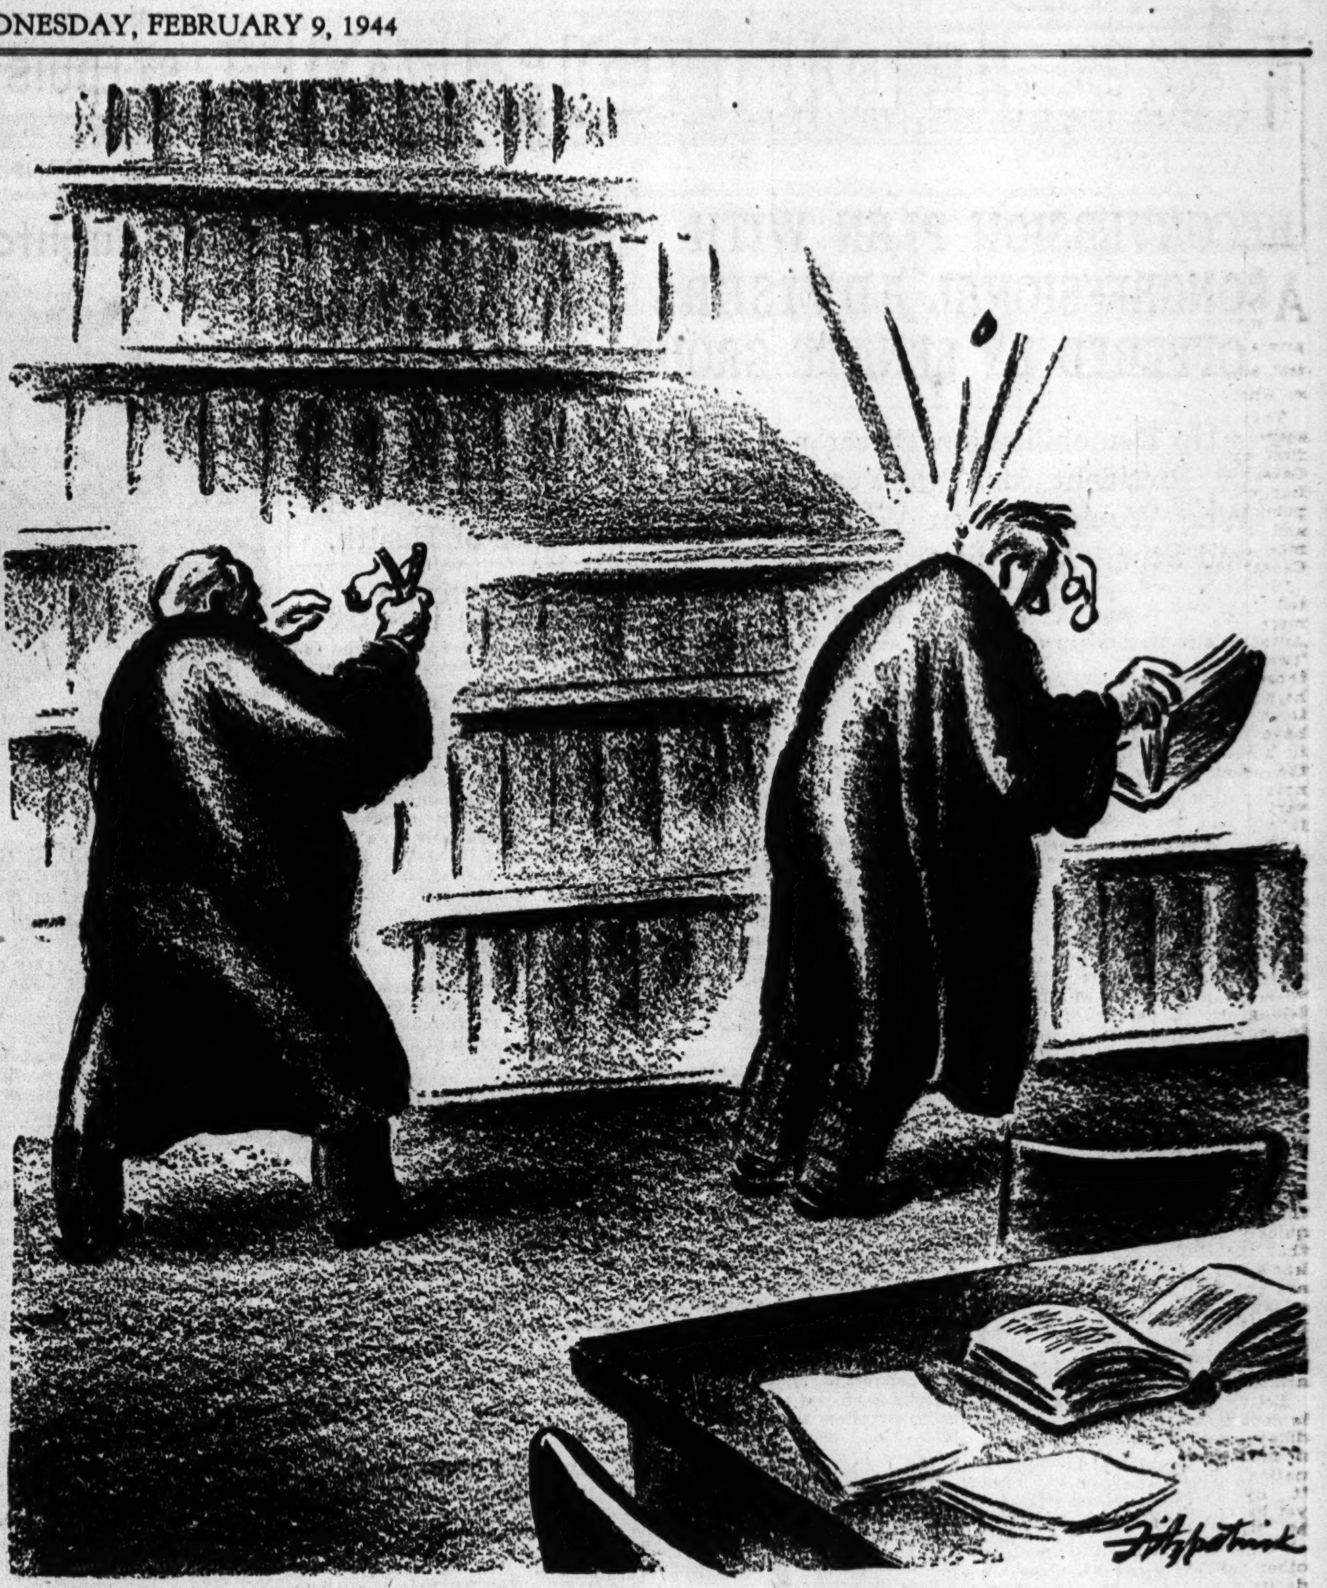
Nothing we could say would do as much as a cessation of relations to bring the Finnish Government to a sharp understanding of its ruinous course.

A Strange View of Renegotiation

In reporting on the recent doings of Congress, a bulletin of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States says: "For many weeks, it appeared there would be major improvements in the contract renegotiation law." Then follows an account of congressional action, which resulted in keeping the main provisions of the law intact, and the C. of C. publication summarizes: "So the final result is somewhat of a disappointment to business."

What happened, of course, is that Congress refused to weaken the law, as urged by an estimated 2 per cent of business interests. It refused to "open the way to truly extortionate profits," to quote Secretary Morgenthau. It took its stand with the great majority of war contractors, who favor renegotiation and do not seek undue profits. It refused to give opponents of the American business system a free supply of powerful political ammunition.

In view of all this, is the United States Chamber of Commerce actually serving the best long-run interests of business men when it takes the position that the crippling amendments were "major improvements" and their defeat in Congress was "a disappointment to business"?



"Oyez, Oyez, the Honorable Supreme Court of the United States—"

Big Things for Missouri on the Way

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Progressive measures which once appeared to be the "unattainable dream of a perfect Constitutional Convention" now are on the list of probable attainments, newspaper says; despite some fumbling, there is hope the delegates will modernize the State's basic law.

From the Kansas City Times

Suppose the 81 men and two women at Jefferson City should submit a revised Missouri Constitution that would accomplish all this:

Suppose they offered a cabinet system that would give Missouri one responsible Governor to run the State's business instead of three or four under various titles—

Suppose they found the way to clean up all this tax confusion that has made personal taxes a sour joke and the taxpayers a population of perjurers—

Suppose their new document would further improve the work of the Legislature by getting rid of the old secret committee system that gives a few men the chance to kill the most constructive bills and hide the bodies—

Suppose they would go further and provide a positive method of senatorial redistricting so that one legislative house would be honestly responsive to the big changes of population—

Suppose the large counties and many cities were given the chance to clean up their nineteenth century courthouses and city halls with modern, business-like charters—

Suppose the wasteful county system generally was covered with a flexible system providing for different offices and types of government according to need in counties of varying size—

Suppose the obstacles to a genuinely modern postwar rural highway and city trafficway system should be knocked out of the old Constitution—

Suppose the Justice of the Peace court system and various fee systems should be taken off the back of the Missouri public forever—

Suppose Missouri education were taken out of politics and placed under a State Board of Education similar to the Board of Education in Kansas City—

Suppose the cities were given the broad constitutional authority they need to bring their deadening blighted areas back to life—

If a revised Constitution including all those sweeping and fundamental changes in Missouri State and local government should be submitted and adopted by the voters, it would mean a half-century of progress with one stroke of the pencil in the polling booth. The changes are so great they might sound like an unattainable dream of a perfect Constitutional Convention.

By no means is it a perfect convention; but the stand-out plans for the future are not unattainable. Right now they are on the probable list. And this from a convention that is rated conservative! Through all the monkey business, each day seems to bring these main objectives closer to fulfillment. And many less spectacular but highly important changes could be added for a much longer list.

At the showdown, of course, all may not be attained. Some may be modified. For example, the advocates of a Governor's cabinet system may not get all they ask, but the thinking has gone so far that even the leading opponents would go most of the way to put all tax collection and other general administration under the Governor.

Some good things cannot be expected. There appears to be no chance to get the delegates together on a State merit system, for instance.

Still, with all the fumbling, the delegates continue to move closer and closer toward their opportunity to make this a great convention that will deserve a high place in the State's history.

Right now, it appears that only some major blunder like tinkering with the nonpartisan court plan or the Conservation Commission could wreck the splendid opportunity.

An Overseas Army Paper's View of Ernie Pyle

From the Stars and Stripes, London.

What does it feel like to be a celebrity?

"Well, it feels pretty good. It has its ups and downs. Every now and then, you get sort of panicky. Once in a while, you get resentful. Most of the time you just feel too rushed and a little bewildered, and kinda pleased."

Thus does Ernie Pyle, America's genial war correspondent, describe his feeling upon returning home recently from the Mediterranean war front to find himself famous. Acknowledging a certain immodesty in classing himself among the elite, Ernie admits that certain advantages accrue from being "known"—such as getting personal privileges like "shortage" articles from under the counter; railroad and airline reservations and getting the plumber and typewriter man who aren't supposed to accept calls before a week from Saturday.

Whatever advantages Ernie Pyle finds in his new fame are more than deserved if the opinion of the soldiers in the European Theater of Operations is any criterion. While here, Ernie made a point of shunning the comfortable places, preferring instead the cold, dank tents of a field unit or a lonely anti-aircraft station where he would squat for hours listening to the boys so he could tell the true story to the folks back home.

As Ernie puts it in his new book, "Here Is Your War," his segment of the picture is the tired and dirty soldiers who are alive and don't want to die; of long darkened convoys in the middle of the night; of shocked and silent men wandering back down the hill from battle; of chow lines and atabrine tablets and foxholes and burning tanks and Arabs holding up eggs and the rustle of high-blown shells; of jeeps and petrol dumps and smelly bedding rolls and C rations and cactus patches . . . of laughter, too, and anger and wine and lovely flowers and constant cussing. . . .

Commenting on his new popularity, Ernie sums up our feeling with his own: "I didn't plan it and I didn't ask for it, but now that it's here, I'm pretty sure I can take it."

A Clash of Views on India In Two Timely New Books

"Indian Crisis: The Background," by John S. Hoyland. (Macmillan Co., New York.)

"India Against the Storm," by Post Wheeler. (E. P. Dutton Co., New York.)

A renegade Indian named Subhas Chandra Bose makes these two books especially timely. For Bose is Tokyo's leading candidate for Quisling of India, and has just moved from Japan to Burma to intensify his attempts to inflame a rebellion in the Allied rear. He and Tojo may succeed if Americans and Englishmen see India as Post Wheeler does; they will certainly fail if John S. Hoyland's ideas find acceptance.

Crammed into Mr. Hoyland's brief book are the observational fruits of 15 years of varied and relevant work in India. As a British doctor, teacher and fighter against famine, he learned his India the hard way, and concludes: "In many ways, British rule has been good, but it has not been good enough; it has led to appalling miseries. The time has come when it must cease, and another way be tried, however steep and hard."

Two influences seem to have determined the very different views expressed in "India Against the Storm." Post Wheeler apparently visited India after a long career as a State Department official, and spent most of his time with Britons and native potentates. Perhaps it is his diplomatic background that limits his focus to the surface political tussle between the Congress party and the British. Most of his book is an anecdotal account of this tug o' war, an account neither just nor complete.

Since they disagree sharply about everything Indian, from the roots of the trouble to possible solutions, the two books afford an excellent contrast. In assigning the blame for the present stalemate, Wheeler is content to belabor the several million people organized into the Congress party as being the tools of fanatically destructive lunatics. Their greatest madness seems to be the single-mindedness with which they have pressed for freedom. Hoyland, on the other hand, digs deeper and insists that India's difficulties come from the British imperial system, over-population and an "unelastic rural economy."

Since Mr. Wheeler assumes that the Indian impasse is an unnecessary one, he is willing to accept Britain's dealing with the independence movement as a police problem. Mr. Hoyland, however, argues that the British should immediately call a democratically elected assembly from all the states in India. After this body framed a constitution, a national government would be set up under it.

The United Nations must have Indian tranquillity and support in their war against Japan. India wants freedom, and a chance to accomplish its industrial revolution and national unification. It will take a good deal of carefully clear thought before we can make the best of this situation. "India Against the Storm" contributes little to this clarity; "Indian Crisis" is much more to the point.

For Beginners in Meteorology

A useful book for beginners in the study of meteorology is issued by the Cornell Maritime Press in "Meteorology Workbook with Problems," written by Peter E. Kraght, senior meteorologist, American Airlines. It contains only 148 pages, but the pages are large (probably for better display of the many diagrams and other illustrations) and they are full of concise information, particularly with respect to those phases of meteorology related to ship and aircraft operation. With each of the 15 chapters a number of problems are submitted to test the student's comprehension of the subject.

PRESIDENTIAL POLITICS

APART from one or two who are not seriously in the running, Mr. Willkie seems to be the only contender in either party who says he is a candidate for President. Thus far but for him the primaries and the general election look as if they would be a contest among candidates for President who will not say that they are, or who say that they are not, candidates for President.

They seem to be re-enacting the scene described by Casca in the first act of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," when Messrs. Hoover, Landon, Hamilton, Pew, the Republican national committeemen and the Democratic committeemen and Dr. Gallup were offering Caesar the crown:

"I can as well be hanged as tell the manner of it: it was mere foolery . . . I saw Mark Anthony offer him a crown; yet 'twas not a crown, 'twas one of those coronets; and, as I told you, he put it by once; but for all that, to my thinking, he would fain have had it. Then he offered it to him again; but" (having read the latest Gallup poll.—Editor's note) "to my thinking, he was very loath to lay his fingers off it."

This foolery, otherwise known as political strategy, would, if it were not for Mr. Willkie, be the standard practice in both parties. The candidates would all murmur coyly and blush demurely like maidens listening to a proposal of marriage in an old-style novel and with one eye on Dr. Gallup, keep telling us that they will be a sister to us.

The notion that a candidate for President should declare himself, and then say what he thinks, is too simple-minded for the master strategists who are getting ready to provide our country with its next President. I wonder if it is a good strategy. In considering this question we may pass over quickly the rather odd assumption that the citizens do not need to know, do not care to know, and are not entitled to know well in advance, and while there is time for debate, who it is that thinks he is fit to conduct the war, make the peace, and demobilize the armies.

Let us ask ourselves whether it is good strategy for getting a candidate elected, and not merely nominated. For getting the nomination it has much to be said for it. By not being a candidate and yet by not being not a candidate, Mr. Roosevelt suffocates at birth all other Democratic boomlets. No other candidacy can have the audacity to be born into the Democratic political family. On the Republican side the principal contenders, apart from Wendell Willkie, are all strong and silent men, too intensely pre-occupied to think about being President of the United States. Their silence permits them to appear to be everything that Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal are not, and everything that every conceivable Republican voter would like them to be. Thus they are the candidates of all the professional politicians' dreams; they remain in the safety of their silence all things to all men. This illusion could be maintained at least until the convention has voted—that is, if it were not for the rude intrusion of this man Willkie with his prejudice in favor of letting the people know what they are doing.

Arguments Against Change.

BUT whatever may be said for the solemn pretense as a scheme for being nominated, there is much to be said against it if the Republicans are serious about electing their candidate. After all, what is the real argument for a fourth term?

The arguments against it are formidable. Sixteen years is an unconscionably long time for any man to be President. This administration is growing old and tired at the top and though it is conducting the war well and indeed better than any of our wars has ever been conducted, the more closely one observes it day by day the more one wonders whether it has the fresh energy left to grasp and deal with the new problems which the end of the war will bring with it.

Moreover, there is a very great deal to be said for letting, and indeed making, the opposition take its turn at carrying the awful burden of responsibility. Then the conclusion of the war and the settlements which follow, would be in the fullest sense nationally conducted enterprises. I, for one, should like to see the Republican party make the grand settlement. For then, because the Democrats are fully committed anyway, the commitments which it entails might be set clearly above partisanship and all the messy irrelevance of New Deal-old guard politics.

But, as against all this, the argument in favor of the fourth term is that the Republican party has yet to offer any convincing evidence that it knows how to make the grand settlement which will redeem the terrible sacrifice of war by a good and lasting peace. What do the people know about Gov. Dewey or Gen. MacArthur on any vital question which enters into the grand settlement? And while they know something about Mr. Willkie, as yet not nearly enough, but at least something, what they see is that his party in Congress has steadily rejected his leadership since he was nominated at Philadelphia in 1940. The party record before the war is the antithesis of his record. He and they were at odds on every important issue. The party record since the war looks, at least on domestic matters, as if it were going to be just as opposed to his position. For in his speech last week he demands twice the taxes which the administration asked for. That is eight times as much taxes as the Republican party is willing to vote.

Risks Are Foreseen.

ALL this must cause the independent voters to ask themselves whether in this difficult hour they dare to take the risk of intrusting the Government to candidates whose views are unknown, and to a party which is in such a condition. There would be much to be said for changing from a tired and spavined hackhorse, even in midstream, provided there is another horse to change on to. But to change from a horse to no horse . . .

Why not put an end to this foolery? Gov. Dewey is a candidate. Let him say so, and then let him make some carefully prepared address saying where he stands, not necessarily on every issue and not to the last technical detail, but on enough issues and with enough concreteness, to give the nation a good sample of his mind, and his views, and his character. Let him debate temperately and sincerely with Mr. Willkie some of the questions which the next President must act upon.

That is not asking very much. How among a free people can any one ask less?

DR. LEE WALLACE DEAN

DR. LEE W. DEAN DIES; PROFESSOR EMERITUS

Had Long Been Associated With Washington U. School of Medicine.

Dr. Lee Wallace Dean, professor emeritus of otolaryngology in Washington University School of Medicine, died early today at his home, 1125 North Berry road, of a heart ailment. He was 70 years old, and from 1928 to 1940 was active head of the department dealing with ear, nose and throat instruction and research in the medical school.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Dr. Lee W. Dean Jr., and three grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard.

Formerly dean of the University of Iowa Medical School, Dr. Dean was a pioneer in recognition and treatment of sinus diseases, particularly in children, whose sinus troubles were formerly dismissed as "summer sickness." He received in 1937 the DeRoaldes Medal of the Amrican Laryngological Society for outstanding research in nose and throat ailments.

In 1933-34 Dr. Dean conducted an 18-month test of the effect of St. Louis air, with smoke, dust and harmful gases, on guinea pigs and white rats. One-half of the test animals were placed in a room to which ordinary air was admitted, and the others in a room supplied with purified air. Twice as many survived in the pure air, and they bred more rapidly, with healthier offspring.

Dr. Dean served in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and was Commanding Officer of General Hospital No. 54, in the First World War. He was a past president of the American Laryngological Association, and editor of publications devoted to his specialty.

OPA SHIPS RATION TOKENS TO BANKERS

Use of New 'Chips' to Begin Feb. 27 — 1,113,000,000 Distributed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The new red and blue ration tokens are moving into the hands of 14,000 bankers for delivery to retailers by Feb. 27, the Office of Price Administration reported today.

Retailers and consumers will begin using the ration tokens for all rationed foods Feb. 27. The banks will begin exchanging tokens for coupons Feb. 17, so all retailers will have supplies on hand when the new "currency" becomes valid, OPA said.

Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator, said banks have requisitioned approximately 1,113,000,000 ration tokens for distribution to nearly 600,000 retail outlets. The OPA has already shipped more than half the requisition totals.

OPA acted today to increase the supply and, in some instances, reduce the retail price of clothing made of knitted rayon.

One type of jersey dress which is retailed at $8.75, may now be sold at $7.75, it was stated, as a result of lower prices manufacturers will pay for fabric. In cases where the price is not reduced the material will be of higher quality, OPA said.

The new regulation, effective Feb. 14, provides dollars and cents price ceilings for rayon knit fabric manufacturers, jobbers and converters, replacing as maximum prices the March 1942 prices charged by each seller.

Reduction in Codfish Price.

OPA announced a reduction of four to four and one-half cents a pound in the winter ceiling price on fresh sliced codfish, and a cut of three cents a pound in the summer maximum prices.

Senator Kilgore (Dem.), Virginia, announced last night he was going to Donald Nelson, War Production Board director, with a plea for a compulsory order requiring oil treatment of shoes by manufacturers to make footwear last longer.

At a hearing yesterday representatives of OPA, Bureau of Standards and War Department all testified oil or war treatment provided anywhere from 15 to 50 per cent more wear. They joined Kilgore, head of a Senate subcommittee studying the problem, in urging a WPB regulation making it mandatory for the industry to adopt the program.

The only objection came from a WPB representative, Lawrence B. Sheppard, chief of the agency's leather and shoe branch, who cited several disadvantages, such as "a tendency for the sole to curl up and to become more slippery." He also warned there would be consumer resistance to oil-treated shoes.

Sheppard said WPB would be willing to "permit and promote" use of the treated soles, but not to compel such action.

Bowles said in a radio address last night the price control program was now at the point of "greatest good to the greatest number" and the aim hereafter would be to keep prices at current levels.

He said he realized that "there are a few in all groups . . . who aren't doing as well as the majority under present price ceilings, but to attempt to further iron out these few remaining inequities would be to risk wrecking our entire network of price levels."

LT. GEORGE I. BERGER

ST.LOUISAN DOWNS NAZI PLANE OVER GERMANY, WINS MEDAL

Lt. George I. Berger, Liberator navigator, has won an Air Medal for downing a Nazi fighter on a mission over Germany in which his crew destroyed five enemy planes, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Berger, 4217A Athlone avenue, have learned. The presentation was made by Col. William Dent, commander of a bombardment group of the Eighth Air Force, at a base in England.

Berger, 24 years old, a graduate of Beaumont High School, entered service in March, 1941, and has been in England since August.

Staff Sgt. Joseph K. Buerges, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Buerges, 1109A North Second street, St. Charles, won the Legion of Merit Medal "for exceptionally meritorious conduct" outside the line of duty.

Buerges, 30 years old, with the Army Air Force in New Guinea since February, 1942, was cited for helping design, perfect and construct a device to check plane instruments, "thus making an important contribution to aircraft maintenance." He entered service in December, 1941.

LARGE CROWD HEARS MARIAN ANDERSON

Magnetic Quality of Her Voice as Usual Grips Audience.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

Marian Anderson, the still phenomenal Negro contralto, gave a recital last night in Kiel Auditorium before one of the largest audiences ever assembled there. Every seat was taken, the orchestra pit and stage were both filled to capacity and hundreds of listeners stood in the side corridors off the mezzanine and on the upper levels of the balcony.

As usual Miss Anderson commanded a close and devoted attention. The responsiveness of the audience, however, must be attributed largely to her magnetic personality and the artistic purpose that was made evident in the turning of a phrase, the placing of an accent and the use of dynamics. In other words, it was style rather than vocal quality that gave authority to Miss Anderson's performance for her voice was conspicuously uneven.

The differing quality of her registers has always been noted, the lower range being rich and covered and the upper voice open, well forward and with an exciting resonance. This unequalized scale has never been a handicap. On the contrary, she has turned it to artistic advantage by using it to provide dramatic contrast and a deeper emotional intensity.

Last night, however, her voice would sometimes change quality on a single word and for no apparent reason. At other times, the quality was noticably worn and thin and an excessive vibrato was sporadically in evidence throughout the whole evening. Nevertheless there were times when she sang not only with complete freedom but with a round, unblemished beauty of tone. This together with her consistently lofty conception of the music and her expressive treatment of line and phrase made her recital a superior demonstration of the art of singing.

Her first two numbers, "She Never Told Her Love," and "Piercing Eyes" by Josef Haydn, were sung with restraint and finely applied nuance and in the first three songs by Brahms, she conveyed the combined tenderness and gravity of the music with touching effect. She was at her best, however, in two songs by Vaughan Williams.

At the end of each group she sang several encores.

Morton Cooper Reported Ready to Join Kurowski in Holdout Ranks

Cards Open At Home April 18

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Following closely upon the report from Reading, Pa., that George Kurowski, third baseman of the Cardinals, is dissatisfied with the terms of the contract offered him for the 1944 season, came a rumor that Morton Cooper, ace of the Redbird pitching staff for the past two years, also finds the terms proposed to him unacceptable.

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, mailed contracts to his players before leaving St. Louis to attend meetings here and just learned of Kurowski's becoming the first holdout of the year. He refused to comment.

Mort Wants $20,000.

Morton Cooper, it is said, is to ask for $20,000 for the coming season. He won 22 games in 1942 and again led the club's hurlers last year when he gained 21 victories.

Baseball men shook their heads over news of the salary controversies, considering it bad for baseball in this critical third war year of the national game. They pointed to the action of the Yankees as a very wise move. Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, held a conference with Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Americans, and after an agreement had been reached as to terms for the catcher's 1944 contract, it was arranged to release news of the agreement this afternoon. Rumors were in circulation, however, that Dickey was the first holdout of the year, and to squelch these rumors the Yankees immediately announced that Dickey had agreed to terms without any argument and had signed his 1944 contract.

Little Sympathy for Holdouts.

"This is one year when there ought not be any holdouts," a baseball man said. "We don't know what we'll have at the gate, but we consider ourselves fortunate to be able to operate at all, and we're prepared to carry on even if we suffer a loss. And we believe the public will not sympathize this year with players who argue about thousands of dollars while other men are risking their lives."

The major league meetings closed without any spectacular developments and without the threatened fight on the chain store system. The magnates acted generously in recommending rules to safeguard the best interests of players now in the armed forces, and the National League wasted no time in ratifying the new regulations. The league also adopted a 1944 schedule, with the season opening April 18 and closing Oct. 1. The Cardinals will open at home with the Pirates as the opposition and then will help the Cubs open the Chicago season at Wrigley Field, April 21.

President Frick formally announced the appointment of Lynn Boggess to replace Al Barlick on the staff of umpires, which otherwise will be the same as last year. Barlick is in the Navy.

Landis the Interpreter.

The rules adopted provide that players returning from duty in the armed forces will have ample tryouts in the highest possible leagues, will be paid while being tested and will receive salaries not less than they were drawing when they were inducted. Frick suggested that some of the rules were a bit complicated and might need interpreting when the time came to receive back the men who left their baseball jobs to serve in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard. Commissioner Landis, however, will be interpreter, so the boys can be confident they'll get all that's coming to them.

No Dodger Stock Sold or Optioned

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP). — Every pal and gal in Flatbush has a "sold" sign hanging on the Brooklyn Dodgers but all official sources connected with the stock of the National League club say that not a single share has changed hands or is under option.

In the complicated Brooklyn situation the latest development is that Max Meyer, who has been named as heading a syndicate to buy the franchise, does not have any definite option on the 25 per cent of the club owned by the estate of the late Edward J. McKeever, according to Steve Ryan, a Brooklyn director and administrator of the McKeever estate.

Ryan admitted he had talked with Meyer but that he "was not bound in any way at all' and there had been no limit, implied or otherwise, mentioned in their conversations. He repeated an earlier statement: "Anything is for sale for a price."

The 50 per cent of the stock owned by various heirs of the late Charles Ebbets could mean control of the Dodgers if Meyer is able to conclude a deal for the McKeever shares on which he was reported to have held an option.

George V. McLaughlin of the Brooklyn Trust Co., which holds a loan against the Ebbets stock, said today that discussions with Meyer still are in the preliminary stages.

Jay Bees Beat Sparks, Win First Half Championship in Military Basketball League

By Harold Flachsbart

The Jay Bees of Jefferson Barracks were looking for new fields to conquer in the basketball world today, following their 68-46 victory over the Naval Electrical School quintet last night, which gave them a clean sweep of four victories and the championship in the first half season's competition in the St. Louis Military League.

Capt. Albert Spurlock's men will open the second half of their league campaign Friday night at the Missouri State Armory, meeting the Central Technical Training Command squad, but they have clearly demonstrated their superiority over the military field in this circuit. Facing the Jay Bees, however, are games with the Washington University Bears next Wednesday night, with the strong Meramec Caverns, probably on Feb. 24, and with the 101-point Scott Field Flyers, although no site has yet been set for the latter game of games, tentatively scheduled March 10.

All other teams in the Military League have been easily defeated by the Jefferson Barracks quintet.

A game between the Coast Guard and Navy Wings at Lambert Field tonight will settle second place in the first half standings.

Last night's victory at Bethlehem gymnasium before only a few hundred spectators was the seventh straight for the Soldiers without a defeat, counting league and nonleague games, and they slightly exceeded their average of 63 points a game. They have now totalled 442 points in those seven contests, but against the Sparks, as was the case against the Coast Guard last week, they really didn't start to roll until the final half.

The Sparks, who are sparked by Gene Reilly, a former Manhattan College player, held the Jay Bees to a 14-12 score in the first quarter, but then the Soldiers increased their quarter scores to 15, 19 and 20, and early in the third quarter it was evident that school was out for the Navy Electrical School.

Don Martin, the smaller of the Bees' two Martins, sank three baskets in the second quarter and three more in the third period, and Reilly had to be content with sinking mostly free throws for the Sparks, and so the score reached 48-30 proportions going into the last period, and, as Capt. Spurlock always was able to rush fresh reserves into the game who were almost as good as the regulars, the Soldiers merely increased their lead toward the finish.

Six-foot, six-inch Roy Pugh again took high scoring honors for the Jay Bees with 18 points, and Really and Red Trevana topped the Sparks with 13 each. It was interesting to see the duel between Bill Martin of the Barracks, former Phillips Oiler star, and the Navy's Reilly. Both are basketball players as good as local fans have seen in recent years.

Browns to Open Against Tigers

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP).

WILL HARRIDGE, president of the American League, announced yesterday that the opening home games of the 1944 season would be played April 18 and April 21. The schedule:

Tuesday, April 18—Cleveland at Chicago, St. Louis at Detroit, Philadelphia at Washington and New York at Boston.

Friday, April 21—Chicago at St. Louis, Detroit at Cleveland, Boston at Philadelphia and Washington at New York.

The 154-game season will close Sunday, Oct. 1, he said.

Larkin 2 3-4 Pounds Too Heavy, Forfeits $1000

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Tippy Larkin, Garfield (N. J.) fighter who had agreed to weigh 137 pounds for his 10-round bout with Lulu Costantino of New York, at Madison Square Garden tonight, weighed in at 139¾ today and forfeited $1000 as a result. Costantino weighed 135¾.

Larkin, a Garfield, N. J., lad regarded as a better puncher than Lulu, ruled a 2 to 1 favorite in the overnight line, but the price is likely to drop as ringtime approaches. Costantino is acknowledged a master boxer and has demonstrated he can take a punch.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who anticipates a crowd of some 12,000 and a gross gate of around $35,000, isn't talking, but he probably hopes the scrap doesn't wind up a draw like the last two fights in the Garden, the Larkin-Ruffin and the Sammy Angott-Jack affairs. A winner would be regarded as a likely challenger to the survivor of the forthcoming elimination championship bouts between Jack, Bob Montgomery and Angott.

Costantino, a product of New York's east side, was the center of a storm of controversy when he dropped a split decision to Beau Jack on Jan. 7. Jack won the decision because the two judges voted for him, but his manager, Chick Wergeles, squawked loud and long because referee Eddie Josephs gave Costantino eight rounds and Jack only two.

A week later, Jan. 14, Larkin and Ruffin engaged in their draw, a decision that split ringsiders as much as the officials. Judge Bill Healy thought Larkin won, six rounds to four. Judge Joe Agnello gave it to Ruffin by the same count while Referee Arthur Susskind gave each five rounds.

Sets Scoring Record.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 9 (AP).—Bill Henry of Rice hung up a new Southwest Conference basketball scoring record last night by tallying 41 points against the Texas Aggies. Rice won, 67 to 33. The old conference scoring record was held by Johnny Adams of Arkansas who accounted for 36 points in a single game two years ago.

Taking Out Davis Cost a Pennant

FRANK "DIXIE" DAVIS, who with Hub Pruett, Urban Shocker, Elam Vangilder and other crack hurlers of the day almost pitched Phil Ball's Brownies into a pennant in 1922, died last week, age 51. . . . His passing probably will not end the Old Timers' debate that centered around Dixie after the windup of the "crucial" 1922 series here with the Yanks, in mid-September.

The decision made by Manager Lee Fohl to take out Pitcher Davis in the ninth inning of the last game, with the score 2-1 in favor of the Brownies, a man on base, none out and a left-hand pinch-hitter, Elmer Smith, at bat, was derided by many at the time and no doubt figured in the release of Fohl, later on.

The Browns were red hot, that year, and so were St. Louis fans. . . . We hadn't had a pennant winner in 34 years, since 1888 in fact, when the old-time Brownies won the American Association flag.

In 1922 the Browns had set the pace ahead of New York for three months. . . . And on Sept. 18 when the third and deciding game of the "crucial" series came up the teams were only two percentage points apart, with the Yanks having the hairline margin.

A victory for the Browns would have put the club in front and might have decided the flag race which ultimately the Yanks won by a margin of just one game.

Davis Begged to Be Allowed to Finish.

TO take a pitcher out under circumstances similar to those prevailing that afternoon might cause a riot today.

Davis for seven innings had held the Yanks to two scratch hits. . . . In the eighth inning Dugan doubled, Ruth fanned but Pipp scratched a single, sending Dugan toward third. . . . Here McManus handling the drive threw wild to Sisler and Dugan went on home, Davis then fanned Meusel to retire the side.

And then came the ninth and the situation that started tongues wagging. Schang scratched a single off Davis' glove and at this point Huggins sent in Elmer Smith, a dangerous left-hand swinger. . . . Severeid let the first pitch get away from him and Schang took up a scoring position on second.

Here Fohl halted the game and a vehement argument took place around the pitcher in mid-diamond. . . . Davis, protesting long and heatedly, was removed from the game in spite of the fact that he had shown no sign of faltering and had been in distress only through bad support and the lucky scratches of the Yanks.

Fohl didn't want to take a chance with him against a left-hander, however, and sent in Hub Pruett. . . . It all came to nothing, however, because, Manager Miller Huggins of the Yanks, matched the Fohl strategy by removing Smith and sending in the righthand hitter McNally.

Severeid's Throw Puts Hub in Bad.

PRUETT, who had pitched a magnificent game against the Yanks only the day before, was treated to a surprise when McNally bunted in front of the plate. . . . Severeid fielded the ball and tried to get Schang, who had started for third. . . . He made a low throw and Schang, who would have been an easy out on a perfect throw, was safe.

Pruett then walked Scott—and that was the end of Hub, Shocker replacing him.

Bush then forced Schang at the plate; but Whitey Witt, victim of a thrown bottle two days before, doubled—the blow that won the crucial series. . . . The Yanks won the game, 3-2, and left the city leading .611 to 603.

Strange to say, St. Louis, both team and fans, gave up on the Brownies then and there, although the club was still only .008 point behind. . . . Out-of-town reservations for later games were canceled by the hundreds.

Both the Browns and the Yanks played indifferently thereafter but by the time Fohl's men recovered from that Sept. 18 defeat, the season was practically over. . . . That one game advantage remained the Yanks' margin to the end.

Had Davis won, the Browns would have taken the lead by four points and no doubt would have carried on to finish in front and given Phil Ball what he had spent more than one million dollars to attain—an American League pennant.

* * *

Davis never forgave Fohl for pulling him out and spoiling that chance to achieve fame and a World Series bonus, especially as he was red-hot and pitching in pennant winning form. . . . Almost as good as he was the year before when he pitched and won a 19-inning victory over the Senators, in which he held the Washington hitters without a safety during the last nine innings.

Might Have Won

DIXIE DAVIS, former Brownie pitcher, whose death last week recalled the year 1922 when the Browns probably lost the pennant because he was taken out of the box in a crucial game.

"Baseball Necessary for the Morale of Servicemen," Mack

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 9 (AP).—Baseball will continue to be played for the duration of the war because it is necessary to maintain the morale of our fighting forces, Connie Mack asserts.

The 81-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League, speaking at a "fans' banquet" sponsored by the Elmira baseball club of the Eastern League said:

"Baseball is necessary for the morale of the men in service, and despite the handicaps of the manpower shortage, teams will go ahead and do the best they can to provide baseball, if only for that purpose."

Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, and William DeWitt, general manager of the Browns, other banquet speakers, concurred with him in that opinion.

"Although the material may be below standard," said McCarthy, "baseball will continue to be a serious business and from a competitive point of view, the public will never know the difference."

DeWitt added that "pennant races in all the leagues will be interesting for the duration because of the continual change of roster which might make it possible for a team to go from last to first place in a week or 10 days."

Subregional Play On Clayton Court

Former Purdue Boxing Coach to Box in War Bond Card, Feb. 17

Pvt. Joe Benna, Scott Field 160-pounder, and Bob Watkins, attached to the training station at Lambert Field, have been signed for one of the bouts on the B'nai B'rith "Night of Stars" war bond show slated at the Arena on Feb. 17. This is the first bout closed by Chief Specialists Benny Kessler and Barney Cosneck of the United States Coast Guard, who are arranging the program.

Both Benna and Watkins are nationally known amateurs. Benna, former Purdue boxing coach, was a finalist in the 1939 Chicago Golden Gloves, and the same year was a member of the American team that opposed the European champions. Watkins, clever Carolina Negro, went to the finals of the 1942 National A. A. U. championships at Boston.

Such boxers as Jim Ritchie, who is well known to St. Louis fans; Willie Johnson, Cleveland pro, and Hubert Hood, Chicago heavyweight, are anxious to show on the card. Hood has boxed such men as Joe Maxim and Curtis Sheppard. Kessler and Cosneck are seeking opponents for these men.

For the feature wrestling match Lt. Chris Zaharias, stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, is being sought to meet Pvt. Billy Raeburn of Jefferson Barracks.

TAXI FIRM GASOLINE RATION IS SUSPENDED

Harris Co. Penalized for Month—Taxicab Used 4 Stolen Tires.

Gasoline rations for the 10 taxicabs operated by Harris Taxicab Co., a Negro firm, have been suspended for one month because four stolen tires were found on a Harris taxicab, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

The suspension order will be effective Feb. 21 to March 21. It will have the effect of keeping Harris taxicabs off the streets during this period, the OPA said, since the order stipulates that Ezra Harris, operator of the company, must not use any gasoline rations in lieu of the suspended allotments, and prohibits Leonard Rice, on whose taxicab the stolen tires were found, from using any other rations for his machine.

The action against the company followed a hearing conducted last Jan. 29 by OPA Hearing Officer James D. Dockery. The firm was convicted of operating a vehicle on tires obtained through improper channels. OPA regulations provide that, if one unit of a fleet of cars is operated in violation of rules, action may be taken against the entire fleet.

The OPA said Harris asserted he was ill at the time the tires were mounted on Rice's taxicab, and did not know the tires were stolen until police impounded the entire fleet of taxicabs last Nov. 29. Rice contended he had used tire purchase certificates granted him to buy the four tires from Harris's brother, Robert Harris Jr., formerly associated with the taxicab firm. Rice asserted he paid $10 each for the tires and did not know they were stolen.

The number of taxicabs the Harris firm was authorized to operate was reduced from 30 to 10 last Jan. 4 by the Board of Public Service, which found the company guilty of operating a taxicab without liability insurance, of permitting a stolen car to be used as a cab, and of permitting stolen tires to be used on another taxicab.

Interpreting The War News

the German communications? Possibly. But in that case, we shall probably first see an expansion of the beachhead itself to the northward, so that it will include the port of Ostia.

A well equipped port, with wharves and other facilities, is essential to the supply of a large landing force. The capacity of the little ports of Nettuno and Anzio is not great; therefore the supply of the present beachhead is more or less at the mercy of the weather and is further limited by the available number of landing craft. In order to have assured supply for a large army, a port where seagoing ships can come alongside docks and discharge cargo is indispensable.

Keeping this in mind, the statement of a British military spokesman is perhaps not without significance. He urges that we should keep this landing operation in its true perspective—as aiding the progress of the other Allied armies in Italy. Note that he says "the other armies"—that is, the remainder of the Fifth Army on the Cassino front, and the Eighth Army on the Adriatic side of the mountains.

Eighth Army's Position.

The Eighth Army has been quiet for a long time—among other things, it has a new commander—and it has suffered from atrocious weather. But it does have behind it the excellent seaports of Bari and Taranto, through which it can receive reinforcements and supplies in quantities limited only by the availability of shipping to bring them there. It would seem entirely possible that the Eighth Army may play a considerable part in the next phase of the Italian campaign. If it were to be strongly reinforced, and could advance to the Rome-Pescara road, it would at once threaten the whole of the German armies on the west side of the Apennines. The Germans would have to find more troops to stop it, or they might once more face disaster in Italy.

It is worth saying again that the Allied strategy in Italy is being worked out by one who has shown himself a master at this sort of military chess game—Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander. His ability is no guarantee of inevitable success — he can fail like any one else—something may go wrong. For example, the beachhead may not hold after all, or the weather may continue adverse without a break. But it is impossible to suppose that he is not hewing to a well-thought-out line; he could certainly foresee events as far as they have gone, and he certainly knows what his next move is going to be.

SUES TO BREAK WIFE'S WILL LEAVING ESTATE TO CHURCH

A suit to break the will of his wife, the late Mrs. Mary Louis Collins, who died in East St. Louis in January, 1943, leaving the bulk of her $60,000 estate to the Holy Angel's Catholic Church in East St. Louis, was filed in the St. Clair County Circuit Court yesterday by Edward Collins of Chicago.

Collins in his petition, alleges his wife was of unsound mind and was unduly influenced by her attorney, the late Thomas L. Fekete Jr., of East St. Louis. Collins was not mentioned in the will, which contained specific bequests of about $4000 to relatives of Mrs. Collins.

SIX FUEL OIL FIRMS SUSPENDED BY OPA

Market and Restaurant Barred From Selling Meat.

Suspension orders forbidding six local fuel oil dealers from selling fuel oil for varying periods, were issued today by Harry L. Hall, regional hearing commissioner for the Office of Price Administration.

The dealers were penalized for selling fuel oil without ration coupons and for accepting invalid ration coupons.

Those suspended for 30 days were the Allen Oil Co., Negro firm at 1112 North Whittier street, and the Country Club Service Station, 7452 West Florissant avenue, Jennings.

Firms suspended for two weeks were the Weber Road Service Station, 3900 Weber road, Lemay, and the Pearline Oil Co., 736 Heman avenue, University City.

Two companies were suspended for three days. They were the Sandweiss Fuel Oil Co., 1445 North Garrison avenue, and the Super Gas and Oil Co., 6870 Easton avenue, Wellston.

A local market was forbidden to sell meat, cheese, fats and oils for two weeks and the sale of meat and meat products by a St. Louis restaurant was prohibited in suspension orders issued yesterday by Hall.

Harry Iken, owner of Iken's Market, 4201 West Easton avenue, was suspended for two weeks and placed on probation for a period of two weeks.

Irene and Horace Allen, operators of the Victory Grill, 1639 Tower Grove avenue, were forbidden to sell meat and meat products for one week.

Suspension orders against the firms, which will become effective March 1, were issued for failure to pay ration points to their suppliers within the time designated by the regulations and with continuing to receive products while delinquent in the payment of ration points.

Hall dismissed charges against four other markets with a warning that further violations would result in suspension. They were: Herman A. Haenel, 5843 Itaska street; Sokolik Brothers' Kosher Market, 908 Purdue avenue, University City; Hammer's Food Mart, 5356 North Kingshighway, and the Ladd Grocery, 7200 Balson avenue, University City.

NEW SEASONAL HIGH MARK MADE BY MARCH COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Trade and mill buying in nearby positions continued to dominate cotton futures trading today, with March contracts establishing a new seasonal high.

The tightening spot situation in the South, created in part by the Government inquiry for lend-lease purposes was reflected in limited amount of hedge selling on the advance.

Late afternoon values were 10 to 25 cents a bale higher, March 20.53, May 20.17, July 19.74.

Futures closed 20 to 40 cents a bale higher.

STOCKS IRREGULAR, PRICE RANGE NARROW

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Stocks turned irregular today after a steady performance in the early proceedings.

The market had no leadership such as yesterday's spirited rise in automotive shares on General Motors' announcement of a 75-cent dividend. Rails, up for a time, slipped into minus territory, and steels became a bit soft near the finish. Rubbers and specialties attracted buyers but were unable to maintain full gains.

In the final hour leaders showed a fairly even division of fractional advances and declines.

Transactions amounted to 625,795 shares compared with 608,390 shares yesterday.

Of the 818 issues trade in today, 301 were lower, 264 higher and 253 unchanged. Fourteen made new 1943-44 highs and one a new low.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed at 50.1, up .1 of a point.

In the Higher Group.

Among stocks holding better positions were Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Atlantic Coast Line, Sears Roebuck, American Distilling "plain," Texas Co., and Continental Motors.

Rearward were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio.

Rail loans made progress selectively in the bond market.

The Stock Exchange announced that the short interest at the close of January was 847,335 shares compared with 737,042 on Dec. 21.

Trend On the Curb.

Supported in the curb were International Petroleum, N. J. Zinc, St. Regis Paper and Republic Aviation. American Cyanamid dipped.

COTTON BELT SECOND 4S ADVANCE 5 PTS., SELLING 83½

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—Scattered gains ranging from fractions to as much as 5 points were posted for a variety of medium-grade and reorganization rail issues today as the bond market went into the final hour. Trends were cloudy in other divisions.

Loans of the Cotton Belt were in demand following Federal Court approval of the road's reorganization plan trimming capitalization to 75 million from 105 million dollars.

Selective buying also supported issues of the Western Pacific, Southern Pacific, Frisco, Morris & Essex, New York Central, M.-K.-T. and Burlington and helped Wisconsin Central 4s, International Great Northern adjusted 6s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Atlantic Coast Line first 4s and Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s of '78.

Interest in Brazilian bonds was heightened by announcement the debt adjustment plan soon would be put into effect, and Sao Paulo issues edged higher at times.

U. S. Governments were quiet and steady in Stock Exchange and over-the-counter dealings.

A sizeable list of carrier issues held gains to the close and a number reached the higest levels in more than seven years. Cotton Belt (St. Louis Southwestern) second 4s of '89 were ahead 5 points at 83½, while Frisco "A" 4s of '50 were up 1¼, St. Paul 5s gained ¾ and that road's adjusted 5s were up ¼.

The Associated Press average of 10 railroad bonds at 84.2 was up .1, 10 industrials at 105.3, 10 utilities at 105.4, 10 foreign at 63.8 and 10 low-yield bonds at 114.5 were unchanged. Sales were $17,089,000.

WHEAT MARKET LEADS GRAIN PRICE UPTURN

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP).—Wheat futures climbed more than a cent at times today, and the upturn encouraged rye and barley to fractional gains. Oats showed little change most of the session.

Some scattered buying in the wheat pit was attributed to mills and cash interests. Demand for feed grains also continued aggressive. The colder weather was considered favorable for corn movement and bookings to arrive were placed at 190,000 bushels today.

Wheat backed up slightly near the close and finished ¼@⅝c higher than yesterday, May $1.70¾, oats were ⅛c up, May 79⅝c, rye ¼@⅝c higher, May $1.30¼@⅛, and barley ⅛c off to ¼c up, May $1.22.

Trading was stimulated by aggressive demand for feed grains and by the expectation that some milling interest would develop as lend-lease agents announce acceptance of flour offered this week.

The Northwestern Miller, trade publication, in its weekly review said flour business resulting from announcement of the February subsidy program had not been up to expectations. However, it added that many millers reported sales far below December and January levels.

WELLES ASSERTS POLISH PROBLEM SHOULD BE SOLVED

to a constructive solution. The Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States have all officially declared that the reconstitution of a strong and independent Poland is an objective which they all three seek.

A strong and independent Poland is unquestionably an essential objective if peace and stability are to exist in Europe after this war is won.

What Poland Needs.

But the Polish people can only become strong and independent if they achieve security. And it is clear that they can only obtain real security through the existence of a practical, workable, international organization, and through the co-operative support of neighboring peoples, particularly the peoples of the Soviet Union.

They can only become strong and independent if they are granted every opportunity for healthy economic development, which again depends upon international, and particularly regional, co-operation.

They can only become strong and independent if their future governments possess full popular support.

They can only become strong and independent if the reconstituted Poland is a unified nation, rather than a nation which contains reluctant and antagonistic minorities. There is no nation of Eastern Europe which would be more greatly strengthened in its future development than Poland through the humanitarian and orderly transfer of peoples, under international regulation, in such a manner as to give the Polish people a durable, and not an artificial and unstable, access to the Baltic Sea, and through the inclusion under Polish sovereignty of a homogeneous Polish population.

1939 Borders a Menace.

Poland's 1939 frontiers, both in the west and in the east, constituted a source of national danger and of continuing friction with her neighbors. There is nothing sacrosanct nor immutable about the treaties in which they were established.

What is sacrosanct is the Polish nation. The burning patriotism and faith which the Poles have maintained undimmed through generations of national betrayal, and even of national extinction, constitute a value which modern civilization cannot afford to place in jeopardy.

These problems must be settled and these difficulties must be faced. I fear the time is past when postponement of these decisions can result in anything more than in the exacerbation of already mounting bitterness, and in the taking of unilateral decisions. The part of present wisdom would seem to lie in grasping the nettle firmly, and in preventing the creation of a situation where these decisions can no longer be made by agreement among the United Nations. An executive council of the United Nations was never more necessary than it is today.

RECONVERSION PLAN WITH ADVISERS IS OFFERED IN SENATE

(1) the Court of Claims, (2) Government umpires in each judicial district, and (3) a review board in Washington. If the contractor chose simplified procedure before the two last-named agencies, he would waive his right to a court review.

Senator George told reporters that legislation to implement the committee's recommendations could not be drafted for several weeks. Meantime, he will confer with Senator James E. Murray of Montana, who, as chairman of a Military Affairs subcommittee, has introduced a bill to cover contract cancelations. This bill, George said, probably would be redrafted to fit the recommendations of his committee.

The report today was unanimous. In addition to Chairman George, the members are Barkley of Kentucky, Hayden of Arizona, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Pepper of Florida and Lucas of Illinois, Democrats, and McNary of Oregon, Vandenberg of Michigan, Austin of Vermont and Taft of Ohio, Republicans. The counsel for the committee is Scott Russell, formerly president of the Bibb Manufacturing Co. of Macon, Ga., who resigned his position with this large textile company to work for the committee.

Grandson of Garfield Dies.

HEALTH QUIZ

	YES	NO
Do you have poor digestion?	☐	☐
Do you feel headachy after eating?	☐	☐
Do you get sour or upset easily?	☐	☐
Do you feel tired—listless?	☐	☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's aid digestion after Nature's own order, when taken as directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25¢. You will be glad you did.

Call It Propaganda

But It Won't Make Bataan Less Tragic

By Charles Fisher

SOME degree of resistance to government is probably natural during a war, when most of us come into contact with more government than we ever knew existed.

It seems a little excessive, though, to permit the feeling to color attitudes toward the stories of Japanese cruelty to prisoners. But we have heard a number of people say knowingly: "That stuff? It's only propaganda. I'm not paying much attention to it. The Government gave it out to boost War Bond sales."

Well, there can't be much doubt that the news was released at this time to help War Bond sales. What puzzles us is the reasoning of men and women who see anything irregular in the fact.

THE WAR BOND drive isn't a fake oil stock scheme. The Government isn't a confidence man trying to make off with Uncle Oscar's legacy. It isn't a distant, detached organization collecting soap coupons or trying to win a gold button for soliciting magazine subscriptions. It isn't a stranger with his foot in the door.

The Government is the individual buyer as well as the seller and the suggested deal is a prodigious bargain, for it permits the civilian—scarcely touched by the war even now—to save his world on the easy payment plan, and to get his money back in the end, with a premium as well.

BUT THE WAR is far away and after two years of it our imaginations are still slack. So little water splashes upon our doorsteps that we can't quite conceive of the churning when a tidal wave is being withstood and turned back in our behalf. And irresponsible cynicism mumbles in resentment when a simple exercise in dramatization is undertaken.

Why did the authorities wait until now, they cry? But what better time could there have been? The bond sales were moving slowly. Some suggestion of the reality of war was indicated. The corner of the picture exposed was not comforting, but there is no honesty in trying to blur the view by facile application of the word propaganda.

PROPAGANDA IS an unhandy term. The machinery was abused pretty badly during the last war, and there must be a great many Americans who are determined not to be caught again. And yet it comes in limitless forms, and some of them have shaped us and our concept of the country.

The reading of the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July when you were a kid was propaganda. Your Sunday school stories were propaganda. Your first reader was full of it and every influence which touched you was propagandizing in one fashion or another. It isn't altogether bright now to reject the word without some examination of its meaning in a particular case.

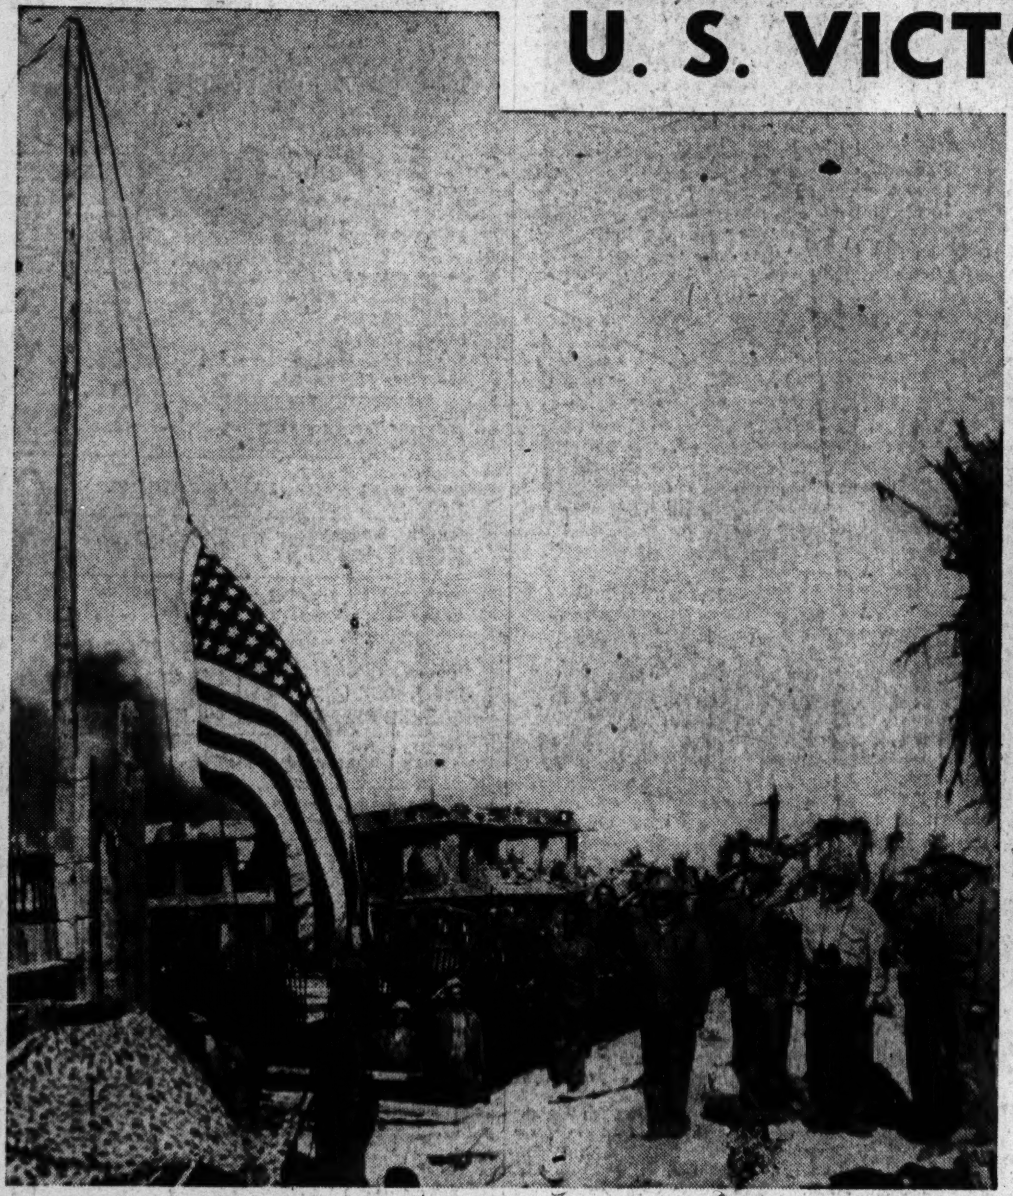
THIS ISN'T TO SUGGEST loose and intemperate rage as a reaction to the stories about the Japanese. In fact, it has been suggested that some of the practices which killed American prisoners weren't designed cruelty so much as a racial callousness. The point isn't very important to the men who are dead. Nor does it matter much to the rest of us. The traits are intolerable in the world most of us want, and they are dangerous to exterminate.

* * *

IT'S A ROTTEN JOB, and there's not much the civilian can do to help in it, except buy bonds and pay taxes. When he talks sourly of propaganda he's doing something less than a service to the men who are in the fighting. He is not only discounting the need for support, but he's calling those few who escaped after Bataan downright liars.

"I'LL BE VERY BUSY TODAY, MISS BIRCH. I CAN'T SEE ANYONE UNLESS, OF COURSE, IT'S SOMEBODY LOOKING FOR A JOB!"

U. S. VICTORY IN THE MARSHALLS



THE FLAG GOES UP ON ROI Symbolizing the first conquest of territory held by Japan before the war, the Stars and Stripes is raised on Roi island in Kwajalein atoll. The marines who took the island, site of the best airfield in the Marshalls, pause in their mopping-up to salute. In the background is the wreckage of a three-story concrete blockhouse, smashed in the terrific bombardment which cleared the way for invasion.

BROADWAY

By WALTER WINCHELL

TALES OF THE TOWN

HIS life's ambition was to be a name bandleader. . . . Studied almost every instrument. . . . He finally became one of the great arrangers, instead. . . . He couldn't "front" for a band, it seems. . . . Wasn't the type, the agents said. . . . So he was hired as head arranger for a well-known orchestra. . . . The leader of which was a "front man" because he looked it. . . . This front man could never read a note of music, but he had a baton man's "personality," whatever that is. . . . Each performance the arranger stood backstage and saw the "leader" take the bows for his work. . . . Not long ago the arranger (who knows nearly every instrument) was inducted. Because of his musical background, by golly, he was made army bandleader, a commission due soon. The bandleader front man was drafted a few weeks ago. . . . You guessed it. . . . He's a private in the infantry—still trying to keep in time!

TWO BROADWAY SPORTSMEN were driving to a race track. . . . They were arrested for speeding. . . . The judge fined them $50. . . . They were impatient and insisted hizzoner hasten through the proceedings. . . . They paid the fine. . . . Later the Judge reprimanded them in his chambers. . . . They hit the ceiling. . . . "Judge," one said, "you have our money. Now let us make the first race!" . . . "I know just how you feel," he said. He made amends by giving them the first two winners.

THEY SAY IT HAPPENED to a motorcycle cop. . . . He chased after a car going at a good clip and finally caught up with it, gun drawn. . . . The driver stopped, threw up his hands, and exclaimed: "Don't shoot! I have $30,000 on me. You can have it—just let me go!" . . . The cop debated with himself, when along came another motor cop. . . . He had an ugly thawt. . . . Should he declare the other cop in on it and split the loot? . . . He decided not to—and arrested the driver on suspicion, etc. . . . He related the incident to a newspaperman last night. . . . And concluded: "So what? So I became a derned hero!"

HE IS A NICE KID—Always laughing or smiling. . . . He worked for an ad agency before the war started, where they used to kid him a lot because he liked colorful cravats and apparel. . . . No zoot suiter, more Lucius Beebe. . . . One day they nearly drove him out of the place because he turned up wearing a purple-colored vest. . . . Then came the draft, and he was among the very first accepted . . . After 17 months in action he showed up again. . . . Now, wherever he goes, his old pals show him considerable respect, even though he wears purple. . . . On his chest.

MAESTRO CUGAT, at the Waldorf, would have you believe it is true. . . . About the fellow who always had a big fight with his wife after staying out too late. . . . A pal told him what to do. . . . "Next time, remove your shoes, tip-toe in, put your clothes in the closet. If you wife wakes up, you can say you were walking in your sleep." . . . A few nights later he met the idea man. . . . "Your suggestion was no good!" he groaned. . . . "How come?" asked the other. . . . "Well," was the reply, "I got plastered again last night and went home, took off all my clothes, went upstairs—and there I was in the Stork Club!"

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE B-258: Polly A., aged almost 16, is a reader of this column. "I'd like your honest opinion about pick-up dates?" she began. "In a Case Record some weeks ago you described the increase in juvenile delinquency here in New York, especially among girls in the teens. Many people seem to think that all pick-ups are prostitutes—or nearly as bad. I see nothing wrong with picking up service men, because I go out with them only to have a good time. It's very seldom that I even let the fellow kiss me, for the simple reason that I was brought up not to indulge in it.

"WHEN I DO JUST meet fellows that way, I always try to give the right impression. Even though it is assumed most fellows expect things from a pick-up date, I've met only one fellow who did. You may think it strange for a girl to want to do such things, but it isn't. I'm only going to be 16 next month, and there is no possibility of my being a hostess at a canteen. The fellows that are my own age are very fresh in deeds and words. That is why I prefer to go out with the older men and boys. They know they'll have to watch their tongues and actions if they want a decent girl to stay with them.

"MOST OF THEM realize how old I am, but it doesn't make any difference. Many of them have girls back home, anyway, and I am of the age where it doesn't make any difference to me. I just want to be a friend. We go to a show, roller skating, or sight-seeing, if they are from out of town. Whether you realize it or not, most of the fellows don't like canteens. When they go out, they like to sit down and talk about homey things, or else have a heck of a good time—like going to Coney Island. Worse yet, there are so many service men in New York that there aren't enough girls to go around. They appreciate a few girls entertaining them and say so. Most of them are shipped out right away, and they make fine pen pals."

POLLY'S EXPERIENCES are very valuable to parents. They show that a girl who has been given the facts about sexual relationships, and who has been morally trained, can take care of herself pretty well. Fortunately for Polly, she has probably been attracted to men who have had somewhat similar home backgrounds, for there is a tendency for like to attract like. Besides, those older men, recognizing her cultured, religious background, have treated her like a jolly pal or kid sister. Only one of those she picked up, betrayed her trust. Polly's desire to help show them a good time, is to be commended. Many girls thus combine a patriotic desire to help the men in service, with their personal pleasure in dating older men. There are dozens of reasons why teen-age girls like to be escorted by a man in uniform. I have not intended to intimate that pick-up dates are necessarily immoral or that such girls are always to be regarded as prostitutes. But dates of this type are fraught with more danger than those made with men whose backgrounds are previously known. A self-reliant girl, however, if morally trained and fully informed on sex matters, can usually take care of herself.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

A MOST satisfactory way to use plain cooked navy beans is in chowder. The amounts of salt pork, potatoes, milk and beans used make this a most satisfying and nutritious food. The flavor is bland and for this reason will appeal to children. If the beans are left whole, the chowder is more interesting in appearance, but if a more digestible chowder is wanted for young children, the beans should be put through a sieve before adding to the chowder.

Navy Bean Chowder.

Two ounces diced salt pork, one-fourth cup chopped onion, one-fourth cup flour, one quart water, two cups diced raw potatoes, one teaspoon salt, two cups milk, two cups cooked navy beans (one cup raw yields two cups cooked), two tablespoons chopped parsley. Fry pork until soft, add onion and saute until golden brown. Blend in flour, then add water slowly, stirring constantly to make a smooth mixture. Add potatoes and salt. Cook until potatoes are soft. Add milk and beans. Simmer 5 to 10 minutes. Add parsley just before serving. Serves four.

Breakfast

Stewed dry fruits, one-half pound. Simmer in small amount of water, one tablespoon lemon juice, couple of cloves. Serve warm with a sprinkling of three tablespoons sugar, mixed with one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind. French toast, eight slices enriched bread, two eggs, salt, one and one-half cups milk, shortening for frying.

Luncheon.

Navy bean chowder, one package navy beans (use one cup) one-eighth pound salt pork (one brown point); see recipe above; grilled tomato sandwiches, two slices buttered enriched bread; two medium sized tomatoes; lay a slice of tomato on each slice of bread, spread with mayonnaise and broil; cherry gelatine dessert with bananas, one package cherry dessert made according to directions; chill; mash two bananas, add two teaspoons lemon juice, one teaspoon sugar and add to each dessert just before serving.

Dinner.

Baked ham slice with raisin sauce, one pound ham; bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes; before serving add sauce made by combining three-fourths cup water, three tablespoons vinegar, one-fourth cup raisins, thickened with two teaspoons cornstarch; simmer 10 minutes; sweet potato puffs, two pounds sweet potatoes, boiled and mashed; add salt and two tablespoons strained honey, two tablespoons margarine, one-fourth teaspoon grated orange rind; spoon on to a buttered baking sheet and place in 350-degree oven 10 to 15 minutes to heat and brown slightly; cooked cabbage, one medium head; tangerine salad, four tangerines; peel and separate sections, cut out seeds; arrange on lettuce leaves, with mayonnaise; bread, eight slices enriched; merinque shells with strawberries, four egg whites (use yolks in gold cake Friday), sugared strawberries; butter or fortified margarine used on all bread; include in today's menus, milk to drink; five cups for children, one cup for adults; beverages for adults as desired.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

STANDING waiting in the station yesterday afternoon, I saw something which typifies what must be happening to thousands of young women and girls in this country. A young woman with a child in her arms kissed a serviceman good-bye. She watched him go down the steps with a smile on her face, and kept the baby waving, and then she turned away and the tears sparkled in her eyes.

I remembered something I had heard a young woman say not long before: "We've never been separated since we were married. What will I do by myself? How do I decide about the children? I want to do something to help the country and to feel that I am helping him too, but I just don't feel I can take it and make the decisions alone."

Of course she can take it and does take it. And thousands of young women all over the country are making decisions, are going to work, are taking care of their children, and even the children are learning to take it. They look for their fathers, some of whom have never left them before. The world seems a strange one without "daddy" to come in in the evening, to listen to what they have been doing, to help them mend a toy, and to carry them upstairs to bed.

As I look at a crowd today in a railroad station, or on a train, or even in the streets, I wonder if we realize what a weight is put on every heart by the accumulation of anxiety and sorrow which walks with so many individuals, day in and day out. A woman passing by will stop and say: "Are you Mrs. Roosevelt? I just wanted to speak to you. I've got a boy somewhere in the Pacific and I've got a girl in the Wacs going overseas pretty soon." The lips that smile hardly hide the tremble and you know that a mother's heart is sorely troubled.

We are a fortunate nation, nevertheless. War is not on our doorsteps. We are not living under enemy rule. We haven't had to see our boys taken off in labor drafts, our girls taken out of our villages and cities to even worse fates. If that happened to us we would understand the looks that we find on the faces of some refugees from Poland, or Czechoslovakia, or Holland or Norway, oh, the world is a sad place to live in these days, and God grant we learn our lesson. It is not enough to hate war. We must have power to build for peace and we must be willing to make the sacrifices which that entails.

Your Stars -o- By Marion Drew

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW

Sun in Aquarius.

General Tendencies — Please be careful about money matters tomorrow and the next day, since the average inclination is toward hasty decisions which will affect the pocketbook. If you can avoid travel, do so; mechanical matters are a second subject which come under some uncomfortable vibrations at this time. During the evening, avoid discussion above all else.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

Things may seem rather slow during the first part of 1944, but this will prove a temporary state of affairs. With the changes which take place during the Summer months, the sons and daughters of this date will find themselves free from hampering conditions of the past and may profit financially shortly after the beginning of August.

Tomorrow's Watchword.

Devout students of the Bible write me that astrology is a superstition which contradicts true religion. Most astrologers feel that both the Old and New Testaments need astrological interpretation in order to be understood clearly. In no place is this more evident than in Revelation, in Ezekiel and also in the various references to calculations of time, which are so confusing to the average reader. True astrology is the handmaiden of religion.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a man of 60 and my wife is a few years younger. We have been married 32 years and got along fine until a certain widow moved in across the street. She has some money and is one of those smooth tongue women up to no good. She came over and had me do some jobs for her and my wife didn't care, let me go ahead. Then I was laid off, no work. So my wife went out and got a job though she wasn't well at the time. Well she was a jewel of a wife and I was a skunk, busy making love to the widow and carried on for several years before I discovered she wasn't what I'd thought her at all. She talked against my wife, got me to believing all sorts of things against her, and the neighborhood worse. My wife finally woke up to this fact and talked to me straight and made me feel so ashamed for she had been such a good wife and so devoted to my old mother whom she waited on hand and foot and through her last illness, without a complaint, and then I had cheated on her this way. Well, I was so ashamed and vowed I'd spend the rest of my life making up to her. But what can I do to show her that it is her I love, that I appreciate her and all she has done, that I think she is an angel?

A. B. C.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

You seem to be quite abject in your repentance, and if you demonstrate that your repentance is lasting and sincere I am sure that a woman like your wife will eventually forget as well as forgive. All you can do is see to it that you spend the rest of your life showing her that you appreciate her, think her the finest, sweetest most loyal wife a man ever had and that you love her with all your heart. Do this by giving her fineness and loyalty in return and you will find happiness for both of you.

Dear Martha Carr:

I am a girl 13, and six months ago I met a soldier and I told him I am 17. I know I shouldn't have done this. Then we began writing letters and I told him he was my one and only and any time he popped the question he could marry me. Well, he popped a couple of weeks ago and now I'm in such a mixup I don't know which way to turn. Can you tell me what to do?

R. M. S.

So now you're scared to death and wish you had stayed your age and kept to skipping rope instead of playing hearts. Better make a clean breast of the matter. It will be good for you to have the humiliation of 'fessing up, and it will serve as a lesson to the soldier not to run around making love to mere infants, and find out their exact age first.

IN ANSWER TO "Young Worried Mother: You would be wise to see to it that your sister lives elsewhere, also to see to it that the children are cared for in the evening and you and your husband go out occasionally. Possibly you have been concentrating too much on the children and not giving sufficient time to your man, and he has begun enjoying the companionship of your sister for lack of yours. The children are young and I don't think leaving them to go out to work would solve any of your problems. Your husband makes a good living; what he makes just needs better management. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will mail you my Budget leaflet, and using it as a guide you can make out one suited to your own needs. Then see if your husband won't agree to co-operate and get family affairs in general into better running order.

IN ANSWER TO "A Daily Reader": Since Jan. 1 of this year a blood test is required of all those who wish to marry in this State. There is a three day waiting period between application for and granting of the marriage license. Both applicants must appear in person to sign the license and both must present their health certificate at this time. The license is valid for only 10 days after it is granted. The soldier may have his test made at camp. The bridesmaids buy their own dresses, but it is customary for the bride to give each of her bridesmaids a gift.

IN ANSWER TO "Skinny": If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will mail you my "Gaining" leaflet.

Social Problems

THE introduction "Mrs. Worldly, this is Mr. Robinson" does put the limelight, as it were, on Mr. Robinson. But I can not otherwise agree with a reader who argues that this form of introduction seems to be presenting Mrs. Worldly to Mr. Robinson.

As I said, it simply indicates that "This" Mr. Robinson is not just any Mr. Robinson who is being presented to Mrs. Worldly, but that he is a very particular Mr. Robinson whom Mrs. Worldly is expected to recognize. Furthermore when said with an enthusiastic inflection "This is" can express a warmth and charm that other introductions lack.

DEAR MRS. POST: I'm almost sixteen and have a boyfriend who is an Air Cadet. He's going home to visit soon and as his family lives a hundred miles away from home, he wants me to come to visit them while he's home so he can spend his entire time with both of us. He says his mother is going to write to me to ask me. Since my mother is an old friend of his mother's she does not think it improper, but she would like to know what you think about my age.

Answer: It seems to me that fifteen is rather young to consider a boy seriously enough to be invited by his family to share his furlough. But since his mother is a friend of yours and a cordial invitation comes to you from her, and your own mother does not disapprove of your interest in this boy, there would be no impropriety in your going.

DEAR MRS. POST: My daughter is wearing white satin and a veil—both of them very simple however—at her wedding. The bridegroom is in the service but the ushers and his best man are still civilians. They have decided to wear plain dark business suits. However, they wondered whether it might be possible to wear wing collars and either four-in-hand or bow ties—whichever you think proper? The wedding is taking place in the early evening.

Answer: They may wear wing collars and plain dark ties—these either bow or four-in-hand.

Answers to Questions About Teeth

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

TODAY I am going to answer questions often asked about teeth.

Which is better, tooth paste or powder?

No real difference. Individual preference determines the choice. They are the same except for the material added to the powder to make it into paste.

Can you make your own tooth powder?

Yes—one part finely pulverized table salt, and three parts of baking soda.

Does chewing gum help or harm the teeth?

There is no scientific evidence that the exercise helps the teeth or stimulates the gums. The sugar in chewing gum may contribute to dental decay.

Should one of the primary or temporary teeth be removed when it appears there will not be room for the permanent set?

Not as a rule. Because the primary teeth are smaller than the permanent teeth and their presence stimulates the jaw to grow and make room for the permanent teeth.

WHAT SHOULD be done if the (permanent) central incisor tooth of an eight-year-old child is broken accidentally?

Fractured teeth are an individual problem. Each case must be worked out by the dentist himself. Usually when no protection is given to the fractured tooth the pulp dies and the tooth may have to be removed. Sometimes it is only necessary for the dentist to smooth the rough edges of the tooth.

What should be done about a wide space between the two front teeth of an 8 or 9 year old child?

Usually nothing need be done because the other permanent teeth as they appear tend to push the central teeth together.

What should be done about the saw-edge on newly erupted incisor teeth?

When these teeth are in proper position the pointed cusps begin to wear and the normal smooth edge is left.

Should X-ray be taken of children's teeth?

YES, AS OFTEN or even more often than an adult's in order to discover disease conditions and to follow up the development of the tooth germ. Also X-ray of a child's mouth will show whether the permanent teeth are in proper position. X-ray will also show whether any supernumerary teeth are present.

If the primary teeth are poor will the second ones also be bad?

Not necessarily. The second teeth are formed when the baby is born. If the child has an edaquate diet with a proper allowance of calcium after birth these teeth should be well formed.

At what age should a child start using a tooth brush?

As soon as all the primary teeth have erupted, which is about two to two and a half years of age and the parent will do most of the brushing for a time. It is a good idea to let the child brush its own teeth, the parent going over them afterwards. Thus the child is forming the habit of regular teeth brushing while the parent is doing the actual cleaning.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

W. H. M.—We have been using saccharine for sweetening. I know it has no nutritional value, but is it dangerous to health?

Answer—No, it can be taken in any quantity.

The Man Who Gives Money Away

Harry McLean Thinks Nothing of Presenting a Stranger With a $1000 Bill.

By Shirley Lynn

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

YOU can't go around giving away $100 bills without making the news, and that's what Harry Falconer McLean has been doing lately. Try as he did to keep his identity hidden, Mr. "X" was soon revealed to the public as the Canadian millionaire construction king from Merrickville, Ontario.

Harry McLean got his money the hard way—and maybe that's why he gets such a kick out of dropping $10, $100 and $1000 bills into the hands of the little people he meets in his wanderings. The patients and staff in Toronto Christy Street Military Hospital have experienced his largesse twice. Even as far away as Halifax, N. S., people have profited by his generosity. Down there he gave a couple of thousand dollars to the 5-months-old son of his taxi driver.

His favorite pastime is to leave amazed but happy veterans, waitresses, cab drivers and other workers clutching a good-sized bill or an order on a bank.

Big, jovial and gray-haired, McLean hasn't found life any bed of roses. He started as a water boy with a railway construction firm in Minneapolis. Later he became timekeeper with a Montana firm and then—really getting down to business—was made general superintendent of Toronto Construction Co.

THEN the first great war came along and before long Harry McLean was a Colonel. That's where he got his army experience that has endeared service men to him—and why service men so often are the recipients of his informal gifts. Back in Canada, he became an executive at various posts. In 1931 he became president of Dominion Construction, which organization he still heads.

As a construction engineer, nothing stops him. "I have never failed on a job yet," says Harry McLean simply. And he never has. He is the man who undertook to dam and harness the Abitibi right at its roughest in the heart of the canyon where the ice chilled river comes tumbling turbulently north between banks as high as a skyscraper's walls. The Abitibi dam and power project in Northern Ontario is a monument to him. He also helped push a tunnel more than 100 miles long from the Catskill watershed to New York City.

Too old to be an active participant in this war, he does second best, from his point of view, by building airports and vital industrial plants. He keeps busy, always on the go—travelling to and fro between his projects by plane. His heart, however, is with the boys who are doing the flying in this war. If he had his way, he'd be bombing Germany today!

HARRY FALCONER McLEAN, CANADIAN MILLIONAIRE, WHO GETS A KICK OUT OF GIVING MONEY TO PEOPLE.

Giving away money and valuable gifts on a large scale is an old habit with the likable Mr. X. He has, however, managed to keep anonymous until the present. On his most recent trip to Christie military hospital the benevolent big fellow with the half-chewed cigar left behind, as nearly as can be estimated, $3300 in a whirlwind visit. Here's what happened. Once more following the conventional pattern, Mr. X had a pocketful of $100 bills.

He walked into the hospital and met a veteran whom he had "ducked" when he had visited the hospital before—because he had run out of money. He made no mistake this time, but handed the veteran one of the bills right away. Mr. McLean and his manager walked into one of the wards. "Are we winning the war?" shouted the big fellow. (Windows rattle for blocks when he yells, but they didn't rattle half as loudly as they did when the boys gave him the answer.)

On one of the beds was Sgt. W. J. McClure. McLean read the card at the head of the bed. "Ah, another good Scotsman," he said. He sat down and chatted for 10 minutes with McClure. As he rose, he laid two $100 bills on his bed.

"Someone went and used my name when I gave away some 'confetti' in Halifax," McLean told McClure. "Ever since then all sorts of people have written me—some of them women who want to marry me. I'm not interested in crackpots, but I do want to do something for you fellows. I'm crazy about you guys—." He wanted to give some of the boys "who fought for me a break."

From there on he distributed happiness amongst the veterans until all his money was gone. One lad with an arm in splints wasn't so lucky—he got the tagend of the bankroll. McLean met him on the way out and emptied his pockets, pouring silver into the hands of the youth. It was 95 cents in American currency.

A man of baronial largesse, boisterous and hearty, he loves doing things "in a big way," not from the publicity he would get out of it, but for the sheer fun of making the recipients of his generosity gape. Once after his private plane was forced down in the Northern Ontario wilderness, he sent the wife of the Finnish settler who fed him ten 100-pound bags of flour.

Some remember the day a couple of years ago when he tossed a hatful of dollar bills out of the eighth floor of a hotel. "Just to watch the people scramble for it." Another story had him throwing handfuls of silver coins into the lobby of a Toronto hotel, grinning with boyish interest as he watched bellboys and guests tripping over each other in a wild scramble.

LANCE - CORPORAL PHIL NIEMAN of London, England, spent a night with McLean on one of his visits to Halifax and Nieman is richer by $1000.

"I first met him in the hotel in Halifax," said Nieman. "We both arrived on the Montreal train, but the room clerk told me there was no accommodation for me. Then this man near the desk piped up and said I could share his room. He ordered a cot put up and invited me out for a late snack. It wasn't long before I found out who he was. In the restaurant we went into he started passing out $20 bills. He would just walk up to a sailor or a soldier and without a word stuff a bill into the man's hand and walk away. . . .

"He insisted that I stay with him all the time and I spent the next two days with him. It was just a whirl of taxi driving, rushing into banks to get money and touring the city to give it away. He gave me a $1000 check."

Of course, since his name has been made public, he has been receiving a "fan mail" rivaling that of Hollywood stars, and he has already announced in a statement that it must remain unanswered. He cannot cope with it. He receives almost 1000 letters daily, from all types and from Mexico to Greenland.

In his statement McLean said he was "deeply touched" by most of the letters he had read, and regretted his inability to answer them personally. A good deal comes from the United States.

Meanwhile he continues on his way. Last heard of, he was down in Nova Scotia leaving a trail of big tips behind him. Those who have the fortune to run into him will probably not regret it.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IN countless deals the declarer can see that it would be fatal to draw trumps, since he needs those cards for ruffing purposes. Yet he plays in such a way as to allow an opponent to do what he himself would not dream of doing. For example:

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ Q
♦ 9 7 6 5 3

WEST
♥ 8 6 5 4 3

EAST
♠ Q J 10 6
♥ K 10 9
♦ A K Q J 10 8

SOUTH
♠ 9 8 4 3
♥ A J 7 2
♣ A K 10 9 6

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 diamond	2 clubs
Pass	5 clubs	5 diamonds	6 clubs
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's six club bid was a sheer shot in the dark, and it robbed North of the opportunity to make a profitable double of East's five diamonds sacrifice. If, however, South had played his slam contract to the best advantage, his bid would have turned out beautifully.

West led the diamond four, South ruffed, led a spade to dummy and returned the heart queen East covered, declarer won, cashed the heart jack, discarding dummy's low spade, then cashed his other spade trick. A second diamond was now ruffed with the nine, a heart with the four, and a third diamond with the 10. Right here, however, West took an interest in the proceedings by overruffing with the queen and returning a trump. Declarer soon discovered that he could not ruff two spades and another heart with only two trumps remaining in dummy.

East's bidding had been the best possible evidence that West could have no more than two diamonds—evidence substantiated by West's lead of the four spot with the three appearing in dummy. Thus, declarer should have ruffed the third diamond with the king or ace of trumps. Now a second heart could be ruffed, a fourth diamond with the other top honor, and a spade or a heart lead would then put West in a highly embarrassing position. He would have three trumps, headed by the queen, against the J-8 in dummy and the singleton 10 in the closed hand, but he would be powerless to prevent declarer from winning the two vital tricks.

At the End of the Street -o- By Elsie Robinson

MIDNIGHT. A shabby city street. Rubbish and slime. A thin cat slinking 'round a garbage can . . . a thinner human thing pawing the scraps. The stench of stagnant air. The loom of walls—of tenements on which hang shapeless bundles—sleepless men. Not one clear light . . . one free, glad sound . . . one hint of beauty or sweet friendliness.

Last August I saw a street like that. Men trapped in ugliness and poverty and pain. Lives like blind alleys—with no bright gleam at the end. No chance beyond the blind, black walls of poverty and fear—I saw that scene. And asked myself those questions which these men must ask themselves . . . those questions which I asked myself when my own life was trapped:

Why struggle to hold on to life if this is all it gives? Why hope—when every hour brings new terror and despair? Why trust—when midnight darkness mocks your heartbreak and despair?

Questions. Blind alleys of questions. Blank walls of despair. Those rose before me as, so often, they must rave risen before you during these bewildered years. And then suddenly, on that August night an answer came—out of the darkness. Two lines of poetry, only—which the genius, George Sterling, once wrote of my lovely, tumbling city—San Francisco.

Do you know San Francisco—and its tangle of streets webbing the hills? Narrow, flagged streets, leading anywhere, nowhere. Narrow, jostling streets soaring up to the sky, swooping down to the bay? Streets like those which the weary heart treads—seeking the sky or the sea. Finding only the fog. And wondering if there was anything beyond that fog.

Then, in answer, came George Sterling's lovely lines:

"At the end of your streets are spars—
At the end of your streets are stars!"

Spars—and stars! Spars of new adventure, fresh endeavor, a new chance, faith and hope and blessed friendliness. They swing, they sway, at the end of the darkest street.

Never a life so lonely or lost—so blank or blind—but there are towering spars at one end . . . and twinkling stars at the other.

Narrow streets. Narrow lives. And fear like a black fog shrouding every turn. And yet—always above the fog the stars eternally shine!

Always beyond the gutters the bright spars beckon and sway!

Have hope! Believe! Go on! This is not all, this dreary, shadowed lane. This is not all, this stumbling through the dark. "At the end of your streets are spars—At the end of your streets are stars"! Lift up your eyes! Follow and find!

'Lifeboat' Is Steering Toward Fox

"JACK LONDON," starring Michael O'Shea, Susan Hayward and Virginia Mayo, the latter a St. Louis girl, opens tomorrow at the Loew's. The other feature will be "Hi Diddle Diddle," starring Adolphe Menjou and Martha Scott.

The only new program opening today is at the Missouri—"Where Are Your Children," with Jackie Cooper and Patricia Morrison, and "Whispering Footsteps" with John Hubbard and Joan Blair.

"Lifeboat" arrives at the Fox Friday, carrying Tallulah Bankhead, William Bendix, Henry Hull and Canada Lee. The other feature: "My Best Gal" with Jane Withers.

"No Time For Love," starring Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray; and "So's Your Uncle," with Billie Burke, are held over at the Ambassador. "The Gang's All Here," with Alice Faye and Carmen Miranda, and "Sherlock Holmes Faces Death," with Basil Rathbone, move to the St. Louis, opening today.

"Gung Ho," Randolph Scott and Alan Curtis, and "Around The World," with Kay Kyser, open at the Shubert Friday, coming from the Fox and Missouri respectively, "Lost Angel" with Margaret O'Brien, and "Jeannie," a British-made film, move from Loew's to the Orpheum tomorrow.

"Stolen Life," with Elizabeth Bergner and Michael Redgrave, opens at the Art Theater Saturday.

"JACK LONDON" dramatises the high points in the career of a colorful American writer, beginning with London's early life as an oyster pirate on San Francisco Bay. The story recounts his rough-and-tumble life in a sealing ship, his life as a gold-hunter in the Yukon and finally his appearance on the American scene as a writer. Miss Hayward appears as his wife and Virginia Mayo, a comely blonde from East St. Louis, has a major supporting role. Taking advantage of the times, the picture brings in a Japanese atrocity angle, based upon London's little known career as a correspondent in that country.

"HI DIDDLE, DIDDLE" is billed as a comedy romance, "peppered with smart dialogue, gay song and dance and a loop-the-loop romance." Looping the loop are Dennis O'Keefe and Martha Scott, while smart dialogue and gay song and dance is supplied by Adolphe Menjou, June Havoc, Pola Negri and Billie Burke.

"WHERE ARE YOUR CHILDREN" deals with the timely problem of juvenile delinquency, and "WHISPERING FOOTSTEPS" is a murder mystery in a light vein, dealing with an innocent man wrongly accused of murder.

"LIFEBOAT," which needs little introduction, is Alfred Hitchcock's production of a story by John Steinbeck telling the story of an oddly assorted group who find themselves on the open sea in a lifeboat. The entire action takes place within the confines of the boat and it builds up to more than one dramatic and suspense-filled climax.

* * *

"MY BEST GAL," in which romance buds for the first time for Jane Withers, former child star, will not be shown on Saturday and Sunday, in order to accommodate crowds. It will be a part of the weekday program only.

COLDS EVERYWHERE

If this spreading wave of colds sweeps your way and gets you with muscular aches, coughing, and nasal congestion—try Penetro, modern medication in a base containing old-fashioned mutton suet like grandma used. Penetro works two ways at once to relieve these miseries: (1) outside, by counter-irritation, (2) inside, by vaporizing. Clean, white and stainless. So pleasant to use. 25c. Double supply 35c. Get Penetro.

BACK STRAIN

Johnson's Red Cross Plaster helps relieve backaches and other muscular aches and pains, for these reasons—

- Retains and adds to body warmth.
- Provides pressure and support.
- Applies mild medication without odor or danger of soiled clothing.
- Gives constant passive massage.

Some 3000 French women living in North Africa have been mobilized by the Algiers committee of the French National Committee to serve as auxiliaries in the French fighting forces.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

Paul Revere Fined—Speeding.

MINNEAPOLIS—Paul Revere's ride cost him $13.50 in court here. Revere, a St. Paul truck driver, was charged with driving 45 miles an hour in a 35-mile limit zone.

"Your namesake had good reason to be in a hurry," said Justice of the Peace Thomas Bergin in passing sentence, "but you didn't."

Probably Off-Key.

PHILADELPHIA—Ack-Ack, the stowaway crow, spoiled the harmony at the Harmony Inn, so he's living in the Philadelphia Zoo now.

Ack-Ack landed on a ship during a storm 100 miles off the coast of India. Merchant seamen discovered the bird, adopted it as a pet, kept it aboard during the 12,000-mile trip here, then gave it to Eddie Harvey, owner of the inn.

But Ack-Ack—so named because of the racket it makes—wore out its welcome, and Harvey presented it to the Zoo.
